COOK COUNTY CUTS SHARE OF STATE TAX LOAD

Will Pay No More Than Downstate.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

For the first time in a dozen years, and perhaps for a longer period, Cook county real estate owners will pay no more state taxes for 1931 than the landowners in the remainder of the state, if the prediction of Assessor J. L. Jacobs comes true. He forecasts a 28 per cent cut in real estate valuations in this county.

J. L. JACOBS.

This proposed cut will reduce the tax value on all land and buildings in Cook county to $2,490,543,770, as compared with $2,467,322,682 for the remainder of the state, as reported by the state tax commission. On that basis, Cook county will contribute—if it resumes normal tax payments on the 1931 assessments—only three hundreds of 1 per cent more state taxes than down the state territory.

On the 1930 assessments, Cook county real estate was called upon to pay 56.25 per cent of the land taxes of the state. More plainly, Cook county was asked to pay 12.5 per cent more real estate taxes than all of the other real estate in Illinois.

State Rate Is Fixed.

The state tax rate has been fixed. Taxes downstate have been collected on that rate, and it cannot be changed for the 1931 collections in Cook. In determining the state rate, the officials at Springfield are said to have estimated that the real estate in Cook county would be put on the assessment rolls at $3,459,000,000, the estimate used in the state tax commission report. Assessor Jacobs forecasts that the tax valuation will be $969,000,000 less, which means that the state will get 24 per cent less taxes from Cook county real estate than state officials anticipated.

The probable effect of the Jacobs reduction will be that the state tax commission will reduce the tax values on downstate real estate for 1932.

There is another surprise for the state in the Jacobs forecast. With his predicted cut on land in Cook county, the 1931 assessed value of real estate throughout the state will drop below five billion of assessed value for the first time in a dozen years. From the peak assessed valuation of $6,400,647,418, the real estate of the state will be shoved down to $4,957,000,000—a reduction of about 22 per cent.

Climax of the Boom.

The real estate boom in Cook county reached its climax, so far as a reflection in the assessed valuations is concerned, in 1926. The assessed valuation was then $3,946,629,400. It was so high that many property owners protested vigorously against the assessors and reviewers.

When the 1927 quadrennial assessment followed, they succeeded in getting cuts of more than 400 million dollars in valuations, and a reappraisal of all real estate in Cook county. When those values came in, the owners were still protesting. A total of 67,754 complaints were filed with the board of review and 49,323—the board's count—did not get a hearing. Since then tax rates in Chicago have been increased more than 31 per cent. So the objectors continued to protest in 1929 to the extent of filing 40,941 complaints with the board of review, of which 38,532 did not get a hearing.

But the real estate valuations in Cook county for 1928 were lowered to $3,336,231,768. In 1929 they were increased to $3,431,242,182 and in 1930 to $3,459,088,569.

Downstate Boom.

The downstate land boom, so far as registered in the tax assessments started in 1926. For several years before that the assessed valuation on downstate real estate remained about $2,050,000,000. But in 1926 the valuation went up to $2,129,000,000. In 1927 it was $2,845,000,000 and in 1928 reached the record figure of $3,064,000,000. Each year since it has been sliding down.

Between 1928 and 1931, the assessed valuations in downstate lots, lands and buildings decreased $597,092,968. If the forecast of Assessor Jacobs proves true, Cook county in that same

KREUGER LOVES BARED; WOMAN GIVES UP RICHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 21.—A conscience stricken young woman who placed on the desk of a startled Stockholm attorney a letter from the late Ivar Kreuger and a large sum of money has brought to a focus the love affairs of the late "match king."

She asked the attorney to turn this money over to the Kreuger estate, for which bankers, stockholders and bond holders of two continents are now fighting. They are fighting for the remnants of what was once looked upon as Kreuger's billion dollar financial empire.

The sensational action of this woman electrified Stockholm and immediately set many tongues to wagging. There have been many rumors and considerable gossip in this city where Kreuger, despite his vast swindlings, is still something of a demi-god; but this letter pointed convincingly to the tremendous part which women must have played in the secret bachelor life of this Swedish genius of financial machinations.

Bank Note for $10,000.

Although the attorney, M. Forssner, refused to reveal the name of his client, he described the contents of the letter. It was written, he said, by Kreuger in February, about a month before he fired a bullet through his heart in his apartment in Paris. The letter enclosed a single bank note of $10,000 and the other bank notes of smaller denominations as gifts for the young woman.

The bank notes and the letter, besides indicating the extraordinary manner in which Kreuger flung his money about in the last month of his life, also indicated that even then he saw the financial handwriting on the wall and had planned to put an end to his spectacular career.

The young woman, the lawyer said decided to return the money to Kreuger and Toll, the Kreuger holding company, when she realized after his death that the thousands of dollars he had given her did not belong to him

Other Gifts Traced.

Part of Kreuger's gifts of $13,500 to Carl Gustaf Ekman, former premier, also were made about a month before Kreuger ended his life. Ekman, as premier, had secured an appropriation for the Kreuger companies from Sweden's parliament. When Kreuger's gifts to him were revealed, he was forced to resign as premier.

The mysterious woman was not the only one to receive gifts in that last month for, if reports are true, Margit Manstad, a popular actress, exponent of the "younger generation," was the recipient of Kreuger's last check.

Reports also persist of other large gifts in the last month of his life, including some to relatives. Legal action to force several of these relatives to return large sums of money and valuable property handed over to them by Kreuger already is under way. It is charged that by reason of the circumstances under which the gifts were made, they were not legal business transactions.

Had Power Over Women.

As the letter laid before M. Forssner opened up a chapter in Kreuger's life which hitherto has been hushed—that concerning his many love affairs—it became more evident that he is still looked upon here, if not with adulation, at least with awe.

It is agreed that his charms were potent, whether dealing with bankers from whom he borrowed millions of dollars at a time or with beautiful women. Steadily stories flow in of the power of Kreuger—the bachelor who declared he "had no time to marry"—over women.

The banker, Rydbeck, who as head of the Skandinaviska Banken, spent many hours with the match king at home and abroad, admitted that Kreuger usually left business conferences early.

Rose Colored Letters.

"We all believed that he wanted rest or had other conferences," Rydbeck explained. "Now we know that he had another circle of acquaintances with whom he spent some time."

Kreuger often told of the many letters from women which streamed into his office and his home, but he reiterated to the curious that, although he was not at all a hater of women, he had no time for marriage. Nevertheless, he was seen frequently at the theater or opera in feminine society.

Mrs. Edith R. McCormick Is Stronger

Physicians attending Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick in her critical illness were amazed last night to find their patient "stronger than she had been in three weeks."

Her remarkable vitality, following the sinking spell she suffered for an hour Saturday night and which was believed to presage the end of her battle for life, may sustain her for some days longer, according to the medical staff. No opinions are being advanced as to how long she may survive her incurable malady.

At midnight the physician in charge retired, reporting that Mrs. McCormick was resting quietly. Members of her family also retired. Earlier in the evening, and for the first time since her condition became critical, several of them left the hotel for a short time.

Patient Brighter and Stronger.

"I am unable to tell anything about Mrs. McCormick," said Miss Florence L. Everitt. She is the nursing specialist of East Hampton, Mass., whose ministrations have rescued the sick woman more than once when hope had been abandoned. Miss Everitt had left the McCormick apartment in the Drake hotel for a turn outside, and expressed her opinion with an attitude akin to bewilderment.

"She is brighter and stronger today—much stronger," Miss Everitt said. "Her relatives are still permitted to visit her, but there is very little conversation. She is being kept as tranquil as possible, to save her strength."

Doctor Always Present.

Early yesterday morning and again at dusk last night the eastern nurse visited Mrs. McCormick and gave her a treatment. Two other nurses are on duty and a physician is always in attendance.

There was a marked air of quiet around the northwest wing on the fourth floor, however, where Mrs. McCormick has her rooms, overlooking the mansion at 1000 Lake Shore drive where she lived for so many years.

Chicago Girl Killed by Whirling Plane Propeller

Miss Olga Peterson, 23 years old, 711 West 71st street, was fatally injured yesterday when struck by an airplane propellor at the Means airport, Fort Wayne, Ind. Miss Peterson climbed out of the plane, in which she had taken a ride over the city, and walked into the whirling propeller before her brother, Harold, who lives in Fort Wayne, and attaches of the field could stop her. She died in a hospital several hours after the accident.

MECHANIC DROPS OUT; PLANE FLIES ON FOR AIR PRIZE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Aug. 21.—Capt. Straumann, a Swiss flyer, arrived here from Berlin on the first leg of the 4,690 mile round Europe flight for the trophy offered by President von Hindenburg of Germany minus a mechanic. Officials checking in the flyer threatened to disqualify him.

"I had a mechanic when I started from Berlin but he jumped out," the Swiss explained to the startled officials.

Late tonight the missing mechanic showed up at the airport limping badly.

"I noticed the right wing of the plane shaking badly," he said, "so I jumped. The parachute didn't open fully and I wrenched my back in landing."

Capt. Solombo, Italian air ace, led the forty-one pilots who left Berlin today on the race which in a week will cover 4,690 miles.

Mother and Daughter Hurt When Sidewalk Collapses

Mrs. Elizabeth Becker, 54 years old, and her daughter, Ellen, 17, of 1410 Mohawk street, were injured yesterday when they stepped through a piece of defective sidewalk in front of 1556 Mohawk street and fell to the basement. The sidewalk, police said, collapsed under their weight. Both were taken to the Grant hospital.

Hunt Missing Banker; Fear Kidnaping Plot

With no word from William A. Ernsting, 42 years old, vice president of the First State bank of Bensenville, in more than 36 hours his family was convinced yesterday that he had been kidnaped for ransom. Mr. Ernsting disappeared on a visit to the loop Saturday and was still missing early today.

The banker left his home in the western suburb early in the morning to visit his attorney, W. H. Fisher at 134 North La Salle street. Chicago police in tracing his movements found he had been at the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company and the attorney's office.

Leaves for Another Office.

He left Fisher to visit another attorney, George P. Burgess at 130 North La Salle street. Whether he reached the office could not be determined because Mr. Burgess left the city on a week-end trip to Wisconsin.

Ernsting had told his wife, Edna, to expect him home not later than 6 o'clock Saturday evening. When he did not return she asked police to learn whether he had met with an accident. There was no reason he should absent himself, relatives said. He carried little money. His accounts are in excellent condition, bank officials said.

Inquire About Banker.

A brother-in-law of the banker, Wesley Luehring, in advancing the kidnaping theory said three men, whom he described as rough in appearance, appeared in Bensenville two months ago and made inquiries for Ernsting. Unknowingly they made an inquiry at the home of Constable August Wolf. Mrs. Wolf, who was at home, refused to answer their questions. The constable later warned the banker to stay at home as much as possible.

The Ernstings live at 170 Mason street, Bensenville. They have three children. Mr. Ernsting, who has been with the bank 12 years, is described as being 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighs 180 pounds and has dark hair, turning gray, and blue eyes.

New York, Aug. 22.—[Monday]—[Special.]—Wilton Lackaye, the widely known actor, died last night shortly after midnight of an acute heart attack in his home at 1 West 30th street. He would have been 70 years old on Sept. 30.

Mr. Lackaye leaves his widow, Mrs. Kathryn Alberta Riley Lackaye, and a son, Wilton Lackaye Jr., and two sisters, Miss Helen Lackaye and Mrs. A. H. Anadale of Washington.

Mr. Lackaye, one of America's best known romantic actors, linked the stage of the "palmy days" with the present, as few actors still alive could do. His career began with success and continued to be successful throughout four decades, and his broad interests and vivid offstage personality kept him in the metropolitan eye year after year.

Born in Virginia.

He was born in Virginia in 1862 and was educated at Georgetown university.

His first appearance was made in New York in 1883 as Lucentio in "Francesca da Rimini," in which the famous Lawrence Barrett was starring. Soon afterward he was a member of Fanny Davenport's company, where he played Claudio in "Much Ado About Nothing," also appearing in "As You Like It" and "Fedora." His last appearance in this city was an adaptation from the French, "The Monkey Talks," two seasons ago.

In between were scattered many varied rôles in many years. In 1903 and 1904 he starred in "The Pit," a play inspired by the Leiter wheat corner. His most startling and universally praised work probably was in the creation of the rôle of Svengali, which he acted in what New York knew as "the Trilby year," 1895, and which he played for two seasons and revived several times.

Recall McGraw Episode.

Among Mr. Lackaye's chief interests were the Lambs club and the Catholic Actors' Guild of America, of which he was a founder and an officer. He was instrumental in the organization of the Actors' Equity association and his losing battle with John Emerson for leadership in that society was an epic in the annals of Broadway. Occasionally truculent and a law unto himself, Mr. Lackaye was famous for other battles, the principal one being that in 1923 with John J. McGraw.

Mr. Lackaye at that time was thrown downstairs in the apartment of the leader of the New York Giants and suffered a fracture of the ankle and other injuries that put him in retirement for some time. The upshot of the combat was that Mr. McGraw was suspended from the Lambs club and later when friends sought to reinstate him Lackaye threatened to resign.

Mr. McGraw, however, eventually was taken back into the fold and Mr. Lackaye, "an old and valued member of the club," did not carry out his threat.

FIND EXPLORER'S BODY ON GLACIER OF MT. M'KINLEY

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—From Muldrow glacier, 11,000 feet up the slope of Mount McKinley, Meri Lavoy and Endrew Taylor have returned to McGonagall pass with the body of Theodore Koven, who perished with Allen Carpe early in May while they were ascending the peak for a cosmic ray study.

In a message to Fairbanks from Mount McKinley park, Lavoy said Koven's body had been covered by ten feet of snow, that no trace had been found of Carpe's body, and that bad weather had extended the search far beyond the expected time.

The party, which is awaiting transportation from the pass, expects to arrive at the park by Thursday. Koven's body will be sent to New Jersey for burial.

BULLETS DRIVE PICKETS AWAY FROM SHAFTS

Police Then Guard Men at Work.

Benton, Ill., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Franklin county deputy sheriffs, wielding clubs and flourishing revolvers, broke up a massmeeting of miners at West Frankfort today and then moved on Orient No. 1 mine and dispersed about 200 men on picket duty there tonight.

Mayor William Martin issued a proclamation forbidding any more massmeetings at West Frankfort. Pat Ansbury, ousted president of Orient mine No. 2 union, was to have spoken, but he did not appear after officers had dispersed the crowd.

When an automobile occupied by Deputy Sheriff Stanley Mundell and other officers arrived at the Orient No. 1 mine and pickets surrounded the car, a machine gun was hauled out of the officers' automobile and a fusillade of shots fired over the heads of the picketing miners.

Drive Away Pickets.

The miners scattered and police then used clubs to complete their work of driving away the pickets so the night crew could return to work in the mine. Several men were struck on the head, but none was reported seriously injured.

Sheriff Browning Robinson and thirty deputies comprised the force that moved on the mine.

After the pickets had been dispersed, the night crew of twenty-five miners returned to work. Sheriff Robinson announced deputies would be kept at the mine to allow examiners to enter the shaft early tomorrow for the daily inspection.

Sheriff Robinson tonight had a force of 250 deputies sworn in for duty tomorrow to prevent miners from other counties from entering Franklin county.

"Keep Highways Open."

Chief Walter Moody of the state highway police, from his headquarters in Springfield, ordered patrolmen from southern Illinois points to Franklin county and gave instructions to "keep the highways open."

The highway patrolmen were to be stationed on roads near the principal mines and were warned to "keep strictly" on the highways. About 25 patrolmen were to be stationed in Franklin county.

After the scheduled massmeeting had been broken up at West Frankfort approximately 400 miners gathered in Zeigler, but they did not attempt to hold a meeting.

FOUR MINES DEFY PICKETS

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Taylorville, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—All preparations for resumption of work at the four Peabody mines in the midland tract near here had been made tonight, but only a few miners, it was predicted, will care to face the picket lines their comrades will establish at the pit entrances at dawn.

The mining company will blow its whistles for work as usual and some 1,500 determined diggers intend employing peaceable means to persuade those miners who wish to work that they should stay out as a further protest against acceptance of the $5 wage scale which the strikers claim was not ratified by the workers of the state several weeks ago. The Taylorville miners voted almost two to one to ratify the new contract, but since a visit by 10,000 strikers Thursday, they have become converts to the cause of the protestors.

330 Deputies on Guard.

Yesterday W. C. Argust, general manager for the Peabody company in this section, announced that the mines would be ready for hoisting tomorrow and that Sheriff Charles Wieneke had agreed to furnish protection to those miners who wanted to go down. Tonight it appeared that the sheriff's activities would be limited to keeping the roads and highways clear near the pits, but would not furnish guarded transports for the diggers.

About 330 special deputy sheriffs had been appointed tonight, it was reported. The sheriff would not announce the exact number. Five officers of the Illinois National Guard, under command of Capt. C. J. Meacham of Decatur, will be interested spectators at the mines in the morning. Capt. Meacham has detailed one of his officers to each mine. Capt. Howard H. Bentley of Springfield will observe at No. 58, on the Taylorville city limits; Capt. Mark Plaisted and Lieut. Maurice Peter of Springfield, and Lieut. Forrest H. Kelly of Decatur will be stationed at No. 7 at Kincaid, No. 8 at Tovey and No. 9 at Langley.

The officers made a tour of the mines this afternoon. Even though Sunday is never a working day in the region, a handful of pickets was on hand at each shaft house, Capt. Meacham was told by the mine guards.

About 2,000 miners—those of this subdistrict—met this afternoon at Kincaid to listen to a report of the "policy" committee appointed at a large massmeeting in Benld last Sunday.

They filled the rickety grandstand and others stood on the dusty infield in the throbbing heat while speakers told them that John H. Walker, president of district 12, the state of Illinois, United Mine Workers of America, had been guilty of cupidity in agreeing to the $5 scale and that steps should be taken to oust him by circulation of a recall petition. If the petition is not recognized, then a convention should be called to elect some miner to displace Walker, the crowd was told.

Expect no Trouble Today.

Many of the miners, wearing their Sunday best, brought their wives and children to the meeting. The streets of the village were crowded with their cars and the conclave continued throughout the afternoon.

The miners themselves predict no trouble tomorrow.

The company's belief, as expressed by Mr. Argust, is that at least 75 per cent of its miners would return to work by Wednesday if no outside influence is felt; in other words, if the strikers from other sections do not return. The manager holds, along with many other citizens, that the mines are Taylorville's essential industry. That their 1931 pay roll totaled $2,500,000. If the miners wish to work this right should not be interfered with, many say. Most of the miners indicated today that they would not work, at present.

Protect Coal Miners.

Duquoin, Ill., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Officers and citizens of several towns in Franklin, Saline, Jackson and Perry counties tonight had completed precautionary measures to protect coal miners who are willing to work, in the event the counties are invaded by miners who last week waged the seige at Taylorville.

Scores of business and professional men of Duquoin have been sworn in as deputy sheriffs by Sheriff Davis of Perry county and patrols have been assigned to guard highways leading into Duquoin, beginning tomorrow morning. State highway patrolmen, police officials and detectives of the Illinois Central railroad also were prepared to assist in maintaining order.

Because of opposition by miners, the Traux-Traer Coal company, it was learned today, has decided to make no further attempt to operate its strip mine at De Soto, but will concentrate its operations at the Elkville strip mine.

Marion Sheriff Ready.

Marion, Ill., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Sheriff G. J. Frick of Williamson county tonight had a force of more than 200 deputy sheriffs in readiness to prevent miners from resorting to force in dissuading other miners of the county from returning to work under the $5 wage scale.

Two Abandoned Babies Give Police Anxious Hour

Des Plaines street policemen had an anxious hour or two last night taking care of Melvin Euler, 2 years old, and his sister, Laverne, 1 year old. The children were found by Policeman John Bernotas in a hallway at 101 South Halsted street. Frank Euler, the tenant, told police they were stepchildren of his son and had been brought there by Mrs. Elda Brunet, 6314 Eggleston avenue, who had been caring for them at the request of the mother, Mrs. Nancy Euler, but who had not been paid for her services. The children finally were taken to the Juvenile home.

MOLLISON GAINS EUROPE-NEW YORK SOLO AIR RECORD

Completes Lone Westward Trip to Gotham.

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Capt. James Allan Mollison, blue eyed, sandy haired, modest young aviator who set out in the rain from Ireland last Thursday morning to conquer the Atlantic, wrote a new chapter in aviation history at 4:35 o'clock this afternoon when he set his tiny plane down on Roosevelt field and then flushed to the cheers of 5,000 exultant welcomers.

In the moment that his wheels touched the ground he became the first aviator to complete, alone, the dangerous westward journey from Europe to New York, a journey whose earlier attempts have cost so many lives.

Intent on Round Trip.

And hardly had he landed than he was intent on the next stage of a great adventure—his return flight to England—which, if he is successful, will make him the first man to make a trans-Atlantic round trip by air. He expects to start "very soon," although he would not set a definite date tonight, and mechanics at once began dismantling his plane for a thorough overhauling.

He expects, when he starts, to fly first to Harbor Grace, N. F., and, after taking on a full load of fuel there, to hop across the Atlantic for Croydon, near London.

Hopes to Cross in 17 Hours.

He expects that flight, if he has the usual 25 mile an hour tail wind behind him, to take not more than sixteen or seventeen hours. His 3,000 mile flight from Ireland, which ended Friday noon at Pennfield Ridge, near St. John, N. B., when he found he lacked ten gallons of having enough gasoline to take him through to New York, consumed 30 hours, 10 minutes.

Capt. Mollison was a weary man in body and mind when he stepped from his trim little ship, notwithstanding that he had had two days' rest at St. John and that his jaunt of a mere 600 miles down from St. John to Roosevelt field today was as "jolly a piece of flying" as an aviator could wish. That last leg of the journey took him 5 hours and 13 minutes.

65 YOUNG WOMEN BURN SELVES TO DEATH IN HAVANA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 21. — Sixty-five Havana women, ranging in ages from 16 to 23, have committed suicide since Aug. 1 because they were disappointed in love or were tired of living, according to statictics released today by the department of sanitation.

Following invariably a Cuban tradition, the women soaked their clothes with alcohol and applied matches. Officials are unable to explain why the young women discarded less painful methods to commit suicide.

The custom, according to an authority on religious affairs, probably grew out of the examples of women who, before being canonized as virgins, voluntarily mutilated, chastised or burned themselves as proof of repentance of their earthly sins.

STRIKING IOWA MILK FARMERS STOP 2 TRAINS

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 22 [Monday].—(AP)—Two trains en route here with live stock and milk were detained for an hour last night by striking farmers who are seeking to prevent shipment of farm commodities here.

Supporters of the "farmers' holiday" stopped a North Western freight train at Moville, Ia., and flagged a Milwaukee passenger train at Jefferson, S. D.

As the strike entered its second week blockading highways leading into Sioux City Mayor W. O. Hayes, in a statement yesterday, urged a conference of governors to consider the situation.

He said the "situation transcends any question of merely local interest" and should be dealt with by the governors of the states in which the movement has gained headway.

Representatives of the National Farm Holiday association, sponsoring the strike, asserted nearly all counties in the territory contiguous to Sioux City in the three states had been organized for participation in the strike.

Winston Salem, N. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Fred Dorset of Augusta, Ga., flying one of the slowest planes in the race, led 28 cross-country flyers into Winston Salem late today, for the first stop in a 2,369 mile handicap derby to the national air races in Cleveland.

Dorset swooped down on the local airport in his dark biplane at 5:41 p. m., two hours and thirty-six minutes after he took off at Washington, D. C., the starting point.

Five minutes later Melville Robinson of Mount Clemens landed second, and within another minute six more flyers were officially checked in. They were, in order: S. C. Huffman, Cincinnati; Harold Newman, Moline, Ill.; C. L. Clabaugh, Glenview, Ill.; Chappey Lennox, New Haven, Conn.; Arthur J. Davis, Lansing, Mich., and R. A. Moore, Dayton, O.

Yuma, Ariz., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Art Carnahan of Bloomington, Ill., led the 55 other contestants of the Los Angeles-Cleveland air derby into their first stopping place at 3:45 p. m., mountain standard time, establishing, under the handicap system, a perfect score of 270 points.

Carnahan covered the distance from Los Angeles in elapsed time of 1 hour and 59 minutes. Roy Hunt of Norman, Okla., was second, scoring 162 points. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal., was third, receiving 108 points.

Others among the first ten:

William E. Bleakley, Oklahoma City, 67.5 points; J. L. O'Donnell, Long Beach, 49.5 points; Waldo Waterman, Santa Monica, Cal., 27 points; J. S. McDonnell, Cleveland, 13.5 points; Marshall Headle, Burbank, Cal., 10.8 points; Gene Redewill, Phoenix, Ariz., 8.1 points; Joe Thompson, San Antonio, Tex., 5.4 points.

The airplane piloted by Al Larry, Los Angeles, was forced down in the desert ten miles west of Yuma.

Janesville Air Racer Here for Plane Tests

James Church, designer of the Church midwing racer, a very small plane with which he hopes to reach a top speed of 175 miles an hour at the national air races at Cleveland Aug. 27-Sept. 5, had his ship at the Chicago airport yesterday for tests. Church and George McCarthy, 19 years old, the pilot of the ship, are from Janesville, Wis.

CARDS ADVOCATE WRITING IN SMITH NAME, PAPER SAYS

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—The New York Times says the circulation in "three or four middle western states" of cards advocating writing in the name of Alfred E. Smith for President on the ballot in the November election has come to the attention of Democrats here.

Cards received here were described as having been traced to an organization known as the Smith Club of Nebraska, which was formed before the Democratic convention.

"A similar movement," said the Times, "is reported to have been in progress in Minnesota."

Mr. Smith, in a post-convention statement, said he would support the Democratic party and replied to questions that such support embraced its candidates.

STABBED TO DEATH IN STREET.

2 WOMEN FLY ON AFTER SALUTING CAPT. MOLLISON

Valley Stream, L. I., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Frances Harrell Marsalis and Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, holders of the steadily increasing refueling endurance flying record for women, flew over Roosevelt field today to dip a salute to Capt. J. A. Mollison, who had just arrived from the last lap of his trans-Atlantic flight from Ireland.

After zooming over the crowds gathered to greet Capt. Mollison, and turning over the field in a sharp bank, the flyers returned over Curtiss field here to continue their eighth day in the air.

The largest crowd that has appeared at the field since the women started their flight last Sunday cheered the flyers as they completed their first full week of sustained flight at 2 p. m. Although they previously had planned to end their flight today and later had announced their intentions of remaining in the air until tomorrow, they informed C. S. [Casey] Jones, manager of the airport, that they would continue their flight for at least a few days longer.

As midnight approached the flyers were steadily increasing their lead over the previous record of 123 hours set by Edna May Cooper and Miss Bobby Trout over Los Angeles in January, 1931. They had consumed about 2,000 gallons of gasoline, nearly 150 quarts of oil, and had flown about 10,000 miles to nowhere.

DIES SUDDENLY IN HOME.

Frank Cuttler, 42 years old, a former bartender, died suddenly from cerebral hemorrhage in his basement room at 61 West Superior street yesterday.

HAITI'S PRESIDENT ORDERS MARTIAL LAW; CURBS PRESS

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 20. —[By Airmail.]—(AP)—President Stenio Vincent has proclaimed martial law for Port-au-Prince, the capital, and certain other sections of Haiti as part of a government campaign against the opposition press.

Since his proclamation five newspapers have been suppressed and two editors arrested, one of them being Jolibos Fils, a prominent radical. Under martial law the president can suspend the freedom of the press and dissolve the Haitian chambers, now in session.

President Vincent said he took this action because certain newspapers were agitating the public and such agitation might lead to bloodshed and imperil the stability of the government.

GOV. ROOSEVELT STUDIES RAISING CAMPAIGN FUND

Satisfied with Reaction to His Speech.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, his campaign admittedly aimed at governmental regulation of big business, relaxed in an easy chair on the front porch of the executive mansion here today and began to think about ways and means of raising funds for the presidential campaign.

NORMAN DAVIS. [Harris & Ewing.]

There are a number of wealthy men in the Democratic party, but party leaders recognize the fact that these leaders cannot give so generously as they have in the past. Gov. Roosevelt is known to be relying on "the forgotten man" for a large part of his campaign fund.

The governor received newspaper correspondents late this afternoon and expressed himself as being thoroughly satisfied with the way his Columbus speech, in which he proposed federal regulation of the stock exchange, had gone over.

Norman Davis Is Guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davis, who were luncheon guests at the mansion, were departing as the correspondents arrived. Mr. Davis, an undersecretary of state in the Woodrow Wilson cabinet and a student of foreign affairs, had only recently returned from Geneva.

"I haven't even unpacked my brief case," said the governor. "Mr. Davis has been talking to me about foreign affairs in general. I have been resting most of the time today and reading telegrams—most of them liked my speech, although I did get notes of disapproval from New Jersey."

The governor let it be known that he was planning only six more major addresses. He has decided definitely upon only three topics—farm relief, public utilities, and prohibition. The other addresses will center upon issues of the campaign that may come up between now and November.

New Jersey Speech Planned.

It is likely that the governor will speak on prohibition at Seagirt, N. J., next Saturday. He is known to hold the opinion that New Jersey would be a splendid place to enlarge upon his views on the repeal of the Volstead act and although he has only twenty minutes of speaking time and no radio hook-up on the New Jersey visit, he is said to consider the time for another wet pronouncement ripe.

In case prohibition is displaced as a topic in New Jersey, the governor will take up that subject at Bridgeport, Conn., the following week-end.

Walker Back in Albany.

Mayor James J. Walker, returned to Albany tonight faced with the possibility that Gov. Roosevelt would not permit him to go very far with his charge that the removal proceedings instituted against him were the result of a "Republican plot."

It has been intimated by friends of the governor that he does not like the idea of hearing charges against his rival for President, and that he will not permit the Walker case to be turned into an attack on Republican administration tactics.

REVEAL HOW WOMEN FIGURED IN LIFE OF IVAR KREUGER

Greta Lindgren, Swedish opera star, whose musical studies in Paris were financed by Ivar Kreuger, the match king who killed himself in Paris before his swindles were revealed. It is said that Kreuger gave $50,000 to the opera star. [Acme Photo.]

KREUGER LOVES BARED AS WOMAN GIVES UP RICHES

Cash Turned Over to Estate.

ish opera star whose musical studies in Paris were financed by Kreuger. It is said that Kreuger gave her $50,000.

Demands Share in Estate.

Another woman who played a prominent part in Kreuger's life was Mrs. Ingeborg Eberth. She demanded $135,000 from Kreuger's estate, basing her claim on his last will. It has not, however, been proved that there is such a will. It is known, however, that the two had been friends since 1916 and that they spent much time together.

From Germany comes the story of a 30 year old Berlin woman whom Kreuger wooed but never won. This woman said to be an elegantly dressed, and slim Nordic type, was the wife of a rich merchant, and the mother of two boys.

Kreuger it has been discovered, met the woman and her husband eleven years ago on a visit to Berlin. He invited her to visit him in Sweden and take a trip on his yacht but she refused. He urged her husband to try his fortune in the United States, but in vain. The woman remained faithful and refused to trade her husband for the millionaire Kreuger.

Why He Never Married.

Kreuger, asked by this woman's husband why he never married, is quoted as having said:

"At 21 I fell in love with a girl, she died. I do not believe a wife can be trusted. I fear that a woman would want me solely for my money."

Although Kreuger was interested in women, business associates now say that he could not be described as a vicious man. Tales are told of nocturnal orgies in his different homes in Stockholm and elsewhere. These stories are exaggerated, those closest to him insist.

The rôle women played in his life was indicated recently by the discovery by police of many precious objects in his palatial home at Villagatan. There were gold needles, pearls, and necklaces in the collection. The jewels had apparently been purchased as gifts for feminine visitors.

Kreuger knew how to exploit a summer in Stockholm. A speed boat and a villa on a lonely island near the Baltic is the dream of every true resident of Stockholm, and Kreuger in his career, realized this dream at an early stage.

He owned two summer residences, one "Little Shadow" in the idyllic park, Djurgarden, the other a villa on Meadow island at the edge of the thousands of islands surrounding Stockholm.

Island Scene of Affairs.

Meadow island was reputed to be the scene of many of Kreuger's affairs. A conversation between two young girls in a fashionable boarding house in the summer of 1931 described the "summer paradise" effectively. One of the girls, it seems, had accompanied "the silent Ivar" in his speed boat, "The Swallow," on a trip to this haven.

She described the comforts and luxuries there with enthusiasm. In the guest rooms, she said she found exquisite lingerie, dinner gowns and sporting attire for young women.

That such guests were not rare is now indicated, but as long as he lived Kreuger succeeded in surrounding his pleasures with the same cloak of secrecy which shrouded his financial transactions.

Margit Manstad, Swedish actress who, according to reports, was the recipient of Ivar Kreuger's last check.

POLES CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF VISTULA BATTLE

The twelfth anniversary of the battle of the Vistula, when Poland defeated a soviet army, was celebrated by 18,000 Polish-Americans yesterday in the Chicago Stadium.

M. S. Szymczak, city controller, presided. He read a message of congratulation from Mayor Cermak, which was sent from the scene of the victory in 1920.

Gen. Stanley Ruppert of the Polish army who came to America with the Polish Olympic teams, described the battle and the victory. Gen. Ruppert also praised the American manner of conducting the Olympic games. Dr. Titus Zbyszewski, consul general of Poland in Chicago, was another speaker.

W. L. HUTCHESON WILL HEAD G. O. P. LABOR BUREAU

Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, announced yesterday that William L. Hutcheson, president of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, has been appointed director of the labor bureau at the national headquarters in the Palmer house. Mr. Hutcheson issued a statement indorsing President Hoover's record on labor legislation.

Assailant of 13 Year Old Girl Charged with Rape

William Mangin, 32 years old, of 755 West 63th street, was booked on a charge of rape at the Englewood station last night on the complaint of the father of a 13 year old girl. Police said Mangin admitted that he first attacked the girl four years ago when she was 9 years old.

JERSEY OFFICIAL'S DAUGHTER WOUNDED BY MYSTERY SHOT

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Miss Evelyn Higgins, Jersey City, daughter of Maj. William Higgins, a member of the staff of Governor Moore of New Jersey, was in a critical condition tonight from a bullet wound received mysteriously early today.

According to a police report, Miss Higgins, her sister, Mae; her brother, William Higgins Jr.; Frank Hanlon, and two others were riding in an automobile in Jersey City, when Mae Higgins complained of feeling ill.

The car was stopped and the young woman got out and walked down the street about forty feet. She then called to her sister, Evelyn, to assist her. She was then found to have a bullet wound in the stomach.

Widow Found Drowned in Columbus Park Lagoon

Mrs. Josephine Brower, 60 years old, a widow, was found drowned yesterday in the Columbus park lagoon by Nathan Dongalov, a park employé. Her brother-in-law, Nels Nilssen, 831 Gunderson avenue, Oak Park, with whom she lived, said she had been despondent since the death of her husband two years ago.

ASKS ROOSEVELT WHY HE DIDN'T TEST REFORMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Why did not Franklin D. Roosevelt, as governor of New York, initiate the reforms he says he will advocate as President of the United States, demanded Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, Republican house leader, in a statement issued today day the Republican national committee.

Mr. Snell declared that the regulation of securities and credit which Gov. Roosevelt promised in his Columbus speech last night could have been applied to New York City, home of Wall street, by New York state law, had Mr. Roosevelt so desired.

"The governor's most recent program and promises are just another example of what will haunt him and his party through this campaign—promises nullified by a stark and inescapable record," asserted the Republican congressional leader.

No Statute Basis.

"All of these reforms could have been initiated by the governor of the state of New York any time during the last four years," Mr. Snell said.

"The governor should know that there is no constitutional basis for federal government regulation of the stock exchange or the issuance of securities by business concerns.

"The principal stock exchange of the country is in New York. It is much more amenable to state regulation than to national. There are no legal barriers to state regulation.

"As to the issuance of securities, New York is the great security market of the country. If Gov. Roosevelt really wants to stem the flow of unsound securities and control banking commissions, could there be a more effective place to apply his theory than at the source?"

Answering Foreign Loan Charge.

A second, and presumably Republican, reply to Gov. Roosevelt's speech came without signature from the state department. The statement was issued in answer to the Democratic candidate's assertion that if he is elected "it will no longer be possible for international bankers or others to sell to the investing public of America foreign securities on the implied understanding that these securities have been passed on or approved by the state department or any other agency of the federal government."

"The department of state has never approved a single foreign loan," the statement read. "It advised the bankers not to make loans to countries which had not funded their debts to the United States, thereby speeding up the negotiations which resulted in the debt agreements."

CURTIS, IN CAPITAL, AFFIRMS DRY STAND IN SPEECH IN KANSAS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Fresh from his last week's acceptance speech with its dry pronouncement on prohibition, Vice President and Republican candidate Charles Curtis returned to Washington today. He carried with him no misgivings concerning the clash between his prohibition views and those recently announced by his presidential running mate, Mr. Hoover.

"I said what I meant and meant what I said," the Vice President explained. "I made my position clear and at this time have nothing to add or to subtract. Whether I shall have more to say about prohibition in future speeches depends on circumstances."

Mr. Curtis was busy opening many letters and telegrams which had come to him at his office here. He had not yet had time to peruse last night's speech by Gov. Roosevelt.

His speaking itinerary had not yet been settled, the Vice President said. He expected to stump pretty much the whole country, but was leaving it to Republican campaign headquarters to lay out the route.

"Political signs look good for the Republican ticket," he declared. "Reports that came to me in the middle west and far west were very encouraging."

EVANSTON POLICE ARREST WABBLY BICYCLE RIDER

Evanston police had to hark yesterday back to the gay 'nineties, when reckless young blades were summoned to court for "scorching" on their bicycles, for precedent for their arrest of James Sayre, 50 years old, 2756 Hurd avenue, Evanston.

A search of the city code showed that if there had ever been an ordinance against riding a bicycle while intoxicated, it had become obsolescent, so Sayre's spectacular achievements had to be recorded on the police register under the prosaic heading of disorderly conduct.

Residents of Central street in Evanston telephoned police that a man was making laborious progress westward on the street aboard a bicycle, from which he fell at frequent intervals. Several motorists complained that they had narrowly escaped striking Sayre because of his wabbly progress.

A police squad, sent to investigate, found the cyclist slumbering in a clump of bushes a block from his home, the scene of his last tumble. There were two bottles of moonshine in his pockets. Sayre explained to police that he had stopped to rest before negotiating the last block homeward.

HORNER BACKERS SAY HIS TOUR IS WINNING VOTES

Reception Gives Promise of November Victory.

In a week-end summary of the political situation in Illinois, Democratic state headquarters issued a statement yesterday pronouncing the "get acquainted" trip of Judge Henry Horner much more effective than the front porch "come and see me and get a promise" campaign of Len Small, his Republican opponent for the governorship.

JUDGE HORNER.

"Judge Horner's informal tour downstate," said George F. Scully, aid of State Chairman Thomas F. Donovan, "appears to be the most politically profitable move that any Illinois candidate has made in a decade.

Draws Republican Voters.

"He has covered the state from Winnebago county on the north, to Williamson county on the south, going from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi river, visiting close to 150 towns and it is reported authentically that his audiences have been from 30 to 50 per cent Republican.

"At Pinckneyville, county seat of Perry county, which ordinarily is listed as Republican, Judge Horner's reception assumed the proportions of an old fashioned political rally. Several hundred people marched in a torchlight procession and the crowd was so large that the nominee was forced to break his rule prohibiting speeches during this preliminary tour.

"A few days later, at the Beardstown fish fry, there were 25,000 waiting to hear him. At the Coles county fair he was presented with a bronze plaque commemorating his services to the memory of Lincoln. At Johnston City a crowd of about 2,000, virtually the entire population of the town, stood in the rain an hour to hear him.

Horner Greeted by 15,000.

"Outside of Herrin he was met by an automobile caravan a mile long and was escorted into town by a parade headed by a military band. And at Christopher, in Franklin county, he was greeted by 15,000 people, some of whom had driven 150 miles to see him.

"Such indications as these warrant forecasts of a sweeping victory for Judge Horner in November. The state has had enough of Small."

Judge Horner will speak at the state fair at Springfield on Wednesday, but will continue his handshaking trip both before and after that date.

Horner Sees Landslide.

Rock Island, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Predicting an unprecedented landslide for both the state and national Democratic tickets, Judge Henry Horner, nominee for governor, made his first appearance in Rock Island county today. His coming was only for the purpose of meeting the people. No campaign talks were made. It is estimated the judge shook hands with 1,000 persons here and in Moline.

Accompanying Judge Horner were John C. Martin, candidate for state treasurer, and Martin Brennan, nominee from McLean county for congressman-at-large. The party will appear tomorrow at Aledo, Oquawka, and Monmouth.

REAL ESTATE TAX CUT ANNOUNCED FOR KANE COUNTY

William P. Mettel, chairman of the Kane county board of review, announced yesterday that the board will make a flat reduction of all real estate assessments in the 1932 assessment rolls of the county.

Assessors of six townships and members of the citizens' tax council of Aurora appeared before the board of review several weeks ago and recommended that all real estate assessments be cut 20 per cent.

The board held a hearing later at Geneva and members of the Aurora and Elgin city councils and the school boards of those cities were jeered when they asserted they could not operate if the assessments were reduced.

Mr. Mettel said the exact percentage by which assessments are to be reduced throughout the county will be announced before Sept. 1. Aurora school authorities said, when informed of the threatened reduction in revenue, that they would take no immediate action to shorten the school terms. Schools there will open Sept. 6 as scheduled, they announced.

Hottest Day in 67 Years Hits Berlin; Twelve Drown

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Berlin sweltered today through its hottest day of 67 years. The temperature reached 101 degrees. Twelve persons drowned at the city's beaches. Heavy winds unroofed forty houses at Bitterfeld, near Hamburg.

COOK COUNTY TAX VALUE CUT TO PAR WITH DOWNSTATE

New Valuation to Reduce Total 1931 Payments.

The drop downstate between 1928 and 1931 figures about 19.5 per cent, while the proposed decrease in Cook, in the same period, is 25.3 per cent.

These percentages do not reflect, as they should, a like decrease in taxes so far as Chicago is concerned. The enormous increase in the tax rates locally, between 1928 and 1931, will more than offset the decrease in real estate valuations.

Paying More Taxes.

While the forecast of 1931 real estate valuations will be 25.5 per cent below those of 1928, the increase in tax rates in that same period has been 31 per cent. It is, therefore, possible for the owner of a lot to pay more taxes in 1931 than he did in 1928, despite the decreased valuation.

The loss in tax valuations on real estate in Cook county will be offset, to some extent, by the promised increases in personal property assessed. No trustworthy estimate of that increase has been made. For 1930 the personal property was valued at $840,656,242 for assessing purposes. To offset the predicted loss in value on real estate, the tax value of personal property would have to be increased to $1,800,000,000. There is no present indication that such a large amount of new personal property will be placed upon the assessment rolls.

TOO MANY TAX EATERS

Downstate counties in company with Cook are suffering from the multiplicity of tax spending officials, as well as tax spending bodies.

This was a conclusion announced yesterday by State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, chairman of the committee on local government, a branch of the Illinois commission on taxation and expenditures, after he had scrutinized a preliminary report of Griffenhagen & Associates, a firm of analysts employed by his committee.

Cites Excessive Costs.

As an example of excessive expenditures he cited the maintenance of county and township highways and said that in this instance the cost of supervision often is half the amount spent for materials. He called this "a ridiculous proposition."

"The average salary of a township or district road commissioner," he said, "is approximately $1,000 a year. In one small county this comes to $25,000 a year. In addition to this cost, local treasurers are paid commissions for handling these road funds. Often counties have from 50 to 100 road commissioners drawing salaries and commissions from these highway moneys.

A Five-Day-Month Job.

"Many counties also have a greater number of courts than the court business in the area requires. In one county the probate judge spends an average of five days a month on county business and receives $5,000 a year. The county judge averages three days a week for county affairs and gets $6,000 a year. Neither resides at the county seat and both continue private practice. In addition there is a clerk of the Probate court, who isn't very busy but receives $4,000 a year."

Chairman Schnackenberg said that costs often are increased greatly through the lack of intelligent purchasing. He said that in one county coal is being purchased by fifteen persons and that no checks as to tonnage or quality are made.

BERLIN PLANS TO SPEND MILLIONS TO AID JOBLESS

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(AP)—A plan to spend 800,000,000 marks (about $71,100,000) in a program to provide a year's employment for 150,000 men may be presented to the reichstag as the government's effort to check the rising tide of unemployment, which now is well over the 5,000,000 mark.

Among other things the plan calls for the expenditure of 100,000,000 marks on road building, 50,000,000 on canals, 30,000,000 on houses, 10,000,000 on railways, and 10,000,000 on shipbuilding.

The shipping allotment would be devoted mostly to the herring fleet in an effort to make Germany independent of importers. The railroads would supplement the government's subsidy for improvement of their property. It was estimated the reemployed would receive monthly wages of about $24.

In 75 laboratory cigarette tests,* checked and verified by scientists of two leading universities, OLD GOLD was found to be the coolest and throat-easiest cigarette.
OLD GOLD won these tests because it is made of the PUREST and choicest tobacco . . . free of all hot-burning flavorings. That's the "why" of "not a cough in a carload." The why of O. G.'s greater taste appeal and throat-ease.

TRAIN CRUSHES AUTO; HUSBAND AND WIFE KILLED

Three Others Injured in Accident Near Dyer.

A man and his wife were killed and three other persons were critically hurt late last night when their automobile was struck by a freight train at the Michigan Central tracks and the Lincoln highway, one-half mile inside the Cook county line just west of Dyer, Ind.

All were taken to St. James' hospital in Chicago Heights. The dead coupled were identified as William and Mrs. Annabelle Lazar, 40 and 29 years old respectively, of 3534 Guthrie avenue, Indiana Harbor, Ind. The injured were George Spornic of the same address, John Paminac of 4201 Main street, and Tiberni Mahatami of 3614 Elm street, both of Indiana Harbor. They suffered possible skull fractures and internal injuries.

The five were riding north in the highway when struck by the train which was eastbound. Police said that the crossing is protected only by wooden cross-arm signs, without lights or bells. The car was driven by Spornic. The Lazars are survived by four children, the oldest 11 years and the youngest 4 months old.

Student Is Killed.

Edward Zintak, 25 years old, 3663 South Paulina street, a law student, was fatally injured and three others hurt yesterday when an automobile driven by Zintak collided with another car at 87th street and South Park avenue.

Police said that Zintak, driving in 87th street, failed to observe a stop sign at South Park avenue. He died several hours later at the Auburn Park hospital.

Lawrence Combs, 23 years old, an attorney of 7151 Normal boulevard, who was riding with Zintak, suffered a brain concussion and possible internal injuries. Morris Mosley, 2149 South Karlov avenue, driver of the other automobile, and his wife, Norma, were cut and bruised.

These deaths and three others increased the Cook county toll for the year to 740. The victims:

Alex McCullough, 19 years old, of Tessville. Fatally injured last night in McCormick road, one-half block north of Devon avenue, when a flat tire caused the car to overturn.

Harold Schmalreide, 20 years old, of 2224 Fletcher street. Killed yesterday morning when a stolen car in which he was riding overturned at Erie and Armour streets. Schmalreide and two companions were being pursued by a police squad.

Unidentified man, about 60 years old. Died in the county hospital. He was found in the street at 1352 South Canal street, Saturday.

$200,000 Fire in Kan. City Packing House District

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Fire destroyed the plant of the Success Mills, Inc., in the Armourdale packing house district tonight, with loss estimated at $200,000. Authorities believe the blaze may have been incendiary because a small fire in the plant two weeks ago, which was extinguished, apparently had been started deliberately.

HARRIS KEELER, TAX WASTE FOE, DIES SUDDENLY

Heart Disease Ends Career of Public Service.

Harris S. Keeler, director of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, died suddenly yesterday of heart disease in the Chippewa hotel on Mackinac island. He was 55 years old.

Mr. Keeler left for a few days' vacation at Mackinac island Saturday morning and arrived at the hotel in the evening. When he failed to answer calls his room was entered. He was found dead in bed. He was known to have suffered from a heart disorder for several years.

Guards Public Resources.

Mr. Keeler came into prominence at the time of the investigation into the administration of Mayor Fred Busse by Charles E. Merriam, professor at the University of Chicago, who was then in the city council. Following the disclosures of the investigation a group of citizens, headed by the late Julius Rosenwald, sponsored the formation of the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency to guard against wasteful public expenditures, with Mr. Keeler as director.

From March, 1910, until last June Mr. Keeler served as director. He was known as an expert on tax administration and governmental finance. Last June the bureau merged with the civic federation, with Mr. Keeler as director of investigational activities.

Studied Law in Chicago.

Mr. Keeler was born in Binghamton, N. Y. He studied law at the Chicago Kent College of Law and graduated in 1899. He was admitted to the bar in 1900 and engaged in private practice until he joined the efficiency bureau.

In 1905 he married Albertha Parsons of Chicago. He is survived by his widow and three children, Marion Estelle, Helen Parsons, and Frea Albert Keeler. The family home is at 5956 Race avenue.

The body will be brought to Chicago Tuesday for burial. Funeral arrangements are to be announced later.

MUSIC FESTIVAL VISITORS MAKING WAY HOMEWARD

Third Event Surpasses All Records.

By train and automobile the exodus of the out of town participants in the Chicagoland Music Festival was on yesterday. Some of the visitors who took part in the spectacle which was witnessed by a crowd of 125,000 in Soldiers' field on Saturday night, lingered to spend Sunday in Chicago, but the majority were on their way home during the day yesterday.

This third of the annual series of festivals sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE surpassed its predecessors in many respects, thanks to improvements indicated by the former events. Each of the spectators in the vast stadium got priceless color and thrill and individual enjoyment for the 25 cent admission fee. The volume of the applause testified to that.

The vast crowd had a part in the performance. The community singing provided the opportunity for harmony from the sidelines, and the audience set to with a will to make the welkin ring, all eyes on the illuminated baton of the leader in the north end of the field.

Every phase of the festival had its proponents in the audience, from the single voices of the winning soloists to the 500 little ballet dancers tripping to the strains of the "Beautiful Blue Danube," the 2,000 Negro spiritual singers, or the mighty chorus of 5,000 voices lifted in Handel's "Hallelujah" chorus. And every one vociferated with voice and hands to keep John Burdette, the amazing Negro singer, at the microphone and his tremendous voice booming out the strains of "Ol' Man River."

The weather man contributed his part to promote the success of the affair, for the evening air was "soft" and the sky clear and starry as the finale of melody and pyrotechnics brought the third Chicagoland Music festival to an end.

AUTO SHOP HELD UP.

BAINS TO LEARN FATE IN BANK CASE THIS WEEK

Verdict Is Expected Before Friday.

The fate of John Bain, former plumber who rose to head a chain of 12 south side banks, his sons, John H. and Robert A. Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, all of whom are charged with criminal conspiracy as a result of the failure of the banks, is expected to be known this week.

This was the indication yesterday as attorneys for the state and the defense prepared their final arguments, which will begin at 10 o'clock this morning before Superior Judge John M. O'Connor. The judge is hearing the case without a jury.

Decision by Friday.

Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber and his assistant, Harold M. Keele, said they expected Judge O'Connor might make his final decision known on Wednesday evening after the arguments are concluded. Defense Attorney Francis X. Busch, however, pointed out that legal points raised in the arguments may delay the decision for another 24 hours. He said that he expected the ruling by Friday morning at the latest.

Immediately after the hearing of evidence was concluded last Friday Judge O'Connor informed Prosecutor Raber and Attorney Busch that they might have a day and a half each for their final arugments. Yesterday, Mr. Raber said he would make the opening recital of the state's position and would deal with a transaction concerning which Judge O'Connor has asked that he be given more detailed information.

Calls It a $40,000 Steal.

This deal Prosecutor Raber has termed the "$40,000 steal," and he has charged that from this source Bain provided for a defense found during the last two weeks before his banks crashed.

In order to allow the defense time to prepare to reply to his accusations, the prosecutor said, Assistant State's Attorney Keele will make the general argument for the state outlining all the evidence. Following Attorney Keele's speech Attorney Busch will answer.

Milkman Finds New Born Baby on Hospital Steps

John Sock, a milkman, was carrying a case of bottles into Alexian Brothers' hospital early yesterday when he heard a wail from a shoebox on the doorstep. He found a 4½ pound baby boy, only a few hours old.

Hospital authorities cared for the child and later took him to St. Vincent's orphanage.

OFFICIALS STUDY PLAN FOR A NEW NORTH SIDE BEACH

The Lincoln park board will hold a hearing in the next few days for property owners along Oak street beach. The erection of bath houses on this beach has been asked by persons in the 42d and 43d wards but the proposal has been blocked by the riparian rights settlement by which the park gained control of the shore line.

Park officials are now investigating the plan offered last week by Mrs. Jennie L. Purvin, chairman of the committee on bathing beaches for the Woman's City club. Mrs. Purvin suggested that the shore line between North and Fullerton avenues be formed into a new beach with complete facilities to attract bathers from the Oak street area.

According to Mrs. Purvin, past efforts to provide conveniences at Oak street beach have always proved fruitless because of the riparian rights settlements.

The first agreement was made on Jan. 11, 1884. It was signed by George P. A. Healy, Caroline McGragg, L. W. Waggy, Potter Palmer, Fanny G. Gilmore, Julia B. Taylor, C. H. Cowper, Samuel Johnston and A. J. Firlin.

Law Student Loses Life Swimming in Honey Lake

Ray Nolan, 26 years old, of Joliet, a law school student and former athlete, lost his life yesterday while swimming in Honey lake at the Biltmore Country club, north of Barrington. Coroner John L. Taylor of Lake county will conduct an examination today to determine whether heart disease or drowning caused death. Nolan, an expert swimmer, sank immediately after a dive. Several friends recovered his body. Alex Eschner, 33 years old, 4416 Oakdale avenue, was drowned yesterday when he fell out of a motor boat at Pistakee bay in Lake county.

Identify Chicago Pair in Ohio Bank Robbery

Eugene Romanio, 24 years old, 1228 West Austin avenue, and his brother, James, 26 years old, of 826 Orleans street, were identified yesterday at the detective bureau showup as two of the three bandits who took $2,400 on July 23, in a holdup of the Hamler State bank, Hamler, O. The identifications were made by J. W. Panning, cashier of the bank, and his assistant, E. W. Jackman. Witnesses of the holdup took the Illinois license number of an automobile in which the robbers fled after the robbery and it was traced to Eugene Romanio.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MR. CURTIS REWRITES MR. HOOVER.

Vice President Charles Curtis in making his acceptance speech at Topeka said to his Kansas neighbors: "I am opposed to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment." President Hoover making his acceptance speech had said: "I cannot consent to a continuance of this régime." The two candidates are running mates on the same ticket, but they are poles apart on one of the principal questions of the campaign. To confuse the confusion further there is nothing on the subject in the party platform to indicate that one is regular and the other a rebel.

The platform boiled down merely says that a modification resolution should be submitted by congress to the people of the states represented in conventions assembled for the specific and sole purpose of voting the resolution up or down. If the required number vote for modification they can have it subject to conditions laid down for a substitute amendment providing for a continuance of federal supervision in prohibition states and for federal prohibition of the saloon in all of them, wet or dry.

In other words, the Republican convention tried to wash the question out by washing its hands of it, to the indignation of Republicans who wanted something sincere and honest out of their party. Mr. Hoover's speech and his unexpected declaration of a position for himself gave the affair a better color, but it was apparent then that it was the candidate speaking. He personally was on record. So far as he could he put some life in the dried bones.

The opportunity is here for the Democrats to point to a frameup, but it seems probable that Mr. Hoover spoke his mind and Mr. Curtis doddered in with the expectable Kansas idea. Ordinarily a party would not take its position from its candidate for Vice President, but a party which had a respectable purpose would not have had a candidate for Vice President taking issue with the candidate for President. If he did so he would declare a vacancy in the second place on the ticket, but the Republican management is in no position to require loyalty of a candidate in a question in which it confesses no convictions for itself.

It is more apparent than ever that the eighteenth amendment is a question in the congressional district elections. The action of the Democratic house of representatives in refusing to carry out the immediate beer pledge of the Democratic convention was evidence of that and evidence goes further. It is a personal question in each district. The opponents of national prohibition must elect a congress which reflects the opinions of the American people on Volstead.

TAXLESS TOWNS.

Something like the breath of Eden arises from the news item that Oklahoma towns are taxless. Not all; but eighty-three are in this blissful state and the Public Ownership league says it is because they run their utilities. But now comes a citizen of Oklahoma City, who has a different tale to tell. Writing to the Times of New York, he says the claim is questionable, since of the eighty-three but 17 have municipal electric plants, 18 have electrical distribution purchased from utility companies, only 2 have municipal gas service, only one has municipal gas and electric service, and one has both municipal and company electric service, while 42 have no municipal utility except water.

How comes the pleasing fiscal state of these cities? Not from the gains of public ownership but from "retrenchment of expenditures," Franchise taxes, he reports, occupation taxes, traffic and other fines and miscellaneous sources of revenue supply their revenue. As for tax levies and utility service rates, they are, he asserts, lower in Oklahoma towns with utility company service than with municipal utilities.

Economy lacks the glow of socialistic theory, but it works better.

CAPT. MOLLISON'S FEAT.

Capt. Mollison has written his name for all time in the records of flying by being the first to fly alone from east to west across the Atlantic. As a sporting event his stunt was superb. What it establishes for the advancement of the science and art of aviation we leave for experts to decide. As an unprofessional observer we are impressed with the fact that though Capt. Mollison is credited with a solo flight he carried a very important passenger, and that was Lady Luck.

This is no disparagement of Capt. Mollison, whose courage and skill are splendid, but if aviation experiment is to be serious in the sense of an effort to learn what is practicable, we cannot overlook the fact that favoring winds and weather are not to be counted upon very often in the east to west course. The movement of the winds is in the main from the vast expanse of the land area of North America over the sea to Europe, and this movement is often violent. Capt. Mollison caught the fierce guardians of the western shore off guard and slipped through, but does that prove anything important as a basis for the navigation of the air in this part of the world? Perhaps it does, but men have gone over Niagara falls or through the rapids and lived to tell the tale without adding much to nautical knowledge. The Puss motor, as Capt. Mollison declares and has demonstrated, "can master the Atlantic"—when the Atlantic is least itself.

No doubt aviation science will know how to allow for all that and make use of what is usable in Capt. Mollison's experiment. Meanwhile we salute a brave man and a great flyer. He has given an inspiring demonstration of character, and that may be worth more than the testing of a machine. It is the testing of the highest of machines.

THE POSTOFFICE DEFICIT.

A reader whose letter was published the other day in the Voice of the People intimated that THE TRIBUNE, in discussing possible economies in federal administration, had neglected the possibility of increasing the charges for second class mail. That service, he said, was operated at a loss to the government and the deficit had to be met from general taxation. One way to reduce taxes, he said, was to increase the second class postal rates to wipe out the deficit, which he placed at some 96 million dollars.

When the subject of second class rates was under consideration in the last congress a considerable number of newspapers did join in an attempt to prevent any substantial increase. THE TRIBUNE was not among them. On the contrary, the position of this newspaper was stated in an editorial on May 24 to be that THE TRIBUNE "wants no favors at the expense of other taxpayers and other users of the mails."

Thereupon congress increased the second class rates. So far as THE TRIBUNE is concerned, its postal bill under the new rates is about 20 per cent higher than under the old ones.

In addition it might be noted that under the old law postal charges constituted a fraction more than 15 per cent of the total delivery costs of THE TRIBUNE. Under the new law and in view of generally declining costs in other directions, it seems fair to estimate that the postoffice share of the total delivery costs will be 20 per cent or more.

Relatively few of the papers placed in the mails are delivered by the letter carriers. The papers are delivered by THE TRIBUNE to the mail cars in the railroad stations and are picked up on the station platforms at their destinations by the local dealers. The service of the postoffice department and its employés is pretty largely confined to dropping the bundles off at the appropriate station.

As the mail cars and the clerks aboard them are required in any event for first class mail, it can be plausibly argued that anything the government collects on second class matter is velvet. But, whether that view is taken or not, it must be obvious that a point can be reached where second class rates will be so high that the postoffice will lose business. The publisher will find it more profitable to discontinue his mail service to deliver the papers himself over a wider area or intrust the delivery to an agency which charges less than the postoffice does. If second class rates are hoisted too far the government may find that it has a larger postal deficit on its books than it had before the rates were raised.

As was said in the previous editorial, the question ought to be decided by unbiased accountants. Second class matter ought not to be carried at a loss or a profit. It ought to pay its own way. That was and is THE TRIBUNE'S position. If second class rates were not included among the possible economies it was because this newspaper has no reason to think, from its own experience, that the government today is being underpaid for the service the postoffice renders.

REAL WAGES IN THE PROLETARIAN UTOPIA.

Findings of an elaborate study of wages of industrial workers in the U. S. S. R. are reported in the Manchester Guardian. The study was made by the Birmingham bureau of research, and reveals, among other significant facts, that the standard of living of industrial workers in bolshevik Russia is "still substantially lower than that of workers in western Europe and America." The real wage of a worker in London is more than twice that of a corresponding worker in Moscow.

Since the revolution the standard of living of the average industrial worker has risen considerably above that of the peasant, but despite the privileged position occupied by the industrial workers under the soviet rule, and "despite the fact that workers in capitalist countries are not supposed to command a similar position, the standard of material well being attained by the former does not compare favorably with that enjoyed by the latter." A comparison with the American standard would show a still greater difference.

The course of wages since the revolution throws some suggestive light upon the policy of contract remuneration as compared with compulsion. During the first stage of policy of integral communism wages decreased. With a return to the system of private contracts between employers and employés they rose to and exceeded the pre-war level. With the beginning of the five year plan, which involved a high degree of compulsory accumulation, this increase ceased and changed into a decrease, especially marked from 1930 onward."

The memorandum remarks that "three years of integral communism had shown that the social obligatory system of labor and the dependence upon state rations had destroyed in the workers the incentive to increase their output."

Compulsion has not worked even in the first phase of the communist régime, when it has had the support of a maximum of revolutionary fervor and hope. It will work less and less well as this influence is weakened by experience and disillusionment. But communism cannot exist without compulsion.

Editorial of the Day

WHEN ROOSEVELT IS PRESIDENT.

[New York Sun.]

And the experts have reported on production costs of everything everywhere,

And the tariff has been balanced so delicately that all foreign countries can market their goods profitably in America,

And no American industry will be affected by this successful competition,

And living standards for American workmen will remain high, despite the huge importation of foreign made commodities,

And our war debtors have drawn down the profit of ten billions on the sale of a hundred billions of goods,

Then the liquidation of the war debts will be "tied in" with this rehabilitation of European manufactures.

For Candidate Roosevelt says the debts are "tied in" with his proposed lowering of the tariff, and

When this miracle has been worked we'll need the eleven billion more than we do now.

H. M. S. PINAFORE, U. S. A. VERSION

(Suggested by United States Naval academy model farm.)

When I was a plebe I served a spell
As a stable boy to Bossie and Nell.
I filled their mangers and made their beds
I polished their horns so tirelessly
That now I am an admiral of our great nav-ee.
I polished their horns so tirelessly
That now I am an admiral of our great nav-ee.

In my second year I learned to milk
I took great pride in my smallest chore
And I drilled all my bossies in squads of four.
And I drilled those bossies so thoroughly
That now I am an admiral of our great nav-ee.
And I drilled those bossies so thoroughly
That now I am an admiral of our great nav-ee.

My third year promotion—none too soon—
I was placed in charge of a cow platoon.
They knew me now as a man of might
And they gave their all with their milk at night.
And I taught them to give so full and free
That now I am an admiral of our great nav-ee.
And I taught them to give so full and free
That now I am an admiral of our great nav-ee.

In my final term—ah, joy complete!—
I assumed command of the bovine fleet.
The bossies all dashed to obey my will
And my word was the law over field and hill.
With my background, then, how could I be
Aught but an admiral of our great nav-ee?
With my background, then, how could I be
Aught but an admiral of our great nav-ee?

MARKET LETTER.

Corrective reactions alternated with renewed advances on the bourse last week to give firmer foundation to the erstwhile footsore and purse-weary traders working for a rise. While the future, perhaps, is still unfathomable, opportunity may knock but once. At this stage, however, it requires rare discernment to determine whether opportunity presents a knock or a boost. Continued discretion, with only occasional recklessness, may prove the better part of valor.

Volume fell off in both New York and local marts. This indicated that the pace was too fast. One of the local leaders was Union Carbide, highly carboned, but with chemical properties to drench too sudden a flare-up. Sally Frocks, once embarrassingly high and leaving little for imagination, remains conservatively low. Bendix Aviation, with groundwork for a sustained rise, has brake attachments for safety. Cord becomes slack or taut with the gyrations of Auburn, of which its treasury holds a long line. Libby-McNeill was picked up sparingly by those who canned it at higher figures. Pines Winterfront still has the shutters on.

Commonwealth Edison and Public Service found investors eager to accept a higher bond load, which will be reflected in earnings when a peak load develops. In fact, some of the better utilities have ceased to be "futilities." There is the danger, however, of radical legislators attempting to run this business like that of the railroads, with resultant wrecks. Getting the government entirely out of business would leave more taxpayers in business.

The Wake-Line graph of various activities shows one local baseball team 40 per cent below normal and the other active and higher; pugilism, one heavyweight champion below normal; racing, seventy-seven winners below expectations, and golf only 37 strokes above par. Pingpong returns and rallies are fairly satisfactory. From this summarization, it appears unwise to risk an anticipated salary raise on the next turn of the market.

MALARIA HOUSES.

ALL of us who live where there is, or has been, much malaria know the common belief to be that malaria is worse in certain neighborhoods than in others. Some vicinities have a reputation for malignant malaria, and others for great prevalence, but with no exceptional severity, and still others have the evil reputation of having both quantity and quality.

People that live nearby think malaria comes to them from certain directions. Trees are planted as breaks on the malaria side in order to keep malaria off.

One of the great fights in the early days of the Panama canal building period was as to whether homes should be screened on all sides or only on the swamp side.

There was considerable truth mixed in with the error of these common opinions. We know that no country is evenly malarial; that certain foci serve as malaria breeding places; that in some of these foci the disease is more malignant than in others. For instance, it is known that in the state of Illinois there are about twenty malarial foci and that these are responsible for about all the malaria there is in that state. The health department can point out about twenty neighborhoods and certain ponds, lakes, creeks, and marshes therein that furnish the state with all the malaria it has.

Another of these common notions is that there are certain houses that are infested with malaria; that people who sleep in these houses, or even visit them, are liable to become infected. This common notion also has considerable truth in it. Infected mosquitoes are liable to hang around the houses in which they have fed. The scientist has opposed this opinion because he says a female full of blood goes out to find water in which to deposit her eggs. He, too, is partly right. But the mosquito is apt to hang around long enough to infect one or two people before she looks for water. Some find water in the house in which they have fed to lay.

And, finally, a recent discovery is that old females beyond the egg laying urge live on for a while, feeding whenever they get a chance. These old ladies like to get in a habited house and stay there. Finally, if a mosquito sickens after feeding she stays in the house where she fed.

The practical side of this means that screening is very important in the control of malaria. Poor screening is far better than none, provided the people in a house will spend a short time daily in killing mosquitoes. Mosquitoes that have fed at night are heavy, slow, and easily killed the next morning.

Breeding places near houses should be drained. Shrubbery and trees around a house make it more accessible to mosquitoes. Clayton Lane thinks that one reason primitive people escape malaria is because they have no chimneys in their houses. The house was full of smoke and mosquitoes kept away. The invention of chimneys spread malaria over the civilized world. It made houses more tolerable for mosquitoes. When the chimney was not in use it was a royal highway for mosquitoes. This means that in screening a house the fireplace must not be overlooked.

GAS NOT THE CAUSE.

S. I. D. writes: My husband has a thick, yellowish discharge from his nose, which discharge has a rather obnoxious odor. These attacks come on ever so often and last half an hour or more, and are frequently accompanied by sneezing. He has had X-rays of his sinus and all kinds of electric and vacuum treatments, but without results. The doctors do not seem to find any polypi.

1. Do you think this could be the effect of being gassed during the war?
2. Is there any cure?

REPLY.

1. This may be ozena. If nothing more, he has infected sinuses. Being gassed during the war is probably not the cause.
2. Treatment should be local. Ionization is worth trying. Sinus trouble is hard to cure. Ozena is more so.

STRAIGHTENED TEETH.

Mrs. H. H. writes: I had my teeth straightened when I was 31 years old. There is no necessity for wearing a brace either. I have a narrow jaw and large teeth, which caused my two front teeth to overlap and my eyeteeth to stick out like horns. I am repaid a thousandfold, for I can laugh and smile and show my big white teeth, even though I am minus two of them on top. At my age the teeth were loosened in their sockets quite a bit, but chewing hard crusts of bread and other tough foods has tightened them.

REPLY.

The job is easier when it is undertaken before fifteen years of age. If it is started too early it may need to be redone; if too late, the work is more difficult and the results are less certain.

DIABETES.

Mrs. E. writes:

1. What are the cause and symptoms of diabetes?
2. Is a craving for salt and sugar a symptom?
3. Is eating about ¼ teaspoonful of salt a day, besides what is in the food, injurious to health?

REPLY.

1. Among the causes are: Inheritance, obesity, overeating, eating too much sugar and starch. Among the symptoms are: Excessive hunger and thirst, too much urine of high specific gravity and containing sugar too much blood sugar.
2. No.
3. Yes.

THROUGH GROWING.

J. B. F. writes:

1. I am 22 years old and 5 feet 2 inches tall. Will I grow any more?
2. Is there any way possible that you know as to how I can grow a couple of inches taller without any physical harm?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. There is none.

CITIZENSHIP.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 14.—[Friend of the People.]—A. was born in England. When she was 7 years of age she came to the United States with her parents. A.'s mother became a citizen of the United States in 1923. A.'s parents became estranged. A. married a citizen of the United States in 1929 while she was still a minor. A.'s father is still an alien. What is the status of A. as regards citizenship? L. A. M.

If A.'s mother became naturalized before A. reached the age of 21 she became a citizen through the naturalization of the mother. If A. did not become a citizen as indicated she may file an application for final papers by virtue of her marriage to a citizen.

TENANTS IN COMMON.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some years ago I invested $2,500 in a first mortgage. This mortgage called for $3,000 and the lawyer through whom I purchased same put in the remaining $500. Since then there has been a foreclosure and now a deed conveys the property to both of us. The deed does not specify the amounts each one contributed, but reads, "tenants in common." I have been told that this deed is not worded correctly and that (as it now stands) it gives each one an equal share, but the lawyer refuses to make any change. 1. Please tell me whether it is worded properly and what "tenants in common" means. 2. If it is wrong what can I do to have same changed? A. C.

1. Obviously the deed in itself as it stands does not show the fact that your interest is larger than his.
2. One course would be to insist on a physical division of the property. Another would be to offer him a mortgage for the amount of his interest in exchange for a quitclaim from him to you. Such a situation must be worked out by negotiation. The solution depends on what the parties desire to accomplish.

FAMILY POSSESSIONS.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a married man dispose of his furniture which he has paid for without first consulting his wife? 2. Is he compelled to give her half of what he realizes? 3. If the man desires to move must he have consent of his wife?

R. Z. H.

1. Yes, but if this involves incapacitating him from offering his wife a reasonable home it might entitle her to separate maintenance or entitle her to divorce.
2. No.
3. In general a wife is legally obliged to follow her husband to any reasonable home that he offers.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 22, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson and the unions on the one hand and the railroads on the other are deadlocked tonight on the railway wage dispute. Events within the next 48 hours, it is expected, will determine whether there is to be a general railroad strike on the 225 transportation lines in the country. There remains the feeling that in the end the roads, pressed to the limit, will submit to the President's dictum. He called the executives together at the White House and made an appeal that was as impressive as he could make it to accept the eight hour settlement plan. The railway officials left without expressing any opinions and after a conference among themselves issued a public statement which voices objections to the terms proposed by the President, but does not reject them. The executives contend that public opinion will indorse their position on the principle of arbitration.

CHICAGO.—Wheat reached new high levels for the crop, due to bullish foreign news, and September closed at $1.50¼. Corn closed at 86½ cents and oats at 46 cents.

CHICAGO.—Patrick A. Valentine, for many years a leading figure in Chicago business and social life, died in Danforth lodge, the Valentine country house, in Oconomowoc, Wis., at the age of 55, of Bright's disease, with which he had been ill for five months. Mrs. Valentine was at his bedside. Mr. Valentine was born in 1861 at Forres, Scotland, and came to the United States as a boy. He found employment with a firm on the Board of Trade and soon showed such aptitude for the business that he was taken into the company. His operations attracted the attention of P. D. Armour and he was invited to take employment with the big concern in which he finally became confidential adviser and the most trusted employé. He was a warm friend of P. D. Armour Jr., and when the latter died he took over the management of the estate of the widow, who had been Miss May Lester. Their business relation brought them together frequently and they were married in New York on March 8, 1902.

LONDON.—The great offensive opened by the allies on Aug. 18 on the Saloniki front is developing, but no decisive action has been fought. The British and French have crossed the Struma, pushing northeastward toward the Bulgarian frontier. At the same time the Serbians, who opened a drive for Monastir, report the capture of Bulgarian first line trenches. On the extreme left, however, immediately south of Monastir, they have suffered a reverse and have evacuated the Greek town of Banica. In the center at the mouth of the great valley of the Vardar, the main highway through Serbia, violent artillery action is in progress. Reports from Saloniki say that Italian troops have landed there and will join the general offensive.

LONDON.—Reports from British and French sources chronicle only minor actions during the day on the western front. This halt in the offensive is interpreted as a lull before the storm and it is believed the allies are preparing the way for a heavy attack on the remaining German positions in the Somme region.

PETROGRAD.—The Russians are pushing forward vigorously through two of the Carpathian passes which lead to Hungary. The war office reported gains in the pass east of the Korosmezo region leading south from Kuty. The capture of Jablonitza and Pereskul on the Cheremosh river, which forms the boundary between Galicia and Bukowina, is announced.

CHICAGO.—The Rev. Dominick Egan, for thirty years pastor of St. Stephen's Roman Catholic church, died at Mercy hospital at the age of 75.

CHICAGO.—The mercury climbed to 97 degrees at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, but the weather man promised again that it will be cooler today and "much cooler" tonight. Three more drownings were reported.

STUDENTS AT THE COAL MINES.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—As a member of the University of Chicago faculty group advising the Midwest College committee for investigation and relief of Illinois coal miners, I should like to correct a false impression conveyed by THE TRIBUNE'S account of Aug. 17. This committee is nonpartisan in nature and was organized exclusively for relief and investigation. It was proceeding in a lawful and orderly fashion to Benton, Ill., to distribute a ton of foodstuffs and clothing among destitute miners when it was stopped Monday evening at Mount Vernon by deputized gunmen who threatened its members with arrest or shooting if they crossed the county line.

The members had no objection whatever to "rough verbal treatment," and no complaints about "being forced to spend Monday night in the open air of a tourist camp." They had planned to spend the night outdoors. What they do object to most emphatically is the unlawful armed blockade maintained around Franklin county by the so-called forces of "law and order." These forces appear to be determined to prevent charity or investigation by impartial outsiders. One murder has already occurred in Benton and more violence is in prospect—not, be it noted, by any acts of miners or students, but by action of the thugs employed by mine operators and sheriffs to prevent peaceful picketing and to starve and terrorize the miners into submission.

In view of THE TRIBUNE'S apprehension over Red influences at universities, I beg leave to point out that there is no more effective way of converting student investigators into violent revolutionists than to treat them as the Midwest College committee expedition was treated. Students who departed in a spirit of open minded investigation and with commendable charitable intentions have returned bitterly resenting the lawless violence of which they [and the miners] are victims. I would respectfully suggest that if THE TRIBUNE wishes to contribute to a reverential attitude in academic circles toward the existing social order it should urge a cessation of official terrorism in southern Illinois and the discontinuance of blockade measures contrary to constitutional guarantees of civil rights and to every consideration of equity and justice.

THE CULT OF THE INCOMPETENT.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—I'm glad to see that some one plans to go into court to force the Lincoln park board to let every one—including duffers—use the new golf course.

That golf course is on public property. It was built with public money—which included some of mine—and I think I have a constitutional right to play on it, even if I do miss the ball a couple of times.

I realize that a duffer gets in the way of a good player. But if good players are so impatient to get going, why can't they play on a private course? What's public ought to be public. Anyway, isn't a golfer supposed to be a sportsman? And is it sportsmanship to bar and embarrass a fellow golfer, no matter how poor?

I admit being a duffer, but who isn't besides Bobby Jones? And, anyway, to whom would the makers of golf balls and clubs sell their stuff if not to us duffers? HAL CLOT.

TEXAS AND MR. P.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Texas, identified as an apostate in 1928, now asks for national support of its favorite son, John N. Garner. He is said to be qualified to perform the office of Vice President, and that may be an accurate statement. But why should I concern myself with his qualifications? Did Texas weigh the qualifications of Alfred E. Smith in the last presidential election? H. P.

KEEP YOUR SHIRT ON.

Centralia, Ill., Aug. 10.—Your editorial in today's TRIBUNE which has reference to Arthur Sears Henning's recent article which so plainly showed up the government's interference with agriculture at Annapolis is being read today by every railroad employé who takes your paper, and, no doubt, they are thinking the same thing I am as to why you take such an outstanding position against the government in business with the one exception, and that is of transportation.

You use a lot of space criticizing government in business on your editorial page; you send writers [the peer of them being, in my opinion, Mr. Henning] to points to secure first hand data on government in business, and for fear you might overlook sending him to South Bend, Ind., on Aug. 22, where this matter will be brought before the Shannon investigating committee, I refresh your memory on this.

Of course, you will find some place else to send him, because he might say something that would be embarrassing to you and the policy of your paper due to the fact that you so gratuitously furnished one of your warehouses to the Inland Waterway corporation, which, of course, in your viewpoint, is not government in business.

It is a shame that a paper that enjoys the wide circulation of THE TRIBUNE will deny its readers the privilege of reading Arthur Sears Henning's description of what will take place at the meeting of this congressional committee in South Bend, Ind., Aug. 22, 1932.

A SIGHTLESS TRAVELER.

Hill City, Minn., Aug. 14.—As Chicago can boast of being the largest railway center in the world, I think it is only fitting that I should write to this city and tell of its wonderful railway system.

Recently I made a trip from Minneapolis to Boston alone. As I am without sight I could never have made this trip successfully had it not been for the agents, conductors, and porters and matrons. I was in wonderful hands the minute I boarded the train in Minneapolis. Also on my return trip to Minneapolis. No amount of praise can half repay these people for what they have done for me. They all made my journey as pleasant as any one could possibly ask for. And I felt as safe in their hands as I do when surrounded by those I know and love.

We hear so much of Chicago's gangland, but we seldom if ever hear of the good in Chicago. I thought of that while waiting for my train. All the loving attention that was given to me made me think how much nicer it would be if just a little more goodness were found in people. GERTRUDE ARENDS,

A TAX BILL.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Recently I received a notice of judgment against me by the city for the amount of $1,013.04 for personal property tax for 1929. I am a ladies' tailor, assisted by my wife, and have been a citizen of Chicago for twenty years. Until a few years ago I made a living, and always paid my taxes, personal and property, and the most I ever paid for personal property tax was $10. At present I am unable to make a living, and the house I have at 1119 South Kedzie avenue, where I live and have my shop, is mortgaged. My shop and furniture is worth about $200 to me, and to another it would be worth far less. I have a Nash car of 1925 make, worth about $50. Otherwise, I have no assets whatsoever.

How is it possible for the city to assess me the amount of $1,013.04 on my personal property? It almost seems like some unrealistic farce, but to me it is tragic to try and make a living and to be taxed such amounts.

ASSYRIANS ASK RIGHT TO RULE SELVES IN IRAQ

New Rebellion Looms; Mountaineers Angry.

BY ERNEST MAIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAGDAD, Iraq, Aug. 21.—The disposition of the Assyrian minority, volatile and unsettled under the British mandate, still will be unsolved when Iraq achieves its independence next month and becomes a member of the league of nations. The recent revolt of Sheikh Ahmed of Barzan against Iraq and the general unrest of Assyrian elements in Iraq, Turkey, and Persia still threaten the peace of northern Arabia and Kurdistan.

Sheikh Ahmed crossed the Turkish border and surrendered, but there still remains a large body of armed Assyrians. They fought with the allies against the Turks in the Mesopotamian campaign during the world war, and have supplied the British with troops during the ten year mandate.

Refuse to Fight Tribes.

Recently Assyrian troops refused to fight for Iraq against the Kurdistan tribes. The British were forced to bring troops from Egypt in planes to replace them. Other British reënforcements followed. The Assyrian troops concentrated at Mosul, Dobuk, Zakho, Amadia, and Simel.

The Assyrians are mountain people and a compact Christian group under the youthful patriarch, Mar Shimun, but they are not a political or economic unity. They want home rule within Iraq.

Their troubles arise from the encouragement of nationalism after the war. Iraq, which is overwhelmingly Mohammedan, has pledged that it will respect their racial and religious rights and will grant equality in economic matters. But the Assyrians, viewing Iraq's activities against the mountaineers, are suspicious.

It is now apparent, Assyrians argue, that the severance of their territory from Turkish domination after the war was not a benevolent action on the part of the league. Their ancient home still is on the Turkish side of the frontier, but the Turks will not have them.

Barred from Persia.

There is suitable mountain land for them in Persia, but the last thing Riza Khan, the shah, wants is to see the Assyrians in the Persian hills, especially with their armed veterans.

With Turkey and Persia closed to them, only Iraq is left. The land they want is in Kurdistan, but the government has no land to give them unless they take it from the Kurds, which would cause great trouble.

The Assyrians were not content with the minorities guarantees which the league imposed on the British mandate, nor will they be with a similar status under Iraq. They wish to be left relatively independent in northern Iraq and Kurdistan under the protection of the league.

ASSYRIANS PROTEST.

"It is inconceivable that nations traditionally hostile and at variance in cultural aspects can be successfully assimilated, or even amalgamated, within a period of little more than a decade," said M. Oshana of Chicago, president of the Assyrian National League of America.

"Since the recognition of Iraq as a British mandate in 1924, Iraq and British officials have concentrated their efforts in compelling Assyrian minorities to accept absolute Iraq dominance.

"In spite of magnanimous promises, the Christian Assyrian sees in the rule of Iraq the oppression and religious intolerance that have marked the history of Moslem dominance. The Assyro-Iraq problem will continue to be one of aggravation just as long as people of the same racial stock are territorially divided between the three hostile and variously administered states of Iraq, Turkey and Persia."

Assyrians Ask Own Rule in Iraq

Shaded portion of Iraq on map shows area where Assyrian minority are forced to live. The Assyrians are demanding home rule in Iraq, which becomes independent and a member of the league of nations next month. Turkey has refused to permit the Assyrians to move into a portion of Kurdistan (also shaded) which they claim as a homeland.

BRITISH ABANDON TRADITION NOT TO PUT TAX ON FOOD

Impose 6 Cent Duty on Foreign Wheat.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 21.—The first official summaries of the trade agreements signed at the British imperial conference, which closed here yesterday, were made public tonight. They revealed that Great Britain had bowed to Canada and agreed to tax foreign wheat 6 cents a bushel—thus giving the dominions that margin of price preference over the United States and other grain growing countries. Britain also agreed to tax foreign copper 4 cents a pound.

Both wheat and copper figure largely in the exports of the United States and the preferences are expected to result in cuts of considerable size in American trade.

Ten accords were announced. They are those the United Kingdom has made with Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Newfoundland, southern Rhodesia, and India and the three that Canada has framed with the Irish Free State, South Africa, and southern Rhodesia.

Two Pacts Missing.

Two memoranda are missing. They are those covering the arrangements which South Africa has made with New Zealand and the Irish Free State. They will be announced later.

The new trade agreements will go into effect as soon as they are ratified by the parliaments of the United Kingdom and the dominions. The twelve trade pacts are, in a sense, a compromise between the free trade and the recently adopted low competitive tariff policy of the United Kingdom on the one hand and the high protective tariff practices of the dominions, particularly Canada, on the other.

Great Britain has surrendered her chief economic weapon against the dominions—the right to impose upon imports from the dominions after next November the duties against foreign goods as provided under the new British tariff policy. In other words, Great Britain will remain a free market for all natural products of the dominions.

Then, too, the United Kingdom has abandoned the tradition against tariffs on food products, which dates back to the days of Richard Cobden and the corn law repeal.

Duties on Dairy Products.

Dairy products, eggs, poultry, pork products, apples and pears grown in Canada, Australia, and New Zealand will have new advantages as the result of duties to be imposed on such food stuffs now largely supplied by Denmark and other European countries. New Zealand and Australia will benefit particularly by the British agreement to restrict or tax foreign imports of mutton, lamb, and beef.

India wins a greater preference than she now has on such products as carpets, rugs, tanned hides, jute manufactures, and sandalwood oil.

In return, the dominions agree to give new preferences to the manufactured goods of Great Britain. In many cases they will be put on the free list while the dominions continue to impose tariffs on similar goods from foreign countries.

It is declared that the Canadian schedule contains 220 items on which new or increased preferences will be granted to the mother country. These include iron and steel products. There will also be a revision of the textile duties, chiefly in linens and higher qualities of cottons and woolens. Chemicals, glass, toilet goods, tableware, and leather are also included.

DISCOVER HAVANA'S MILK IS SYNTHETIC; FIVE MAKERS JAILED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 21.—The mysterious illness of 25 patients, including five minors, in Havana hospitals today resulted in a discovery by secret service men that the largest milk plant in Cuba has been "making milk" chemically and selling it wholesale throughout the city as fresh and pasteurized. The synthetic milk was found to be dangerously toxic.

Juan Antonio Lopez Arrendondo, once a $20 a month waiter, was arrested. He is said to have made $2,000,000 from the milk plant. An offer to post $50,000 bail was refused. Five other partners were arrested. It was revealed that the defendants had been able to carry on the business for six years and also to evade various taxes exceeding $100,000 by bribing certain sanitation and municipal officials. The latter are facing criminal charges.

The plant had a monopoly on the wholesale milk business here, supplying milk dealers, government asylums, clinics, hospitals, and charity institutions. Physicians said today that the chemical milk was undoubtedly the cause of an alarming increase in child mortalities due to intestinal infections. Twenty-five thousand gallons of milk were confiscated by sanitation officials.

800 Lb. Tuna Fish Caught Off Massachusetts Coast

Revere, Mass, Aug. 21.—(AP)—A tuna fish, estimated to weigh in excess of 800 pounds and the first of its kind captured in this vicinity within local memory, was brought to shore today by Charles Smith, 27, a Beachmont fisherman. Smith secured his prey only after a struggle lasting nearly three hours. He first sighted the fish from his 35 foot power boat about five miles at sea. A harpoon sank into the fish's body close to the upper dorsal fin and the battle began. It was believed the tuna followed a late school of mackerel to northern waters.

TAXATION FORCES ANOTHER DUKE TO SELL PROPERTY

Westminster Peer Orders London Tract Sold.

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Another British ducal family is selling out. The duke of Westminster has ordered part of his valuable and historic Grosvenor property in the heart of London's aristocratic section to be sold. With the transfer of these lands one of the biggest land owners of Belgravia will have disappeared.

The duke has large tracts of land in Cheshire, and besides this some property in Normandy, whence his family came in 1066. His chief holdings, however, are in Africa.

The London real estate which he has ordered sold produced an income which was assessed at the rate of $5 a minute before the war, amasing the staggering yearly total of $2,628,000. Upkeep amounted to $700,000, so that the annual income reached nearly $2,000,000. Now, however, taxation and the threat of death duties have combined with an odd circumstance to force the sale. The duke of Westminster has four duchesses to support, a record in the British nobility and a drain upon his purse totalling $500,000 every ear.

Married Three Times.

He has been married three times, and divorced twice. His first two wives draw $125,000 apiece each year, besides which there is an annual payment of $250,000 to the widow of the late duke, from whom he inherited the title.

Taxation and the cost of upkeep have whittled the income off his London property to one-sixth its former dimensions. On top of this death duties on the land, if collected, would render it a dead weight on his heir, who would have no income from it whatever.

The same fate overtook the other branch of the Grosvenors, Westminster's family name, who hold the Barony of Ebury. Three Lords Ebury have died since the war, and now his relatives are almost landless. The duke plans to avoid a similar fate by settling the money obtained by the sale of London property on his cousin and heir. He has already sold many of his famous pictures, one of his yachts and his famous town house to meet the demands of taxation.

Wealth Transferred.

Although he usually spends about half of each year at the sea and the other half in Normandy, the duke of Westminster has large holdings in Kenya, which before the treaty of Versailles was German East Africa. Many members of the British nobility have transferred their wealth to the colony where taxation is much lower, and have established a miniature May fair in an area of 224,960 square miles and a naked native population of 3,000,000.

The income of the colony is about $20,000,000 annually, but it now has a tidy public debt of $77,500,000. Indian settlers there number more than 30,000, and they form the commercial community which keep the shops in Nairobi, Mombasa and Kilindini.

In the uplands of Mount Kenya the whites live an extraordinary life as it is described in London, trying to create an African Switzerland and observing all the ritual of life of a continental resort of the English countryside.

Dress While Hyenas Laugh.

The "pioneers" solemnly dress for dinner within sound of hyenas, and a small edition of the Cowes regatta has been organized and is sailed on a coast infested with sharks. Luxurious hotels have been laid out on the plan of a famous hostelry in Cairo, which is taken as the model for such structures in the tropics.

Dances are given nightly during the "season," and birds have been "laid down." This means that partridges have been imported from Britain so that the usual shooting can be enjoyed. Natives have been trained as game keepers. To finish off the arrangements, a hunt has been organized. Since there are no foxes the hunt chases theh jackal.

SPANISH REVOLT LEADER'S LIFE AT STAKE IN TRIAL

Sanjurjo Is Ordered to Face Court.

MADRID, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Gen. Jose Sanjurjo, chief of the recent monarchists rebellion against the Republic, and three of his confederates will be court martialed within 72 hours and will be threatened with the firing squad.

President Mariano Gomez of the Supreme court announced today that they would be placed on trial Tuesday or Wednesday and that Minister of Justice Alvaro Albornez planned to demand the death penalty for the defendants' part in a short lived revolt ten days ago which led to bloodshed in the streets of Madrid.

GEN. JOSE SANJURJO. [Acme Photo.]

Three Others on Trial.

On trial with Gen Sanjurjo, conqueror of Seville for a brief interval, will be Gen. Herranz, Lieut. Col. Infantes and Capt. Justo Sanjuro. Lieut. Diaz Carmona and a score of lesser army officers will be given an ordinary trial and they may receive heavy jail sentences.

Former Cabinet Minister Francisco Bergamin was selected to defend Gen. Sanjurjo and his co-conspirators were accorded competent counsel. All are in prison but are entitled to confer with their lawyers as often as is necessary.

After a consultation with Gen. Sanjurjo, Bergamin said:

"I intend to dedicate myself with all my strength to the case in order to defend Sanjurjo to the best of my ability. I would defend anybody under grave charges, whether Monarchist or Republican, because justice should be equal to all."

Lone Military Leader.

It was learned on excellent authority that the indictment characterizes Gen. Sanjurjo as the lone military leader in a rebellion against the state. It charges him with ejecting the legal authorities in Seville and replacing them with persons of subversive character. It accuses him of organizing military forces against the government and naming himself captain-general of a Spanish region.

CLEANERS' UNION OFFICIALS FACE QUIZZING TODAY

Officials of the Retail Cleaners and Dyers' union will be questioned today to determine whether grand jury action is necessary as a result of recent violence in the cleaning and dyeing industry, Assistant States Attorney Edwin C. Duffucy said yesterday.

James A. Gorman, president, A. Goldstein, secretary, and Aaron Maltz and Al Boris, business agents of the union, are to be questioned. The grand jury investigation was demanded by Attorney Martin S. Gordon, counsel for the Blue Bird Cleaners, 1032 North California avenue, one of three plants bombed last week.

Nonunion cleaners have charged that officials of Gorman's union threatened them. Maltz is alleged to have warned two nonunion cleaners that there would be trouble if they continued to patronize the Michigan Cleaners and Dyers, 1339 West 63d street.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—A model rocket zipped through the air at a speed of 400 miles an hour at a height of 3,700 feet today, exciting the admiration of experts at Osnabrueck who watched the performance.

The rocket, designed by its maker, Reinhold Killing, to carry a passenger, is over six feet long and has a diameter of fourteen feet. It is topped by wings which open automatically when the flight reaches its climax to assure a safe landing. It is loaded with a black powder which is brought to the point of explosion electrically.

Smaller models were also launched and all but two landed safely. The wings of one broke in the air because, Killing declared, he used an aluminum alloy instead of a stronger metal in this model to save money. The other exploded, he said, because it became overheated.

BOLIVIA SPEEDS MORE TROOPS TO GRAN CHACO AREA

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 21.—Bolivia has renewed the movement of troops toward the disputed Gran Chaco region. More troops were dispatched last night and early today over the Pan-American route from La Paz.

The Sixth cavalry and Twentieth infantry regiments arrived at Villazon and continued the journey immediately today by auto trucks to Villamontes, near the Chaco. The Sixth cavalry horses had already been sent ahead to Tarija.

Paraguay officially denied today that Paraguayans have retaken Fort Arce, stating that Bolivian occupation of Fort Boqueron prevents Paraguayans from reaching Arce.

Burglar Loots Attorney's Home; Knocks Out Guard

A burglar who had just left the home of Henry Bartholomay, attorney, at 1455 State parkway, with a suitcase full of loot, knocked Thomas O'Malley, a private watchman in the neighborhood, unconscious with a blackjack yesterday when O'Malley stopped and questioned him. A maid in the Bartholomay home, told police that she had heard the prowler moving about the house, and had locked herself in her room. Police will be unable to obtain a description of the loot until members of the family return today from Lake Geneva, where they were spending the week-end.

They said they specialized in stealing furniture. CHINESE LEADERS ACT TO REUNITE NATION IN CRISIS

Report Party Break Is Healed at Parley.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 21.—(AP)—China's political crisis, precipitated by the resignation of the entire Nanking government cabinet on Aug. 9, was believed nearer solution today as a result of a conference between former Premier Wang Ching-wei, Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, virtual dictator, former Finance Minister T. V. Soong, and other Nationalist leaders at the Kuling summer resort near Kiukiang.

Agreements were believed reached concerning a successor for Wang Ching-wei as president of the executive council, on matters pertaining to the north China military affairs emergency arising out of the resignation of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, former Manchurian war lord, and on the nation's fiscal affairs on which there has been much divergence of opinion.

All of the participants in the conference returned to Nanking, where an official announcement is expected soon.

Boycott Given Attention.

The seemingly reviving anti-Japanese boycott assumed larger dimensions in the public mind today as the Chinese Chamber of Commerce branded merchants active in the boycott as "traitors" and stated that it was launching an investigation. The Japanese alleged the Chinese chamber is supporting the boycott.

The last two days showed little change in the situation. Agitators continued to threaten violence against merchants unless they ceased to handle Japanese goods. The roster of Chinese dealers announcing themselves unwilling to handle Japanese merchandise was slowly but steadily growing.

Anti-Japanese agitators also were active at Nanking, where they issued warnings to merchants that their shops would be bombed if they were discovered handling Japanese goods.

Ask New Pact with Japan.

NANKING, Aug. 21. —(AP)— Disgruntled elements of the legislative council, who question the validity of the Sino-Japanese peace agreement because it was not submitted to the council before signatures were affixed, have indicated that they are planning to urge the government to revise certain points of the agreement.

The objectors charge that the agreement is derogatory to China's sovereignty. When the agreement was signed, however, it had the approval of the central political council, which is superior in authority to the legislative council.

HARRY A. JACOBS, NOTED NEW YORK ARCHITECT, DIES

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Harry Allan Jacobs, the architect who designed a number of public buildings for this city and houses for leading New Yorkers, died tonight. He had undergone an operation for the excision of the gall bladder a week ago and had suffered a relapse on Saturday. He was 60 years old.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elsie Wolf Jacobs, and four children. Mr. Jacobs, who had been active in civic affairs as well as in his profession, was educated at the Ecole des Beaux Arts, Paris. He designed the Friars club building, the Hotel Elysee, and other structures, his work winning him the Prix de Rome.

Swanson Plans Statement Today on Taxpayer Group

State's Attorney Swanson announced yesterday that a detailed statement summing up the results of his investigation of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, of which John M. Pratt is executive director, would be issued today. The investigation, begun more than a month ago, was suggested by Mayor Cermak and unpaid school teachers, who charged that the association encouraged tax dodging. State's Attorney Swanson, in explaining the delay, said the question was involved and that he had proceeded with caution.

Soaks Clothes in Gasoline, Sets It Afire, Hangs Self

Matt Klemenc, 50 years old, whose address is not known, made doubly sure of death last night. He attached a strong wire to a tree in the forest preserves between Joliet road and the Des Plaines river, near Lyons, and fashioned a noose at the other end. Then he soaked his clothing with gasoline. He placed the noose around his neck and then ignited his fuel soaked clothes. His charred body was found by two hitch hikers. On the ground they found a farewell letter, written in Croatian.

LEGION AIR MEET AT SKY HARBOR GIVEN OFFICIAL SANCTION

Maj. R. W. Schroeder announced yesterday that he had received official sanction from the National Aeronautic association for the American Legion air meet to be held Sept. 11, at Sky Harbor airport. This will give any record breaking performances at the meet official recognition.

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, president of the aeronautic association, congratulated American Legion officials and authorities at the airport on the meet, the receipts from which will go to unemployment relief. He predicted that since the meet follows immediately the national air races at Cleveland, it should attract a large field of nationally and internationally famous flyers.

The National Aeronautic association is to appoint an official board to supervise the meet. Maj. Schroeder said an invitation is to be sent to Senator Bingham, urging him to come to Chicago for the meet.

JEWELER BARKS SHINS, BUT GETS STOLEN CAR BACK

Emil Noel of 6815 Cornell avenue, a wholesale jeweler at 29 East Madison street, got his shins scraped last evening, but he also got his stolen car back. With Policeman Henry Redlick of the Warren avenue station, he also got one of the alleged thieves.

The car was taken from Wood and Harrison streets while Noel was visiting a friend in the Presbyterian hospital. Noel walked toward the police station. At Warren boulevard and Western avenue he saw his car travel south in the avenue with three men in it.

Noel saw Policeman Redlick near by and the two commandeered another automobile, catching up with the stolen car in front of 2150 Madison street. Two of the three occupants fled. Redlick cornered the third, Albert Krauss, 17 years old, of 2122 Warren boulevard.

Redlick then directed Noel to telephone for a police patrol. Noel started out to obey, but in his haste tripped over a lawn fence and scraped his shins.

BRAZIL FEDERALS TAKE TOWN FROM SAO PAULO FORCE

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Federal troops early today captured Villa Lindoya in southwestern Minas Geraes, which has been held by the Sao Paulo rebels.

Word came from the state government at Porto Alegre that the battle of Bury ended yesterday after a day and a half of continuous fighting along a battlefront of eight miles. Federal forces captured 68 prisoners and rebel losses were reported heavy. The federal toll was 15 dead, 80 wounded.

Gen. Waldomiro Limas' column advanced two miles into the Pinhal region in the direction of Capao Bonito.

Newspapers reported that martial law had been proclaimed in Sao Paulo owing to uneasiness among the laboring class. The rebellion of the Sao Paulo constitutionalists against President Getulio Vargas' government is in its seventh week, with no indications of a cessation of hostilities.

Visitor Robbed of $443 While on Elevated Train

Michael J. Walsh, a guest at the Blackstone hotel, reported to Warren avenue police last night that two thieves had stolen his wallet containing $443 while he was on an elevated train at the Marshfield avenue station. Walsh is from New York City.

TWO GANGSTERS OF BROOKLYN ARE TAKEN FOR RIDE

Slain to 'Avenge Volpe Deaths, Police Say.

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Riddled with stab wounds, their skulls fractured, and each with a length of clothesline knotted around his neck, the bodies of two young Brooklyn underworld characters were found today, sewed in sacks, in a vacant lot in Harrison, N. J.

Details of the double murder tallied so perfectly with the slaying of John Bazzano, Pittsburgh, Pa., coffee house proprietor, whose body was found in Brooklyn, on Aug. 7, that police are convinced both crimes were perpetrated by the same persons.

Bazzano's murder is said to have been planned and carried out in retaliation for the slaying of the three Volpe brothers—James, Arthur, and John—notorious Pittsburgh racketeers who were shot to death by New York gangsters in Bazzano's coffee house less than ten days before he himself was slain.

Discovery of the bodies in Harrison was made by Peter Wozniak who was feeding his pigeons when he observed two bundles lying in the lot near the door of a garage.

The manner in which the bodies had been tied up and sewed in the sacks; the fact that each had been stabbed at least twenty times, apparently with ice picks, and the way in which the ropes were knotted around the necks, struck the detectives at once by its similarity to the Bazzano murder.

Through finger prints the victims were identified as: Vincent Boccio, 22, of Brooklyn, known also as Joseph Di Maio, and Andrew Fabrizio, 26, also of Brooklyn. Both had criminal records.

Seized for Questioning in Fox Lake Murder Case

James Clark was arrested in Fox Lake last night by Lake county authorities for questioning in connection with the murder of Peter Meyers, 40 years old. Meyers was shot early Saturday morning in Fox Lake. Police took Clark to the Waukegan jail and State's Attorney A. V. Smith said he would question him today. Detectives were told that Meyers had informed John Houck that Clark had been attentive to Houck's estranged wife. The killing occurred shortly after a meeting between the Houcks to effect a reconciliation.

Heroine Loses Riches in Book on Depression

Fights Way to Health in 'No More Orchids.'

THE six novels reviewed today, though in a few cases quite light in surface intention and technical handling, are concerned with portraying, with or without drawing a moral, a problem either involving a social group or a few individuals.

GRACE PERKINS.

"No More Orchids," by Grace Perkins [Covici Friede], concerns a very familiar social development, the depression, and the effect it has on a young woman who has been accustomed to everything wealth can buy. She is the heiress of many millions, though that inheritance rests upon her consent to marry into royalty. She consequently becomes engaged to a prince from Moravia. On her way home from Europe she meets a very different sort of man, a manager of her grandfather's plantations in Brazil, an honest, poor but fascinating man, who has an inherent contempt for Anne and what she stands for.

When Anne arrives in New York she realizes that her father is in a desperate condition, because his beautiful wife, Nina, is about to run away with a famous and infamous playboy and because he sees his fortune beginning to crumble under him. He tries to keep a stiff upper lip, but life is too much for him. His tragic solution to his problems leaves Anne without a cent and the task of clearing his name. She goes under for awhile, but fights her way back to decency and health. In the meantime the prince has been forced to cancel his engagement to her (he needs the money to rehabilitate his kingdom) and her admirer from Brazil has left, disgusted with her vacillation toward him.

The first part of the book is well handled, but the last third is frenzied, melodramatic, and hard to read. The description of the panic, however, and all its tragic effects on men and women who suddenly lose their interest in life without money is realistic and convincing.

"Mrs. Taylor," by Marjorie Worthington [Knopf], the woman who took, with William Seabrook, the thrilling trip from Paris across the Sahara to Timbuktu in an airplane, is an extraordinary successful novel. The author attempts to describe, without comment or prejudice, that section of American society now known as Babbittry.

Mrs. Taylor, at the death of her husband, is 40, well preserved, owner of stocks and a beautiful home, childless and, for a fleeting moment, discontented. She tries to assuage her restlessness by going to Paris, which she is superbly unfitted to enjoy or appreciate.

She returns to her own country, back to her servants and clubs and gardens, happy in her smugness, contented in her superiority. The reader may at times despise Mrs. Taylor, or simply pity her, but in any case she is real, and truly enough portrayed to call forth definite reactions on the part of the reader. The novel is capable, restrained, and memorable for its excellent characterization.

"Maid of Athens," by French Strother [Doubleday Doran], is a novel set in Greece, where the young and talented Thea Milo, with the genius of a Duse and the beauty of a Venus, has the adulation of the world. For the sake of her family she marries without love and temporarily wrecks her career. She is saved from her fate by an American diplomat. They go to Washington, where she tries to begin anew the life that came so near destruction. But her love for the man, though deep, cannot satisfy the demands of her genius. The stage beckons her like a Lorelei. This novel makes interesting if extravagant reading, has an unexpected ending, and is in general romantic enough to satisfy most romantic palates.

"Kismet in Kenya" [Lippincott], written by Florence Riddell, a woman who has traveled widely, is laid in Africa. In the book the will of James Stanhope is so constructed that his various and strange relatives cannot receive a cent unless they exile themselves. This odd assortment of people finds a new life in a farmhouse on the African frontier. This novel is sizzling with romance and adventure.

Allene Corliss, author of "That Girl from New York" [Farrar & Rinehart], depicts life in a small town as compared to that in New York City. The lovely heroine marries a New York banker, who moves out to his home in a New England town where he is under the domination of his mother. The conflict of wills very nearly brings ruin upon all three, but before the end of the story compromise is reached. It is a pleasant and charming tale.

"Four Wives," by Carlos Keith [Vanguard], is said to be by a well known author writing under a pseudonym. It starts with the murder of an Irishman, but it is not a murder story. Through a strange series of coincidences four wives are introduced into the narrative, each, in some unexpected way, connected with the other. The novel is unusual and handled technically with considerable competence.

White Sulphur Springs

Camp Children Display Work at Algonquin

Many Visitors Present for Exhibition.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A RUG or a footstoll may be just another rug or footstool in Chicago but out in a screened porch at Camp Algonquin yesterday, those articles were something very special.

From Chicago and surrounding villages came carloads of people eager to see the articles eighty children have fashioned during their two month vacation and recuperation from undernourishment. It was the annual public handiwork exhibit of the "all summer" section and the most important event of the camp which is maintained in part by TRIBUNE readers.

A little girl with a pert round face and a complexion of sun tan that hadn't always been so healthy, was one of the proud hostesses at the exhibit. All about the screened walls were hung articles of clothing, household linens, pottery, and scrapbooks, and on the floor were sturdy stools, magazine racks and baskets, the pride of the manual training department. But the little girl had eyes only for the table where a dozen rag dolls reclined.

"That's the one my sister made," she volunteered and proudly picked a doll with a hand painted face and multitudinous calico skirts from a hodge-podge of floppy eared elephants, and more dolls with calico skirts.

"Please, this is what I made," interrupted another, steering the Camp Algonquin reporter to an exhibit of Indian pottery. "See, this is the story of the American buffalo killed by a bow and arrow. It tells it in the pictures I made on the pottery. And that one there is about a man grieving over a sick girl."

And on about the porch, the eager guides led the visitors, explaining with the air of professional artisans, their own creations. There were luncheon sets, fringed and initialed. There were pajamas, monogrammed, every seem neatly done. There were pot holders, buttonholed in contrasting color, and quilted doll blankets, and dresses skillfully fashioned. All were to be taken home as gifts to members of the family.

A towheaded lad of 10 pointed to a woven rug in brown and yellow. "I made it to take home to my mother," he explained. Others chimed in: "I'm going to take my footstool home, too," and "My magazine rack's for my mother." There were red airplanes in the latest models for small brothers back home, and the game of buffleboard that really worked, and reed baskets. The articles had been constructed at the instruction of a manual training teacher.

The "all-summer" children, Mrs. Astrid Save, the camp superintendent explained, have gained in health during their sojourn in the woodland acres of the camp.

The "all-summer" children will return to Chicago the last of this week but before they go they will give their last dramatic production "Hansel and Gretal" in the little theater. The mothers and children who visit the camp for two week vacations will continue coming until Sept. 17.

When the summer has ended more than 2,000 vacations of two weeks duration will have been given the folks who have had a tough break in the big city. These cost money. About $10 is needed to finance each of these vacations. The quota for this summer is far from reached and contributors are urged to act now.

THE TRIBUNE free ice fund which provides ice for hundreds of needy families received $27.43 yesterday. Miss S. W. Corwith and S. M. Wells sent $10 each, A Friend sent $5, Tena Kerner and Mary E. Walton, $1 each, and Anonymous, forty-three cents. This gives the fund a grand total of $1,987.43. Gifts to both funds may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

Henry Family Reunion to Be Held Tonight

Mrs. John G. McDonald to Entertain.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IF there's any better reason for a family reunion than the presence of a relative who's come "home" after an absence of several years in a place as far away as Egypt, we don't know what it is. Hence we were not surprised to hear that Mrs. John G. McDonald [the former Camille Henry] of 1130 Lake Shore drive is to be hostess this evening at a family gathering for her brother, Robert L. Henry of Cairo, who, with Mrs. Henry, is in his native city for the duration of a summer professorship at the University of Chicago.

To make the occasion an even happier one, another brother and his wife, the Winston P. Henrys of Tulsa, Okla., are also here for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. McDonald. Invitations have gone out to all the members of the Henry and Badger clans—Mrs. McDonald's father's and mother's families—and they probably will number about 40 when they are all assembled.

Mrs. McDonald's mother was Ada Camille Badger before her marriage to the first Robert Llewellyn Henry. [Remember the lovely old photo of her as a young woman with her two small sons, Robert and Huntington, in Herma Clark's recent stereopticon review of "The Elegant Eighties"?] Mr. and Mrs. A. Shreve Badger, the brother and sister-in-law of the late Ada Badger Henry, will, of course, be at the reunion tonight, and so will the Edwin H. Badgers of Wilmette and the O. S. Badgers of Evanston, with their children and grandchildren.

Pioneer Chicago Families.

The Huntington B. Henrys will come in from Lake Forest with their children, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley [Hortense Henry] and their subdeb daughter, Annie May Henry. Robert L. Henry III., the oldest son of the Robert L. Henrys, and his wife, who reside on the south side, will augment the third generation of the Henry clan. Both the Badgers and the Henrys were prominent pioneer Chicago families.

Robert L. Henry, the special guest of the evening, has had a distinguished career since he was graduated from the University of Chicago thirty years ago, preceding his entry into Oxford as a Rhodes scholar. In 1908 he married Elaine Goodale Read of Baton Rouge, La., and during the following eight years taught law at the Universities of Louisiana State, Illinois, North Dakota, California and Iowa State.

In 1916 he became a captain of infantry in the officers' reserve corps and the next year a major in the officers' training camp in Illinois and Virginia. In 1919 he served on the construction and demobilization committee in Washington and on the war department board. He now practices law in Egypt and serves as a judge in the courts of Cairo. He is the author of several books on law.

"Follies of '32" at Olympia Fields.

A pale green pamphlet from Olympia Fields Country club brings word of the club's "Follies of 1932," to be presented on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week. The committee boasts that this year's show will be bigger and better than ever and hints that the performance is built around Olympia's participation in the World's Fair of 1933.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hilliard Oborne [Caroline Schofield], who have been honeymooning in the west since their marriage on July 28, announce that after the first of next month they will reside at 596 Greenwood avenue, Pasadena. Mrs. Oborne's parents, the George A. Schofields of Highland Park, do not feel that their daughter is so lost to her family as are most brides who go to reside in far parts of the country because the Schofields always spend their winters on the coast, except for occasional trips abroad.

Ben Fairbank is spending the first part of his vacation from his father's office up at Lake Superior. Next week he and his brother, Kellogg Fairbank Jr., will go west to visit Miss Paula Uihlein and her father, Edgar J. Uihlein, on their ranch in Wyoming.

Return from Vacations.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Slade of 999 Lake Shore drive have returned from a motor trip through the east. Mrs. Slade's niece, Mrs. Otis L. Hubbard, and her husband and small son will remain in Camden, Me., until after Labor day and then return to their Lake Forest house, which is now being occupied by Mrs. Hubbard's mother, Mrs. Keene Addington.

Mrs. Harry M. Montgomery of Evanston is back from a month's sojourn in Pasadena, where she had a pleasant time getting acquainted with her two little grandchildren, known in the family as "Punch" and "Judy," the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mather Ilisley [Elizabeth Montgomery]. The Ilisleys are former Evanstonians.

Princess Rostislav, Mrs. Paget K. Cady, Mrs. Murray P. Brush Jr., and other members of the "hot dog committee" for the annual Republican Labor day rally at Riverview will hold a "hot dog" luncheon and meeting today at Miss Frieda Feltz's residence at 37 East Division street.

The duties of the committee will be the supervision of the making and sale of some 20,000 "hot dogs" at the rally, proceeds of which will go to the Chicago Charities committee.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Francis Pearce Jr. of Glencoe are being congratulated on the birth of a son, James Whitney Pearce, last Tuesday at the Evanston hospital.

Parties at Two Resorts.

The season is passing quietly for the summer colonies at Charlevoix and Harbor Point, Mich., those two resorts which attract so many Chicagoans each year. The Little Harbor club at Harbor Point is still the center of activities in that region. About Smart Frock, Dainty and Flattering, for Parisienne in "After-Forties"

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The printed frock is due for an exit from fashions within the next few weeks, but the plain frock with printed details is going to keep on in the style news during the early fall. Some of the prettiest dresses of the great French couturiers have printed yokes or collars and cuffs.

The frock that is most worn here for late summer is the one that is in a plain color or in white and boasts a bit of printed or patterned trimming.

The frock shown in our sketch today is one which is suitable for the woman after 40, who needs a dress that is dainty and flattering, but not too dressy for afternoons. This frock is made of crêpe de chine in a soft, rosy gray color, and was one of the prettiest worn at the garden party given recently at the Polo club in the Bois de Boulogne.

The dress is given a simple blouse and a skirt that is gently flared from a hip yoke. It has a blouse yoke of gray crêpe de chine patterned with leaves in green and yellow. This yoke is becomingly draped in front in a cowl neckline. It is small, plain, and round at the back. The sleeves of gray crêpe de chine are short and to them are attached lower sleeves of the printed crêpe de chine, with ties at the wrists and ties below narrow ruffles at the top.

Early Care Will Rid the Face of Tiny Blemishes

If Treatment Is Delayed Trouble Results.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I don't know if in a generation or two hence the facial blemishes known to us will be suffered at all. It won't be because our best medical and lay authorities are not preaching prevention strongly enough.

Take that common affliction generally classified as acne, and which may be anything in lay minds from a mild blackhead condition to an advanced stage of blackhead and pimple formation. We know now that all the mental suffering and agony of sufferers could be prevented. Prevented with attention given early! If treatment is long delayed it is a hard condition to overcome in the advanced stages.

Parents, you are requested to keep an eagle eye on that young complexion entrusted to your care. Pimples do not appear instantaneously. A soil favorable for their development is usually previously prepared. First, there is a closing off of the oil glands and those affected present a black dot on the surface. This is a warning of trouble ahead.

If pimples are treated when only blackheads are present the course of treatment is short and the result most gratifying. If the condition is neglected, the oily material in the closed off oil glands undergoes decomposition, resulting in an inflammation which leads to pimples.

Then this irritated and inflamed skin proves an easy victim for pus germs and eventually the skin may bear a pitted, a scarred or a disfigured look. Don't leave the mildest acne any time to heal. Be scrupulous about face washing; two or three times a day if necessary. Send for my pamphlet on acne in which you'll find a formula for a spinedid corrective lotion given me by one of our leading skin authorities.

Darkest Africa on the Screen at Roosevelt

Sound Film Chronicles Explorers' Trip.

"CONGORILLA."

Presented at the Roosevelt theater.
FEATURING
Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson in Darkest Africa.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The cutest, plumpest little woman, with the brightest, brownest eyes sat beside me in a projection room the other day watching a movie. She was Mrs. Martin Johnson—in town with her husband for the opening of their new picture, "Congorilla." [Met Mr. Johnson, too, for a minute. Nice, lean, pleasant chap.]

"Osie" had been parked there "for a few minutes" by her spouse who had business in another part of the building. But don't think he could pry her out of that seat much before the picture was over. No, sir! Osie is just as ardent a film fan as she is a sportswoman! "O, he's NICE!" she said of Robert Montgomery—and of Jimmy Gleason. "I DO like his face!" And so on, coxily and cluckily throughout the picture.

Difficult to believe that this soft looking, friendly little person was the dauntless soul I had, the day before, seen walk right up and stick a gun in the face of a bad tempered rhino! Well, you just never can tell about us women.

The Johnsons' latest exploits in Africa have been chronicled by the sound camera, which, so far as I'm concerned, might better have been left at home. Gorillas and pygmies are hard enough to look at without having to listen to them too.

For some reason or other I just couldn't get excited over "Congorilla." It seemed to me that I had seen the same thing—more excitingly presented—so many times before! Lions and zebras and monkeys and pygmies. Bravery on the part of doughty safarists. Jungles and plains. Killers and killed. And always the lecturer [Mr. Johnson] explaining—often with deadly facetiousness.

There are some beautiful shots of the countryside, animals and birds, but the heralded thrills fall short of the mark.

Sorry, Mrs. Johnson! Would so like to have liked your picture as much as you liked—well, that's another story.

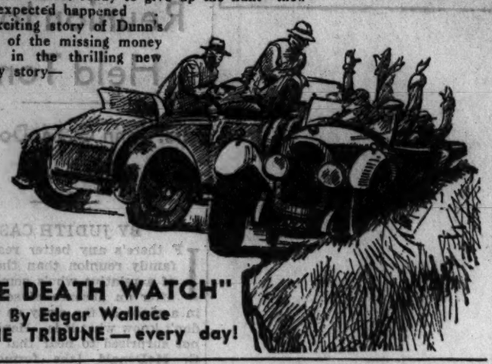
OUR SECRET AMBITION

begin "The Death Watch" here!

"That money never got out of England," Peter Dunn of Scotland Yard declared after thieves had robbed a London bank of three-quarters of a million. Days passed . . . weeks . . . years . . . and still no trace could be found of the loot. Peter was almost ready to give up the hunt—then the unexpected happened . . . The exciting story of Dunn's pursuit of the missing money is told in the thrilling new mystery story—



"THE DEATH WATCH"
By Edgar Wallace
IN THE TRIBUNE—every day!

The Death Watch

By Edgar Wallace

INSTALLMENT I.

A BANK ROBBERY.

Lee Smitt had no police record and no apparent nationality, though he claimed to be American and the claim was not disputed. Certainly he had lived in the United States, and it was pretty easy to locate the area, for in the early days he had the rapid fire lingo of the middle west, which is so disconcerting to the leisurely southerner and a source of amusement in New York.

Red Fanderson was undoubtedly American, and had probably come from English stock who were Sanderson in the days when people wrote S's like F's.

Joe Kelly was just cosmopolitan; he knew Paris, spoke French rather well, had seen the inside of two French prisons, and had had a narrow escape of taking the rap at Cayenne, which is frequently and inaccurately referred to as Devil's island, for Devil's island is only a bit of it.

They came unobtrusively into London in the days when Sergt. Peter Dunn was newly come to the criminal investigation department and was sitting at the feet of Inspector Sam Allerway learning his business.

Peter, as all the world knows, is the only baronet of the United Kingdom that ever walked a beat. There were quite a number of people who thought that when he succeeded, on his grandfather's death, to his title and fortune, he should have retired gracefully from the force.

A certain lordly relative once expressed this point of view and Peter asked:

"When you became Lord Whatever-your-name-is, did you give up golf?"

"No," said the staggered aristocrat.

"Very well then," said Peter.

"I really don't see the connection," said his baffled lordship. "Police work isn't a game?"

"You don't know the half of it," said Peter.

There was nobody more competent to teach a young officer than Sam. He was a great detective, the greatest in our generation. He might have reached the highest rank, but he drank a little, gambled a lot, and was notoriously in debt, and therefore suspect, though Sam had never taken a cent from any illicit source in his life.

There is a popular delusion that high officers at Scotland Yard own rows of houses and have considerable investments. No doubt very large presents have been made and accepted by grateful citizens who have benefited by the genius and prescience of men at Scotland Yard. It is against all regulations, but it is not against human nature.

Perhaps if Sam had been offered some big presents by the law abiding people he had helped he might have accepted them, but all his offers had come from the wrong end of the business.

"You can't learn this too soon, Peter," he said. "The crook's money has got two hooks to it—and those hooks never come out! This doesn't affect you because you've got all the money in the world and I know just what's going to happen to the bird who tries to slip you a monkey for giving him five minutes to get out of the house."

Sam Allerway was never a popular man with his superiors. His acid gibings made him no friends. He had a trick of summarizing the character and the disposition of his chiefs in one biting and uncomplimentary phrase and, but for the fact that he was a brilliant thief catcher, he would never have progressed as far as inspector.

One of the few people who respected him and understood him was a certain J. G. Reeder, who at that time was associated with the bankers' trust as their private detective and investigator; but as Mr. Reeder does not come into this story, it will be sufficient to sum up the character of Sam Allerway in his words.

"The criminal classes would be well advised," he said, "and be giving no more than what is due if they erected a statue of the man who—um—introduced old brandy into our country."

Old brandy was Sam Allerway's weakness. But he was perfectly sober on the night the Canadian Bank of Commerce was robbed of 830,000 Canadian dollars.

The robbery was effected between 5 o'clock on a Saturday afternoon and 7 o'clock on Sunday morning. Three men had concealed themselves in an office immediately above the bank premises. The Canadian Bank of Commerce was situated in a large corner building facing Trafalgar square.

The lower floor and the basement were entirely occupied by the bankers, the five floors above being given over to various businesses, that immediately above the bank premises being occupied by an insurance company. The building had been specially built, and was the bank's property. Between the insurance office and the banking department was a concrete floor which was further strengthened by an iron grid set in the center of the solid concrete.

On the day of the robbery Trafalgar square was filled with an organized demonstration of the unemployed. Parties arrived from various parts of London, each headed by a band and carrying their banners and slogans. All the police reserves were gathered to deal with possible disturbances.

Another favorable circumstance for the burglars was that a section of the roadway before the bank was being torn up to deal with a faulty gas main. All that afternoon, with the indifferent music of the brass bands, here had mingled the staccato rattle of automatic road breakers.

There could be no question that pneumatic drills were also used by the burglars, and that they synchronized their operations with those of the workmen outside. The concrete ceiling was broken through immediately above the manager's office, which was locked, and to which the two watchmen on the premises had no access.

As to whether there were two watchmen or not when the floor was pierced is a question which has never been satisfactorily settled. Both men swore they were on the premises, but it is almost certain that one of them went out for an hour and during that hour the thieves got into the manager's room, unlocked the door on the inside, slugged the one remaining watchman whom they surprised as he was looking through the plate glass window at the demonstrators, and tied him up.

The second watchman was knocked out near the side entrance of the bank, and in circumstances which suggested that he must have come in from the outside at some time in the afternoon, since there was no hiding place where his attackers could wait except behind the door.

The two men were blindfolded before they were tied up and gagged. They were unable to give any description of the burglars, and, but for the circumstance that the first man had been blindfolded with one of the robber's own handkerchiefs, which bore a laundry mark, no evidence at all might have been secured that would convict them or even give the police a reasonable clew.

The three men had an excellent kit of tools. They were able to open the vault door, cut through the bars of an inner grille, and remove every scrap of currency in the vault.

Every hour the bank was closed a patrolling policeman passing the entrance of the bank pressed a small bell push and waited till he received an answering clang from a bell set in the wall. Evidently the thieves knew the bank method thoroughly, for he and his relief received all the signals until 8 o'clock. At that hour when the policeman pressed the bell he received no answer. He tried again, but with no further success, and in accordance with practice he reported the fact to headquarters at Cannon Row, which is Scotland Yard.

He then made his way to the front of the bank and peered in. Two lights were burning, as usual, and there was no sign that anything was wrong. He rapped on the front door, received no answer, and waited here until a squad car came from headquarters carrying his immediate chief and, what was more important, duplicate keys of the bank which were kept at Cannon Row in a case, the glass of which had to be smashed before they could be taken out.

Washington Society

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. E. E. Gann returned to Washington today with her brother, the Vice President, from their home in Topeka, Kas. Mrs. Gann will leave late this week to make a speaking tour in New England.

The engagement is announced here from the Belgian embassy of Princess Elizabeth, eldest daughter of the former Belgian ambassador to the United States and Princess de Ligne, to Count Guillaume de Limberg Stirum, lieutenant in the cavalry of the Belgian army. The wedding will take place Sept. 19 in the ancestral castle of Prince de Ligne at Beloeil, Belgium. The former ambassador and Princess de Ligne and their three daughters were leading figures in the diplomatic circle here during the several years of his service in Washington.

The Irish minister, wh spent last week in Washington, has joined Mrs. MacWhite in Massachusetts, where they have been spending the season. They are to motor to Winter Harbor, Me., to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Hart, the latter the former Miss Frances Noyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. How Can Movie Director Film Ailing Babies?

Von Stroheim Needs Them for Picture.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 21.—When Erich von Stroheim has a film script calling for waitresses he demands real waitresses and by now the casting directors have learned not to send him extra girls who don't know how to slap a plate on the counter. Similarly, when Von has a story with cripples in it, he goes out on the byways and brings in the real lame and halt to play the parts. But Von Stroheim finally has been stumped.

In "Walking Down Broadway" there are some sick babies. Now, California law is so strict about the employment of babies in films that a studio might be held liable if a perfectly healthy baby fell sick weeks after the infant had been used in a scene. Moreover, it is provided by law that a baby must be examined by physicians and recorded as perfectly healthy before being used in a film.

So Von Stroheim's poor, harrassed casting office scouts are now at their wits' end trying to find a group of utterly healthy babies who can pass a physical examination but yet look ill and undernourished enough to fit.

This film, "Walking Down Broadway," is the one that Boots (Patricia) Mallory, 19 year old New York night club girl, is to crash the films in. Miss Mallory's assignment to her big role came about in a way so unusual that it proves something or other about the movies.

At any rate, one of the attachés in the Fox studio was talking to Miss Mallory in the corridor near Von Stroheim's office when Von came by and swept the girl with a glance. When Miss Mallory ended her conversation and walked toward the office of W. R. Sheehan, the studio boss, who was expecting her, Von Stroheim followed her, stopped her, introduced himself and asked what film work she had done and if she thought she would like to work in a picture with him.

Not long after she had gone in to Sheehan's office, Von Stroheim dropped into the same office.

"I see you have stolen a march on me," Sheehan told Von Stroheim. The Austrian didn't understand at first. He thought he might have to explain he wasn't trying to date strange girls on the lot, but it turned out Sheehan had seen Miss Mallory in an entertaining act, had thought she would make an appealing film actress, and had asked her to drop in to see if he couldn't suggest her services to Von Stroheim. Now everybody concerned is satisfied, all of them thinking what smart people all the other Fox officials are.

Miss Mallory says she got the name Boots because, when she was too little to pronounce "shoes," her father, a Mississippi engineer, who superintended her rearing, never seemed cognizant of slippers, or pumps, so that whatever she wore on her feet was named "boots." She went to New York from Mobile, Ala.

Big Surprises Await Shopper for Fall Things

New Materials Enter Dress Goods.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

ALL literal minded shoppers with a yen for facts or with an overwhelming appetite for information are going to have a grand time this fall when they start shopping and asking about new fall fabrics. You'll hear some things that will exercise your credulity and perhaps make you gasp with stunned surprise.

Did you ever think you would be buying materials with a lot of ostrich feathers mixed up with them, or wools with rabbits' fuzz as part of the well mixed ingredients, or long thin filaments of tinsel, and last but not least some haircloth actually with strands of stringy hemp straggling through the stuff?

Such is the state of things in the fabric displays . . . bolts and bolts of these fascinating new materials here just in time for your smart fall frocks of thin wool. Ostrich cloth isn't new, but greatly perfected . . it's softer and silkier this fall, some colors have a phosphorescent shimmer that is most intriguing. The salespeople will tell you, very seriously, that quantities of soft ostrich feathers are literally churned and mixed with the wool, and after hours of this intimacy the mixture is then made into yarn and then into the newest of new fabrics for your one piece dresses.

Bunny wool is as featherweight and soft as the cozy little carrot eater that furnished the fur . . . you can't help but want to touch the stuff to see if it is as silkly as it looks. There is a sheen to it, also, that makes this rabbit wool one of the smartest looking fabrics you will find. The colors are simply delectable . . . a soft faded old blue, a real honest-to-goodness old rose and mint leaf green and yellows that are almost good enough to eat.

The haircloths are tremendously effective for distinctive street and daytime clothes . . . the newest swatch being the kemp or hemp cloth made as told above with bits of hempen fuzz and tiny thin threads from shedding hemp string. Both domestic and imported fabrics of these unusual mixtures are now being featured in Chicago shops.

All the newest and most fashionable wools are thin and sheer lots of them are so thin and loosely woven that they look like porous plaster backs . . . and the inevitable costume slip is scheduled for a big come back, especially the taffeta slips that swish and rustle in the most provocative feminine fashion.

Smooth, supple basket weaves are in again . . . some in a small and precise squares, others wide, large, and loose, but always chiffon—thin and sheer. Dyers must have discovered the ageless formulae of the old masters . . . this fall you will see deep thick black browns, tawny old golds, metallic mustard greens, citron yellows, and fuchsias that still glow warmly in the masterpieces by Rembrandt, Van Dyke, Velasquez, and Da Vinci.

If these mixtures continue, nothing in the way of lint, thread, fuzz, down, or feathers will be overlooked as an ingredient . . . the next few years other imaginative mixers will probably produce some startling get-togethers, for these ingenious schemes so far are knockout successes.

Youthful Model with Puffed Sleeves May Be Developed in Jumper Fashion

WOMEN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

A youthful model with the cute puffed sleeves and top of the waist made of a contrasting color. A flag blue silk crêpe print with the yoke and sleeves of plain blue crêpe would be pretty, or the entire waist, barring the sleeves, could be made of a plain color, using plain white for the sleeves.

The pattern, 2957, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 39 inch material with 1¼ yards of 35 inch contrasting.

Henry Family Reunion to Be Held Tonight

a hundred members recently attended a bridge tea at the club, with Mrs. Frank E. Pierce as hostess. The club also had a barbecue party on the beach under the full moon one night last week. Fires were built on the sand and the cabanas were opened. Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, Mrs. George A. Ranney, Mrs. William Waller Jr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hyman were among the hostesses.

The annual charity fashion show was held at Harbor Springs on Wednesday afternoon. Among the Chicago girls who modeled were Miss Winifred Wheeler, Miss Isabel Gordon, Miss Dorothy Morehead, and Miss Babette Boysen, whose parents, the Louis K. Boysens of 1448 Lake Shore drive, have taken a cottage on the edge of the bluff at Harbor Springs for the rest of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Broeksmit, Miss Catherine Carton and Mr. and Mrs. James R. Addington are guests of Mrs. Harold C. Smith. Mrs. Wheaton Augur is with her daughter, Mrs. Robert C. Orr, for the rest of the season. Mrs. Austin McLanahan, Mrs. William B. McIlvaine's sister, arrived on Thursday from Baltimore and will remain until after Labor day.

Baby Named Oakleigh Thorne.

Word from Santa Barbara last night was that the new baby of Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Lewis Thorne (Bertha Palmer) will be named Oakleigh Thorne III. The parents at first were reported to have selected Birdseye Blakeman Lewis for the child's name. Since then Mr. Lewis has received court permission to change his name from Lewis to Thorne, in order that a Thorne might continue to own the eastern estate of his family, now held by Oakleigh Thorne.

Miss Margaret Sinclair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Sinclair of 2256 Lincoln Park West, will return today from a month's stay at Roaring Brook, Mich.

Mrs. John H. Winterbotham Jr. and her young son, Johnnie, who went west in late June to spend a month on a ranch in Colorado, found the outdoor life so intriguing that they postponed their return for a couple of weeks. They are expected back this week and Mrs. Winterbotham probably will go east shortly for her annual visit with her mother-in-law, the senior Mrs. Winterbotham, at her summer place at Sugar Hill, N. H.

New Baby At Glencoe.

Mr. and Mrs. John V. Farwell III. are expected to return today or tomorrow from a trip to Canada. They spent last week-end at the Manoir Richelieu at Murray Bay, Quebec.

Mrs. Eugene V. R. Thayer, who has been abroad since June, is expected to sail for home at the end of this month. She leased a chateau at Croissy-Beauborg for several weeks and her recent house guests there included Prince and Princess Edmond Ruspoli.

Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mallory of Boston are in Highland Park for a few weeks' visit with Mrs. Mallory's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Hugo G. Fisher. The Mallorys have just returned from a year's stay abroad, where Dr. Mallory has been doing post-graduate work in pathology preparatory to his permanent location on the Boston City hospital staff.

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

INSTALLMENT XLIX.

TRIUMPH.

Then in a movement Gold saw the little ermine coat ripped off her, in pieces, in fragments, in rags that dropped like helpless snow to the floor. He seemed just to touch her gown and had it ripped from shoulder to hem. She caught it round her and faced him. The rose scented lobby had changed in a second of time from lovers' meeting to a cave of man's furies. And yet through the anger with which she faced him there blazed a secret triumph. All through her was triumph. She had never known such sweetness of female triumph—that could not have been triumph without love in it—until this night when she faced Barney across the wreck of her happy little coat and the mangled camellia fan that he had kicked aside.

He had control again, was again the hard and hateful Barney who yet—strangely enough—would never seem hard and hateful any more. He said brutally: "And what had I the honor of contributing then?"

"I'll never tell you."

"No?" He shot out a hand to seize her wrist. She was too quick. Standing almost against the inner door as she was, she slipped through; bolted it; was safe inside with Doria's secret; and tumultuously sobbing.

She had not expected to cry. But crying was compound of relief and happiness and—again strangely—that triumph.

In the lobby Barney stood, and kicked aside, deliberately, the remains of the ermine coat. He caught sight of his face in a mirror, and had the grace to be shocked. He wiped the sweat from his forehead and from the palms of his hands. Berserk; no other word for it. He had gone berserk. And he heard her sobbing; with a queer little sound of laughter in the sobs that was not hysteria.

It was the moment for a telephone theatrically to ring; and the telephone on the bureau in the lobby did not fail. He snatched the receiver with a curse, and heard Dorrance's mellow fat-boy voice:

"Miss Franklyn? . . . O, you, Barney. I daresay you'll do better. Listen, my lad. I suppose I congratulate you? I'm sorry for myself, losing the best business girl I've set eyes on in a long time. I suppose I'll lose her, Barney? What? I just wanted to say here's to you—yes, the party is still on and I have a glass in my hand. Here's to you both. She's not to worry about our arrangements, Barney—not that you'd let her. But judging her as I do, she may bother a bit about that outfit I made her wear in the way of business. I said 'made her wear in the way of business'. Yes, she was going to advertise my silks for me. . . . But never mind that. Will she please keep the ermine coat as a wedding present? Here's to you," said the fat-boy voice with chuckles in it; and the telephone was silent.

The check book protruded from its pigeonhole. Barney took it and read the one torn counterfoil: "Mrs. Doria Hathaway —" He pushed it back, sighing at himself. "Perhaps," he said aloud grimly, "I don't understand women so well after all." And he knocked at the inner door. "Gold, come out. Or I'll come and fetch you."

"That won't stop me, believe me."

So suddenly she stood in the doorway with the scarlet coat of a duchess over the ruined white gown. He put his arms around her.

"I've often thought of kissing you," he said, and kissed her. "Will you love me, Gold?"

"I do love you, Barney."

"And forgive me. But don't forgive me till I've shown you something." And he put her in a big chair and knelt beside her; he laid his face against her gold head.

"I'm like Elverton, mind you," he muttered in her ear. "I want to be married the first possible moment."

"Only, Barney dear, I've liabilities—not money—a person—a darling person—"

"I took that liability over weeks ago. Listen a moment. Look." He took a letter from his note case, and handed her a snapshot. They looked at it, cheek against cheek. She saw Gip, unmistakably Gip, in breeches and shirt, on horseback; Gip laughing. Gip . . . .

"Now listen to what my manager out there writes about him, sweetheart: 'This fellow is all right; he's got nerve. He'll ride anything on the place already, and he'll fight any one. He's going grand. He's given me thirty dollars to keep for him so's he can't spend it—that he wants to return to some one, he says. We thought he might be a bit of a sissy at first, but the matter with him chiefly, the boys are agreed, is that he just wants a bit of kicking around—which he'll get—and he's been too soft. Some one's been "hand-feeding" him, but he's getting over it' . . ."

She knew that she was yielding to the softness of life; the richnesses; all the lovely dangers.

She yielded.

"Barney—you were the rich passenger!"

"I am that sap. Forgive me?"

"I can't really be as happy as I feel," she whispered.

"You're happier. So am I. And sweetheart, I looked in the check book."

"What you like," he said, "what you like. All you like. Because I love you so much."

The End.

Colorful Vegetable Now at Its Best.

BY MARY MEADE.

Did you ever gloat and tingle over a more appealing sight than tomatoes are giving us this month? Not only are they smooth, exceptionally plump, uniform, and colorful, but there are more of them to the acreful, and they are far better buys than they have been for many a year.

Economy demands that we can. And can them we do. But those big, fat, red fellows just cry out against being reduced to waiting till next winter to treat us. And salads, soups, entrées, and endless other thoughts demand the use of tomatoes now when they are in the height of their glory in color, flavor, and freshness.

For instance, one of the best things I've found this season in the tomato line is a tricky new stuffing for baked tomatoes which simply does things to the laziest of summer appetites.

It's attractive and most speedy to prepare. Also, it gives us the advantage of a rich milk service without turning our entrée into soup.

BAKED STUFFED TOMATOES.

1 tablespoon butter.
½ cup chopped cooked or canned okra.
1-3 cup rolled white cracker crumbs.
½ teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.
Buttered bread crumbs.
1 cup evaporated milk.
¼ pound American cheese, grated.

Wash the tomatoes and cut a slice from the stem end of each, removing the pulp from the inside. Heat the onion in the butter until yellow, and add tomato pulp, okra, bread crumbs, and seasoning, blending well. Pack the mixture into the tomato shells, which have been drained. Place them in a baking dish or deep pie tin and sprinkle the tops with buttered crumbs. Add about one-third cup of water to the pan and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] about 30 minutes or until tender. Prepare a cheese sauce by melting the cheese in the milk and serve with the tomatoes. There are lots of ways to vary this recipe. All kinds of left over vegetables may be substituted for okra. Chopped cooked meats, molstened and well seasoned make a rousing good dish. The sauce may then be turned into a celery or onion one, and all's well.

Or, next time the hot fat kettle is on deck, try tomato fritters. Select firm ones, unpeeled and ripe. Wash and slice crosswise in half inch pieces. Dip in a plain fritter batter and fry in deep fat [380 degrees F.]. If the slices are dipped in flour, beaten egg, and bread crumbs and then fried, you'll have something else again. Both are delicious.

Then have you tried all the newest notes in ripe tomato salads? One that seems to hit the spot at our house is prepared by alternating two one-fourth inch slices of ripe avocado pear with two slices of red tomato on oval salad plates. Serve with French lime dressing and a garnish of lettuce for each salad.

Mother and son are progressing well. The child is named after Ruggero Altavilla, founder of the house of Arena nearly 1,000 years ago. Ruggero Altavilla was the father of Ruggero I., first Norman king of the two Sicilies. The house of Arena, of which Marchese Arena is a direct descendant, gave to Italy many ditinguished scholars, scientists, statesmen and warriors.

Understanding Is Necessary to Child Training

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It's funny what things stand out in your childhood. I can see it now as if it were yesterday. It was in my high school days and there was one girl—she died soon after—who never mixed with the crowd, though I got to know her quite well. The girls thought her different, or odd, or queer.

One vacation morning I found a letter from her in the mail. At first I sensed a little what was in her thoughts and then the ordinary school girl streak in me which looked with the eyes of "the herd" came to the top and I said, "Now, isn't that silly?"

"What's silly?" asked my mother who knew the girl, and I handed the letter over to her to read, as I often did.

If I expected her to dismiss it as mere school girl moodiness, I was to be disappointed. She looked thoughtful.

"It isn't silly," my mother said. "I know just what she means. I see why she feels that way. She does more thinking than most of the girls because of that throat trouble she has. She knows what may come of it and I don't believe she expects to live very long," and she read the letter once more.

Understanding. It's a wonderful thing for any one to have—but for parents especially. To be able to get your children's point of view—to be able to understand the children, not only when they are like you—that easy—but when they are different, not to dismiss what they take seriously because it doesn't seem serious to you—all this is necessary.

Giuseppe Creatore Is Named Conductor of Open Air Opera

Giuseppe Creatore, veteran conductor and famous a generation ago as the most spectacular of the bandmasters, was named yesterday as the conductor of the Chicago Opera Air Opera company, which will present "Aida" next Sunday night and "Il Trovatore" the following Wednesday night in Soldiers' field. This will be his first public appearance in Chicago in a number of seasons. Of recent years he has given up the band concerts upon which his former fame rested and has confined himself to the production and direction of grand opera in New York, Washington, and other eastern cities. The orchestra of the Soldiers' field performances will be that of the Chicago Civic Opera augmented by other players from the Chicago Symphony orchestra and other musicians. E. M.

As Wedding Day Nears This Girl Has Her Doubts

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Is it possible to be in love with a man at certain times and not at others? I find myself in this predicament. I have been keeping steady company with the young man for over two years. We always have had enjoyable times together. However, he is inclined to be moody. This feeling comes over him suddenly and he can't explain it.

"We have a tentative date in the fall for our marriage. Now that the time is drawing near, I'm afraid to take the step. W. T."

Yes, I think it entirely possible to be in love at times and to think you are out of love at other times. In fact, few people manage to maintain an even tenor to their emotions continuously. A separtion, however, usually proves that what seemed like being out of love wasn't anything of the sort. People who have been seeing each other steadily over a period of years get thoroughly used to each other's ways, their line of thought, their general procedure under almost every circumstance.

The surprise element that played so vital a part earlier is gone. But in its place something just as good appears, if one has the wit to see it, and to realize that one "settles down" in courtships, as in marriage, to more matter of fact living as time goes on.

The wedding day qualms are common symptoms, too! They are not to be taken too seriously unless one has reason to doubt the character of the intended mate. I'll wager most adults approaching their wedding day go through a series of doubts and questions. If it's because marriage means something serious to them, perhaps it's just as well. But generally speaking, the matrimonial plunge isn't made without a few intakes of breath.

About the moodiness? Well, aren't we all victims, more or less? If that's the only complaint you have against your young man it's not enough to make you altar shy. Because you can help him over these by either ignoring them or preparing for them.

The eight day convention of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters, which includes in its membership dancers and dance instructors from all parts of the country, opened yesterday at the Congress hotel.

Dignity will prevail on the American dance floor this season, it was predicted by Leo Kehl, president of the association, who said that slow fox trots and waltzes will replace the rhumba and other novelty steps during the coming year.

Many of the dance teachers attending the convention come to attend the post-graduate school conducted in connection with it, of which Mr. Kehl's father, Fred W. Kehl of Miami, Fla., is principal and an active instructor in spite of his 72 years.

THE STAGE

The date of the opening of the Harris theater with "Another Language," the play by Rose Franken that took New York by surprise last spring, has been postponed from Sept. 4 to Sept. 11. Difficulties in securing satisfactory "types" for the second company of this comedy of American home life are said to have caused the delay.

However, Manager Arthur Beckhard now has his cast assembled and rehearsed, and the organization will start on its career with a performance in West Falmouth, Mass., this evening. Among the players are Tom Powers, formerly active in Theater Guild dramas; Lawrence Fletcher, Eleanor Hicks, Maidel Turner, Philip Faversham [son of the veteran star, William Faversham], Enid Grey, Ellen C. Lawe and Laura Straub.

The Chicago première of "Another Language," as thus postponed, will conflict with the opening of "The Passing Show" at the Apollo theater, as the first night schedule stands at present. This revue was to have had Ted Healy as leading comedian, but he withdrew from rehearsals a few days ago because of a dispute over the terms of his contract with J. J. Shubert, who is staging the show as an independent venture outside of the Shubert receivership. The differences between the star and the producer will probably be submitted to arbitration. "The Passing Show" will begin its career with a week in Detroit, opening Sept. 4.

A new operetta based on Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" will be staged by the St. Louis Municipal Opera company tonight.

The Garrick theater will be put into commission Saturday night, Sept. 3, with a policy of continuous performances at popular prices. It will offer burlesque shows, cinema exhibitions and vaudeville, with weekly changes of program.

Two Broadway first nights, scheduled for this week, have been postponed until next week. The shows are "Ballyhoo of 1932," a revue; and "Satan," a Negro play. C. C.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE yesterday, boys and girls, told you that plans for our next party of the summer include a thrilling mystery picture, entitled "Seventy Thousand Witnesses," and it's to be at the Publix-Balaban & Katz Chicago theater on Thursday, Sept. 1. I announced, too, that the stage show is to be headed by Burns & Allen, but since I wrote that the program has been changed and this pair of comedians will not be on the bill. However, something equally as interesting is being planned and I'll tell you all about it tomorrow.

In the meantime, those of you who like a real thriller had better get busy writing a letter so that you may win an invitation to see "Seventy Thousand Witnesses." The story is about a murder which is committed during a big and important football game.

At a critical point, just as the half back on one team is about to make a touchdown, he collapses and when assistance reaches him he is found —dead. No one knows by whom he is killed or how.

You are all eligible to compete for an invitation and the only requirement is that you are the kind of boy or girl who enjoys a really thrilling picture. Every letter must reach me no later than next Thursday morning and they should include your age, your name and address, written plainly. Send them to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Do Just These Two Simple Things

Fat Melts Away

Science has made important discoveries in fat reduction. The average fat person can now rip off fat a pound a day—four to seven pounds every week!—on a full stomach, with never a hungry moment. Thus it is foolish now to stay fat.

This is what you do: Take a teaspoonful ordinary Jad salts in a glass of water a half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture-weight instantly. Also cleanses the system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloat.

Then do this about eating. FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill—of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc., and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute. Cut down on fatty meats, starches and desserts. Eat any fruit for dessert.

That's all you do. Fat seems to melt away. The coarse lines of overweight give way to the refined ones of slenderness. You lose as much as a pound a day. You feel better than for years. For in this treatment you achieve two important results. The Jad Salts clear your system of toxins. *The diet takes off fat with food that turns into energy instead of weight.

If you're tired of being embarrassed by fat, try this way. You'll be glad that you did. You can get Jad Salts at any drug store.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.

CZAR BUSINESS IN BOXING AND BASEBALL FADES

Landis and Muldoon Better Watch Out.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 21.—A couple of great American czars appear to be approaching the end of their official usefulness in the cases of Judge K. M. Landis and Prof. William Muldoon, czars of the baseball industry and the prize fighting racket, respectively. These czars were appointed as despots at a time when this country had been living under discipline and was still in the habit of saluting.

It may be remembered that there was quite a swing to czarism about that time. Elder Will H. Hays of the Harding administration was appointed Little White Father of the Beautiful Tribe of Phantom Tomato Catchers of Hollywood, Cal., with power to censor their matrimonial customs and social practices, which were causing resentment, possibly with a tinge of envy, among the customers in the 9 o'clock towns. Many other minor czars were selected to guarantee the integrity and disinfect the business morality of the cleaning and dyeing profession, the hay, grain, and feed industry, and the delicatessen business.

One Czar Who's Smart.

Big Bill Edwards was selected as czar of professional football by C. C. Pyle at a salary of $25,000 a year, but Mr. Pyle's league collapsed under the pressure of Mr. Edwards' embonpoint and his salary before the season was over. However, Mr. Edwards had drawn his salary in advance, showing that the unfortunate example of the late czar of Russia had not been wasted on him. When Mr. Edwards' empire went haywire he had his getaway money in his pocket.

In selecting Judge Landis and Prof. Muldoon for czaristic duties, baseball and prize fighting rackets were guided by a notion that if there was anything rarer than a day in June it was an honest man. Neither the judge nor the learned professor, who holds an honorary degree of doctor of physical culture conferred by the board of trustees of the Police Gazette, could ever be suspected of coveting their neighbors' goods.

This might seem to be little enough to ask of a public officer. Unhappy experience had shown, however, that it was a great deal to ask. In addition to this rare quality of honesty, both czars had a tendency to strike statuesque moral poses and bluster. So, on the whole, as the material for czars went in the United States, they were ideal candidates. There were plenty of men who could strike the statuesque moral poses and bluster, but the nonlarcenous quality was not so easy to find.

The baseball industry decided to give Judge Landis $65,000 a year, which was deemed to be cheap at the time for the service he was expected to render, particularly in view of the recent outbreak of unscrupulosity among the White Sox of 1919. It may be recalled that certain members of the White Sox had struck a viper's blow at the very wellsprings of the fair escutcheon of the national pastime and that there was a great yearning in the land for some great moral force to purge the bulwarks of this skulking blight.

Prof. Muldoon, as a moral force, wished to maintain his amateur status, and refused to accept any remuneration which made him slightly more moral than Judge Landis. It is easier to be moral for $65,000 a year than for a wage of nothing, net, so the professor may be said to have been more moral than the judge. This is lily-gilding, however.

Since that time the enthusiasm for czars has waned and there have occurred several acts of defiant bolshevism. Babe Ruth was one of the early Trotskys of baseball, but he was sent to Siberia for a long spell for telling the czar to go and take a jump in the lake and he returned from his exile with his spirit broken.

Joey Is Spanked.

Mr. Joey Jacobs, the manager of Max Schmeling, was condemned by Czar Muldoon for uttering seditious squawks over the radio on the night of the recent Sharkey-Schmeling wooing in the Garden corporation's plant in Long Island City.

Mr. Jacobs criticized Prof. Muldoon's official agents as robbers, which was taken as a reflection on the dignity of the professor himself, whose motto is "Love Me, Love Gunboat Smith." Therefore, Mr. Jacobs was sent to the salt mines, too, until he should apologize, which he presently did.

Nevertheless, the discontent is increasing. Considering the judge's recent handling of the rumor of the horse park gambling by members of the Cubs, there is some curiosity as to just what he does to earn his $65,000 a year for guaranteeing the integrity of baseball and installing calm confidence in the customers. Although Prof. Muldoon czars it free of charge in the prize fighting racket, there are persons disloyal enough to insist that he is extravagantly overpaid.

Judge Is Offside.

The judge was handed a statement from the management of the Cubs showing that Rogers Hornsby, the team manager, had borrowed some money from some of his subordinates. This is an old domestic custom of the baseball business, but it is deemed

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lon Warneke, twice thwarted in his zealous efforts to capture his eighteenth victory of the season, yesterday took the problem in hand in a manner that brought great joy to the crowd of 36,000 that assembled to see him pitch the second game of the Cubs series with the Phillies. Lon shut out those powerful sluggers from Philadelphia by a score of 2 to 0 on a skimpy apportionment of four singles.

The winning of that elusive No. 18 by allowing only four singles to the hardest hitting team in the majors afforded some happy statistics other than those bearing on Warneke's personal record. Most important of the statistical data rested on the fact that the victory enabled the Cubs to gain a game on all three of their National league first division rivals. This morning, with the third game of the Phillies series coming up this afternoon, the Cubs lead the second place Brooklyn Dodgers by 2½ games, the third place Pirates by 4 games, and the fourth place Phils by 7 games.

Both Runs in Fifth.

The Cubs scored both of their runs in the fifth inning, the only span in which they were able to do much with the stuff of that lank Chicago lad, Snipe Hansen. Lon himself scored the first run—the one that was enough to return himself the victor.

Warneke got started around when, with one out in the fifth, he knocked his second hit, a single to deep short. Billy Herman followed with the first extra base hit of the contest, a double to right, and Lon stopped at third. Jurges sent a fly to Klein, Warneke scoring and Herman taking third, after which Cuyler socked the second and last extra base hit of the contest, a double to right center, which enabled Herman to trot home.

It appeared that Cuyler would score also when Stephenson sent a hot grounder past second. Friberg, however, knocked it down, and, though Stevie was credited with the second of his three hits, it became necessary for Ki to pull up at third, where he was left stranded when Demaree, who replaced Johnny Moore against left handed pitching, filed to Lee.

Tinning to Pitch Today.

This afternoon Bud Tinning, who distinguished himself by pitching 12 2-3 scoreless innings in last Wednesday's 19 inning game against the Braves, will try to emulate Warneke's fine work. He will be opposed by Flint Rhem, scheduled for duty yesterday but given an extra day of rest at the instance of Manager Burt Shotton.

Bud, of course, will have a lot to shoot at, for yesterday the brutal Phillies stirred up only one threat during the entire afternoon. This came in the first inning, when Bartell drew one of Warneke's two passes and went to third on Klein's single. Hurst and Whitney couldn't get them home

Creak! Old Ball Players Try It Again

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Baseball fans, both young and old, rocked with joyous delirium today as Dave Bancroft's doughty baseball veterans nosed out Ed Roush's old timers, 6 to 4, even though none knew just how or why.

HANS WAGNER.

It was Old Timers' day at Redland field, a reunion of baseball heroes of days gone by. The old boys flocked upon the field like Rockne substitutes to swat, or try to swat, a baseball one again.

They paraded in such an endless stream that no attempt was made to keep a box score, and the fans could only guess at how the 6-4 result was arrived at.

Nobody cared enough to inquire, for that matter. The finish of the six inning "contest" was satisfying enough. Nick Altrock went in as relief pitcher and nonchalantly waved all his teammates but the catcher from the field. Solemnly he coaxed his victim to swing at two erratic balls. As solemnly the victim—lost in the shuffle and so unidentified—let the third one go by as the fans groaned and cheered.

Almost a new team swarmed onto the field with each inning. There were more than 135 of the past heroes around, and only a few elected not to play.

Tris Speaker was in the outfield again, Honus Wagner once more at short, Heinie Pietz, remaining half of Cincinnati's "pretzel" battery of decades ago, again behind the bat.

There was Chief Bender, Connie Mack's star of twenty years ago, swinging an aged arm to whip the ball down in the way batters used to fear; there was Slim Sallee, who tossed 'em for St. Louis, New York and Cincinnati long ago; Cy Young, Grover Hartley, Chick Smith, Al Kaiser, Jimmie Jones, John Bartley, Dave Bancroft, Claude Berry, Wid Dager, old time southpaw; George Gibson, Tommy Griffith, Peaches O'Neill, Fred Houtz—and many others.

There were more in the stands, among them 74 year old Gus Shallix, once with Cincinnati; 76 year old George Strief of Cleveland and St. Louis, Will Inks, who played with the famous Pop Anson, and Eugene Baker, now 87 years old, who played with Live Oaks in the '70s.

Those were names to conjure with, to call up baseball's glory. But age had taken toll, and the game the old timers put on was far from the baseball of their dreams. There were errors—dozens of them, as aged muscles lagged behind still active minds. There was little hitting, as eager eyes saw balls that aging eyes could not swing to hit. The longest hit of the day was the double by Pat Duncan, who was with Cincinnati in 1919, and it was a double only because it got through the outfielders.

SEXTON AGAIN BREAKS WORLD'S RECORD IN SHOT

Sexton, who won the Olympic shot put with a heave of 52 feet 6 3-16 inches, was competing with numerous other Olympic athletes in a track and field exhibition before a crowd of 50,000 in the Municipal stadium. The exhibition was offered free by the mayor's committee for entertainment of the city's unemployed.

Sexton's unofficial world's record of 52 feet 8⅝ inches was set at the American Olympic trials in Boston several weeks ago. The recognized world's record is 52 feet 6½ inches.

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., Aug. 21.—(AP)—An automobile driven by Joseph [Toots] Mondt, New York professional wrestler, collided headon with another car near here today and caused the death of one person with injuries to four others. Mondt was charged with manslaughter and released in $9,000 bail. He and his brother, Ralph, suffered cuts and bruises. Teresa Luciani of Toronto was killed.

195 OPEN DRIVE TODAY ON MOE'S AMATEUR CROWN

Record Field Seeks Western Golf Title.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 21.—(AP)—A record field of 196 golfers, headed by a quartet of former champions and two Walker cup stars, begin play for the western amateur golf championship at the Rockford Country club tomorrow.

Starting officials were swamped by last minute entries tonight as the championship field developed into the best and largest in 32 years of play. At the completion of final practice 19 year old Rodney Bliss of Omaha, Neb., state champ, came in bashfully and admitted he had just shot a 69, two under par, and three short of the course record established two years ago by Larry Moeller of Notre Dame.

A short time later Charlie Seaver of Los Angeles, a Walker cup team member, equaled Moller's competitive course record of 66 by pairing 33s.

Chicagoans Menace Moe.

Don Moe of Portland, Ore., the defending champion, faces formidable opposition. Among his competitors were Johnny Lehman of Chicago, who dethroned him at Beverly in 1930; Charles [Chick] Evans Jr., of Chicago, eight times holder of the title in the era of 1909 to '23; Keefe Carter, Oklahoma City champ; Harry Eichelberger, Los Angeles, whose 142 made him runner up in the national amateur qualifying round, and the golfing Dawsons from Chicago, including Warren, Illinois state amateur champ for the past two years. Chicago had a large delegation, including ten qualifiers for the coming national amateur.

The football field was in for a play, too, as such notables as Clarence [Doc] Spears, University of Wisconsin coach; Anthony Haines, Big Ten official, joined Seaver and Eichelberger, former Stanford players.

Finals on Saturday.

Because of the unexpectedly large field, all Rockford entries were requested to start play in the 18 hole qualifying rounds tomorrow and Tuesday at 7 a. m., central standard time. The 36 hole qualifying test will trim the field to the usual 32, who will be eliminated by a match play program, calling for two rounds at 18 holes each Wednesday and 36 hole matches the rest of the way through the final on Saturday.

The championship layout is reasonably long at 6,219 yards, par is 71 and the fairways are decked with just enough pitfalls to catch wild shots.

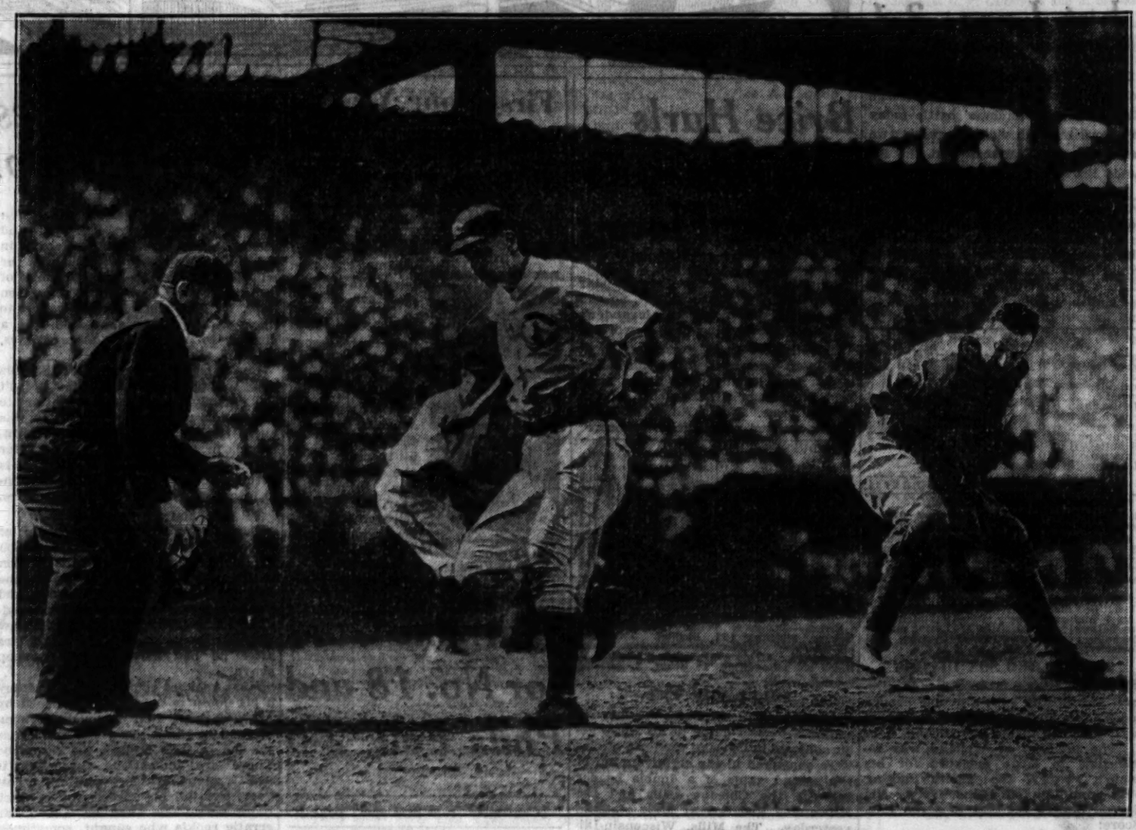
The accident occurred on the 19th lap of a 15 mile race. Kiser, who was trailing Virgil Livingood, turned on a burst of speed in an attempt to pass the leader. His car struck a rut on the west turn and rolled over three times. Kiser was injured internally.

A second Chicago dirt track driver figured in a mishap yesterday when James Blitz, 25 years old, of 5750 Berenice avenue, known on tracks as Jimmy McDowell, was injured at the North Shore speedway, just west of Waukegan. In negotiating a turn, Blitz veered too sharply. His car left the track and hit the track wall. He was taken to St. Therese hospital in Waukegan, seriously injured.

The race in which Kiser was injured was won by Livengood, with Glenn Smith second and Emil Andres third. Time for the event was 28:07. Drivers slowed down their cars immediately after Kiser's accident. The time was almost 10 minutes slower in this event than in the preceding 15 mile race won by Kiser in 18:08. Glen Smith was second in the first 15 mile event, and Emil Andres third.

Kiser won the first 10 mile race in 12:14 2-5, with Livengood second and C. O'Rourke third. Ori Anderson won the second 10 mile race in 12:44 1-5. Ray Giffney was second and George Hauser third.

WARNEKE USES BAT, ARM TO GET NO. 18



Lon Warneke scores the first run of yesterday's battle with the Phillies. This tally would have been enough for Lon's 18th victory as compared to five defeats, but the Cubs added another before the fifth inning was over. Warneke singled for his second hit, went to third on Herman's double and home on Jurges' fly, easily beating the throw to Catcher Todd. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Helen Jacobs Wins National Tennis Crown

Forest Hills, N. J., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Helen Jacobs ended a five year campaign to win the national women's tennis championship today by defeating Carolyn Babcock of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-2, in the finals of the tournament in which her nemesis, Helen Wills Moody, did not play.

HELEN JACOBS.

Miss Babcock, the sensation of earlier rounds, when she turned back such stars as Mrs. L. A. Harper and Joan Ridley on successive days, couldn't make it a contest against the girl from Berkeley, Cal., who completed her victorious way through the tournament with the loss of only one set.

Miss Babcock Erratic.

Whether it was stagefright or the fact she was against an opponent superior to those she had previously met, Miss Babcock today was just a very wild, erratic little player, merely doing her best against a tennis oracle who knew all the answers.

Playing at the top of her game, Miss Jacobs ripped across her service with a force that baffled her youthful opponent. Her returns, both forehand and backhand, were so severe they forced Miss Babcock into a total of 48 errors in the two sets.

Helen Loses Service Once.

Miss Jacobs lost her service only once, and that in the second set when there was no doubt of the outcome.

The new champion, now 23 years old, takes the big cup home on her fifth attempt. She had played in four previous tournaments, reaching the finals against Mrs. Helen Wills Moody in 1929. She lost to Dorothy Bennett Whittingstall of England in last year's semi-finals. The failure of Mrs. Moody to defend her title left Helen a clear path this time.

The summary:

Jacobs	4	1	4	3	4	4	4	5	—6
Babcock	1	4	1	5	2	1	1	3	—2

SECOND SET.

Jacobs	4	3	4	4	3	4	4	4	—6

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

SURPRISING as it may seem, the readers still are aware that Chicago has two teams in the major leagues. Among other things, they want to know why the White Sox cannot improve their system so that they can at least lift themselves out of the second division.

To begin with, it is presumptuous in view of results to believe that the Sox have a system. They have not been in the upper strata of the American league at the close of the season since 1920. Only one other club in the history of the league can match that record—the Boston Red Sox. And who wants to compare Chicago to Boston?

The White Sox, as every one knows, broke up one of the greatest teams in baseball after the exposé of 1920. They finished second that season. It was not surprising that they dropped to seventh in 1921. There was no squawking from the fans when the team failed to climb out of the bog in the next few years.

But twelve seasons have brought no change. The Sox of 1932 hardly can attribute their plight to the scandal of 1919. It is doubtful if any of the players ruled out of baseball would still be on the club. Red Faber is the only leftover from that era.

The following table will give you an idea of how the American league clubs have fared since the Black Sox nearly wrecked the game:

1921.....	5	7	2	6	1	8	3	4
1922.....	8	5	4	3	1	7	2	6
1923.....	8	7	3	2	1	6	5	4
1924.....	7	8	6	3	2	5	4	1
1925.....	8	5	6	4	7	2	3	1
1926.....	8	5	2	6	1	3	7	4
1927.....	8	5	6	4	1	2	7	3
1928.....	8	5	7	6	1	2	3	4
1929.....	8	7	3	6	2	1	4	5
1930.....	8	7	4	5	3	1	6	2
1931.....	6	8	4	7	2	1	5	3

Only once in all those years have the Sox given their supporters anything to shout about in league competition. That was in May, 1927, when the club, under the direction of Ray Schalk, went into New York only half a game out of first place. They collapsed almost immediately and sank into the second division, where they remained.

South side fans have been loyal in the face of annual disappointment. The largest baseball crowd in Chicago's history, 51,000, turned out last season to see a Sox team that was sunk hopelessly in eighth place play the Yankees, who were out of the pennant race. Chicago's enthusiasm for the White Sox dates from the way back when days of the late Charles A. Comiskey. He was one of the romantic figures in baseball.

Sentiment has been removed from White Sox patronage. The present leaders hardly can expect to cash in on the reflected glory of other days. They must realize a winning team is necessary to hold their following. A post season triumph over the Cubs is not sufficient to offset the punishment inflicted on the fans during the regular season.

What is the club doing to build for the future?

What is the president of the American league, William Harridge, doing to give one of the best baseball cities in the country a winning team?

Baseball is essentially an amusement business. There is no amusement in watching one team take walloping like the Sox have endured for the last 12 years. It ceases to be funny.

When the Cardinals began to assert their class in the National league, some of their star players were traded or sold to the weaker clubs. Due partly to these deals the senior league is enjoying one of the greatest races in its history.

Do the owners of other American league clubs refuse to make deals involving star players with the Sox? If they do, couldn't the head of the league help to adjust the situation?

There is no evidence to support charges that the Sox refuse to pay real money for players. They have had no holdouts in recent years. That is pretty good testimony of the relations between the business office and the players. The club has paid fancy prices for minor league talent, none of which measured up to anticipations.

There have been several instances of extravagance in handling recruits. Recently a pitcher from the University of San Francisco, Clarence Felber, was brought from San Francisco, only to find out he didn't know how to stand on the pitching mound.

Luck undoubtedly plays a part in the purchase of minor league players. Some come through, some fail. But the percentage seems to have worked too heavily against the Sox.

Manager Fonseca in desperation made a scouting tour of the American association during the club's last home stand. He was gone nine days. Scouts for other clubs frequently spend two or three weeks observing a single player. Fonseca came home

Joe Walcott, Ex-Champion, Is Sick, Broke

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Joe Walcott, Negro holder of the world's welterweight championship 30 years ago, was admitted to Bellevue hospital today, a victim of heart trouble.

JOE WALCOTT.

Walcott, who has been living in the squalor of an unlighted cellar in West 59th street, suffered an attack early this morning. A neighbor saw him collapse and summoned an ambulance. The diagnosis was "arterior sclerosis and senile psychosis."

Lives from Hand to Mouth.

Neighbors said Walcott had been living from hand to mouth for some time on the proceeds of an occasional refereeing job.

Some veteran boxing experts rate Walcott as the greatest fighter of his weight the ring ever knew. Only a heavy lightweight, Walcott earned his sobriquet, giant killer, by the easy manner in which he toppled light heavyweights and heavyweights.

One of his greatest fights was against Joe Choynski, who a short time before, had given Jim Corbett a terrific battle for twenty-eight rounds. Choynski outweighed Walcott, 173 pounds to 137, and was a 5 to 1 favorite in the betting. But the squat Negro floored Choynski several times in the first round and gave him a terrific beating until the referee was forced to stop the fight in the seventh round.

Corbett, McCoy Cagey.

Walcott and his manager, Tom O'Rourke, hurled serious challenges at such heavyweights as Corbett, Tom Sharkey, and Jim Jeffries, but none of these could be induced to accept. Walcott once offered to fight Corbett and Kid McCoy on the same night, taking an hour's rest between engagements. O'Rourke actually posted a $5,000 guarantee of good faith but Corbett and McCoy laughed it off.

GIANTS POUND 3 DODGER PITCHERS FOR 17 HITS AND 9 TO 3 VICTORY

Brooklyn Loses a Full Game in Pennant Race.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The pennant hungry Dodgers ran into nothing but trouble today as they returned home for a one day stand against the New York Giants.

The Giants hit just about everything three Brooklyn pitchers offered and pounded out a 9 to 3 victory. The Dodgers were set back a full game in their chase after the Chicago Cubs, who defeated the Phillies, but held their margin over the Pirates, who also lost.

The New Yorkers hammered 17 hits, bunching a large part of them in the first three innings to take a 6 to 0 lead. Then old Jack Quinn, who followed Freddy Heimach and Joe Shaute to the mound, slowed down the Giant batters with the aid of good support.

REDS WHIP PIRATES, 2-0.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Eppa Rixey today won his fourth straight game from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2 to 0—the only games he has won for the Cincinnati Reds this year. It was a fast game, Swift's edge in pitching being upset only by the bunching of two hits, a walk, and two high flies to bring in the only runs. Fielding on both sides was brilliant. Score:

Browns Equal Yanks' 3 Hits, but Lose, 3-1

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Young Johnny Allen had the better of George Blaeholder in a pitchers' battle today to record his 12th victory against two defeats as the Yankees beat the St. Louis Browns, 3 to 1.

Each team was held to three hits, with all the Yankees' hits off Blaeholder coming in the third inning to produce two tallies. Lou Gehrig hit a single with the bases full to bring home Combs and Sewell. Babe Ruth sent in another with a fly in the eighth. Brilliant fielding by Sewell and Lazzeri helped Allen. Score:

SIMONS DEFEATS DREWES IN FINAL OF PARKS TENNIS

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Arnold Simons of Louisville today won the national public parks tennis championship, defeating Ted Drewes of St. Louis, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

The 23 year old Simons, who reached the semi-finals in 1930 and the quarter finals last year, got off to a poor start against the veteran Drewes, who is 36 and won the title in 1924, '25, '26 and '27.

Simons' victory gave him the crown relinquished by George Jennings of Chicago, who held it four years, but was unable to compete this year on account of an injury.

MILLS WIN TWO.

John [Lefty] Sullivan's hopes of adding a perfect game to his three no-hit contests in Chicago semi-pro circles were shattered in the eighth inning of the second game of a double header between the Chicago Mills and the Milwaukee Red Sox at Mills stadium yesterday. The Mills, Wisconsin-Illinois semi-pro league leaders, won the game, 7 to 0, after taking the opener, 3 to 1.

Sullivan did not allow a walk or a hit for seven consecutive innings. Then in the eighth, with two out, Clarence Hackbarth, Milwaukee first baseman, formerly with Little Rock and Rochester, doubled to deep right. Sullivan immediately struck out Shiners. Two more strikeouts in the ninth brought Sullivan's total for the game to 12. Scores:

and the Phillies never had a peep in thereafter.

Friberg singled with two out in the second and failed to advance. Bartell singled with one down in the third and also failed to progress. Hurst walked with two out in the sixth and died on first. And in the ninth Hurst got a scratch hit with one out and went down in a game ending double play. That was the Phils' offensive.

Warneke got brilliant support from the Cub infield, every one of the quartet turning in at least one play much above the average in flash and skill. One of Grimm's circus plays seemed for a time to have been expensive. He crashed into the boxes to get G. Davis' foul in the fifth and for a few minutes was knocked out. He soon returned to the show, however. The outfield had a soft day. Damaree had four easy chances in center and Stephenson gathered in three soft ones in left. Cuyler did not have a putout.

Phils Merely Threaten.

The Phils had men on first and third with one out in the first inning, but failed to score. G. Davis fanned. Then Warneke pitched four straight wide ones to Bartell. Klein lined a single to right, which put Bartell on third. Hurst flied to Stephenson. Bartell held third after drawing a throw from Stephenson to the plate, whereupon Hartnett let Chicagoland amateurs will meet the Italian Olympic boxing team at the Chicago Stadium tonight in eight international matches. Four preliminary encounters between Chicago boxers round out the card.

Italian citizens of Chicago have been entertaining the visitors since their arrival last Friday from Kansas City, Mo., where they defeated Kansas City boxers in six of eight bouts. The foreigners are en route from Los Angeles, Cal., where they competed in the Olympic games, to their homes in Italy.

The Chicagoland boys represent the best that could be selected from the array of local talent. On the basis of past performances, the Chicagoans have a good chance to hand the Italians their first international whipping.

Smith Meets Rovati.

Adam Smith, Rockford heavyweight, is in one of the headline bouts. He is to box Luigi Rovati, who has a record of 120 victories in 125 starts. Rovati finished second in the championships at Los Angeles. He knocked out Ralph White at Kansas City in the second round, after scoring five knockdowns. Rovati weighs 185 pounds and will be about 15 pounds lighter than Smith. He has won more than 40 per cent of his contests by knockouts.

Johnny Phagan, south side colored welterweight, will make his last start as an amateur tonight when he meets Luciana Fabroni. Phagan has won several amateur titles, including Intercity Golden Gloves and the Central A. A. U. championships. He knocked out Erich Campe in the International Golden Gloves bouts with Germany.

Max Marek, Chicago light heavyweight, an alternate on the United States Olympic team will face Gino Rossi, a southpaw, and the only other member of the Italian squad who reached the Olympic finals.

Offense Will Count.

Marek, who saw the Italians in action at Los Angeles, claims that the Chicagoland boxers must be on the offensive throughout the three round fights to win.

Gene Higgins, Catholic Youth organization and Central A. A. U. lightweight titleholder, is matched with Mario Bianchini. Bianchini was one of the two Italians who were beaten at Kansas City. The other was Gaspare Alessandri, the featherweight who boxes Frankie May.

Frankie Sanello, Italian-American, who is the Chicagoland flyweight, meets Edelweis Rodriguez. Rodriguez was beaten by Louis Salica, National A. A. U. champion, at Los Angeles.

After the bouts the Italian team will be given a victory dinner at 1014 South Halsted street. Judge Francis Borelli, Judge John Lupe and Dr. John Sbarboro will be hosts.

Women Start Western Golf TourneyToday

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A field of 150, headed by the defending champion, Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, Mo., will begin play tomorrow morning in the women's western golf championship tournament over the Country club of Peoria course, and some time before sundown 32 will be named as the survivors.

The Chicago contingent is the strongest obstacle to Mrs. Hill's objective of two successive championships. Among the Chicagoans are Jane Weiller of Northmoor, who has developed a splendid game during her few years of competition; June Beebe of Olympia Fields and the golfing Beebes; Jane Armstrong, Indian Hill; Mrs. Melvin Jones, Lincolnshire, a former winner of the cup; Helen MacMorran, Indian Hill, and Virginia Ingram, Sunset Ridge.

The Country club course appears to have a women's par that will be difficult to equal, not to mention beating it. It is a rolling layout with greens trimmed to lightning speed.

Out of bounds penalties are designed to worry either chronic or occasional slicers on eight of the holes. Plenty of worries are provided on the other ten.

In the warm up round: Mrs. Hill turned in the best score, an 83, which is seven strokes more than par. Jane Weiller and Mrs. Austin Pardue of Minneapolis, the former Dorothy Klotz of Chicago, were second best with 85.

3 Years Olds Game Horses: They'll Face Equipoise Again

BY FRENCH LANE.

The 3 year olds of American racing may have scrambled their title race into a mixture out of which it is impossible to pick a genuine champion, but one can't charge any of them with a lack of courage.

Gusto, Faireno, and Burgoo King are the 3 year olds which claim a slice of the championship. Among them they have won most of the big races in their division. The champion does not usually go out of his class to battle the older horses. Twenty Grand didn't, Gallant Fox didn't, Zev didn't, and neither did a lot of the other 3 year old crown wearers of recent years.

All Shooting at Equipoise.

So it seems rather odd to see Gusto and Faireno taking one crack after another at the older champion, Equipoise, from C. V. Whitney's stable. Burgoo King no doubt would have been right with them, fighting against Equipoise, but for his frail legs, which made it impossible for him to race on through the season.

A month ago, after he had won the Classic at Arlington and the American Derby at Washington Park, Gusto was generally ranked as the champion 3 year old of the year. Yet he went right along, tackled Equipoise twice in weight for age events, and was badly beaten in both endeavors. He has been beaten in the Travers stakes, and lots of folks no longer will classify him as a champion.

Renew Battle in Gold Cup.

Now comes Faireno, a son of Chatterton and a grandson of famous old Fair Play. Faireno's championship claims now seem stronger than those of any his rivals, and he plans to take on the heart shattering Equipoise in the Hawthorne Gold Cup race next Saturday afternoon. A game fellow, you must admit, to tackle a horse like Equipoise. And he's an audacious fellow also, for he's going to travel from Chicago in the same car with Equipoise. If horses talk he will probably say to Equipoise, "You're an old man [Equipoise is 4]; get on out of the way and give a young fellow a chance."

There probably will be two other Gold Cup candidates in the shipment from the east, Mate and St. Brideaux. They will find Plucky Play, My Dandy, Evergold, Charleigh, Polydorus, and possibly Valenciennes or Risque, making up the western crowd that will be trying to take the $25,000 prize and the Gold Cup away from them.

How About Plucky Play.

Unless there should be an upset that will shock most every racegoer in the country there isn't any way to figure the Gold Cup except as a battle among Equipoise, Plucky Play, and Faireno.

Plucky Play's ability to beat such mighty horses as Sun Beau and Equipoise during the last two seasons has caused a lot of people to refer to him as the giant killer. But his slaying of giants has always been done when he was getting twenty or more pounds the best of it in the weights. He must carry equal weights with Equipoise in the Gold Cup.

Faireno's drive for the 3 year old title started this year when he won the famous Belmont stakes. Gusto was one of his victims. Three weeks later he won the Shevlin stakes at Aqueduct. Then, on July 2, he captured the Dwyer stakes at the same track.

Whipped by Gusto in Classic.

Then came a setback in the Classic at Arlington, which was won by Gusto. Lots of folks began to regard Gusto as the best 3 year old of the year. Faireno then stepped up and began taking on his older rivals. He won the Saratoga handicap and traveled west to win the $25,000 Hawthorne handicap. He encountered all the good older horses in the country in these two all age events except Equipoise.

So now we find him traveling west again trailing Equipoise, trying to run down the old champion, who will sooner or later crack under the strain.

Hagen's Birdies Come Home to Roost; He's 6 Under Par

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Walter Hagen, who has regaled Chicago golf galleries with many a good performance since he won his first national open title at Midlothian in 1914, brought them to their feet again yesterday at the Brookwood Country club with one of the best acts of his career. The old maestro, playing with José Juardo, the little Argentine champion, carved himself a 66, six under par, which enabled him and his South American partner to defeat Harry Cooper of Glen Oak and Horton Smith of Oak Park, 3 and 2, in an eighteen hole best ball match. A gallery of 600 cheered him.

That 66 included a few conceded putts, but the manner in which Walter played the rest of the round left little doubt that he would have matched 66 even if he had holed out on every green. He had a 33 for each nine and lowered the Brookwood course record, held by Dave Cairns, the club professional, by four strokes.

Walter Gets Six Birdies.

His card included six birdies—on the fourth, fifth, ninth, tenth, sixteenth, and, in keeping with the old Hagen custom of sending the customers home happy, one on the eighteenth. He had plenty of support from Jurado; for, in 38, the little brown man imitated Hagen perfectly on the final portion of the round, coming home in 33. Cooper dashed around in 70 and Smith hit par, 72.

The individual and best ball cards for the match follow:

WORLD MARKET TREMORS FELT IN WHEAT HERE

Reaction in Canada Is Unsettling.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Weakness and lower prices in the wheat market at Winnipeg unsettled all American and European markets late last week, causing sharp declines. There is a most distrustful feeling regarding the future action of Canadian and American markets and their effect on Liverpool and other foreign market prices.

Traders were stirred up by reports that the British Empire conference at Ottawa would lead to a preferential tariff of 3c a bushel on Canadian wheat.

Winnipeg Prices Drop Fast.

Prices in Winnipeg declined 4¼ to 5c within a week. October wheat at Winnipeg, recently supported at 56c by buying said to be for the Canadian pool account, and later advanced to 59½c, was down to 54⅛c on Saturday, a net loss of 5c for the week. May wheat in Winnipeg declined 4⅛c to 60⅜c and closed 60⅝c to 61c, a net loss of 4⅛c.

The Chicago market finished at the lowest on the present downturn, with a break of 7c from the top of the previous week. Net losses were 1⅛c to 1⅜c. The Liverpool close was at 55⅞c for December, a loss of ⅛c for the week.

Hedging pressure from the northwest and southwest was of liberal volume, but rather below the average for this season of the ye - as the marketing movement which reached liberal proportions in the American and Canadian northwest is not expected to continue heavy. American farme rs and part of the Canadian farmers are said to be holding back their grain because of the low prices.

Receives Wheat for Taxes.

The Saskatchewan government is taking farmers' wheat at 70c in settlement of taxes and other claims with proportional differentials for other grains. Canada is doing the export business of North America, while the United States markets are out of line. The majority of Chicago traders expresses the belief that the United States, with a big surplus, will have to drop its prices to a competitive basis with other surplus producing countries or hold it indefinitely.

Eastern interests who have advanced security prices sharply within the last three months, and have tried to keep wheat prices at higher levels, have thus far failed, as present prices are down closer to the 50c level after a good rise within a month.

Chairman Stone of the federal farm board was quoted as saying its holdings of cash wheat had been reduced to only 14,000,000 bushels, a cut of about 10,000,000 bushels inside of a month. There is no information, however, as to who bought that wheat or what has been done with the 25,000,000 bushels of futures that the farm board was credited with holding. The traders, however, believe that it has been liquidated, but that notion lacks confirmation.

Jewel Tea Earns $2 Per Share in Six Mos. Period

For the 28 weeks ending July 16 the Jewel Tea company reports net earnings of $559,278 after federal taxes, depreciation, reserves and excluding the loss in connection with Jewel Food stores, or $2 a share on the common stock against $786,218, or $2.81 a share in the corresponding 1931 period. Sales amounted to $6,082,198 against $7,609,860 in the 1931 period. The company stated that during the 18 weeks in which it has owned the Jewel Food Stores, Inc., operating losses plus extraordinary expenses totaled $104,119, which was charged against reserve for contingencies, set up at the close of 1931, in an amount of $280,000.

Woodin Says Panic Is Over but Depression Is Not

Berwick, Pa., Aug. 21.—(AP)—William H. Woodin, president of the American Car and Foundry company and a director of the New York Federal Reserve bank, here for the week-end, expressed optimism today over the economic outlook.

"There is a broad feeling of confidence and optimism prevailing," he said, "as a foundation for the return of prosperity."

He said he believed the forced liquidation of stocks and properties, hoarding of currency, and breaking of banks has been halted. While he said the "panic" was over, he warned, however, that "we still are in the depression."

Business by Checks Gains for Week Ended Aug. 17

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago for the week ended Aug. 17, 1932, by 154 banks in 36 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district aggregate $727,207,000, an increase of 11.7 per cent compared with a week ago $651,107,000). Compared with the corresponding week of last year ($991,672,000), a decrease of 26.7 per cent was shown.

Expect Insull Collateral Auction to Be Postponed

Four New York banks are scheduled to sell at public auction today the collateral they hold against loans to the two Insull investments. It is expected that the sale will be postponed again pending a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Illinois on the legality of the auction. The sale has already been continued 7 times.

See Purchases of Scrap Steel as Good Omen

Commitments by steel producers in the scrap steel market are regarded as a sign of increased confidence, according to the magazine Steel. Slight gains at Pittsburgh, Chicago and Youngstown have put the industry's activities up 1 point to between 15 and 16 per cent of activity during the last week, the magazine declares. This rate probably will hold during the current week, it adds.

"With credit easier," the article declares, "the price of scrap rising and its current production limited, steelmakers are disposed to accumulate it. Three mills in the Detroit, Cleveland and Youngstown districts have made sizable purchases in the last week; another valley mill is in the market.

"But consumers of steel, lacking actual increase in demand for their products and being under no compulsion of price or supply to build up inventories, still are placing only their immediate requirements. Hence producers are more optimistic in their purchasing than their selling departments.

"At Detroit there has been a noteworthy accrual of sentiment. Automobile manufacturers, convinced that retention of a large share of recent improvement in the stock market will stimulate demand for new cars, are expediting work on new models. Decisions to advance introduction of 1933 cars several months are pending, with steel needs probably moved forward proportionately.

"Semi-finished steelmakers are considering new extras, passing to consumers certain charges for inspection, cutting and chipping. Bar iron is off $1 at Chicago to 1.60 cents. An irregular situation in sheets continues, reducing the iron and steel composite of steel 8 cents to $29.26 and the finished steel composite 20 cents to $47.31. Maintaining its recent upward tendency, the scrap composite has risen 13 cents to $6.29."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 21.—The committee on securities of the New York Curb exchange has ruled that contracts for Peoples Gas Light and Coke company $20,000,000 first and refunding mortgage 6 per cent gold bonds, series C, due on June 1, 1957 traded in on a when-issued basis, must be settled Aug. 29 by delivery of temporary bonds.

"In the meantime," the committee announced, "contracts may be settled by the seller giving to the buyer one day's written notice of his intention to make delivery. Such notice, however, must be given before 2:15 p. m. Interest shall cease on the delivery date established and such notice. Final settlement of contracts may be enforced 'under the rule' beginning Monday, Aug. 29."

Bright Spots of the Day's Business News

Business conditions are improving in Burlington, Ia. The Northwestern Cabinet company called back eighty men out of a hundred and sixty and will increase their pay roll as conditions warrant. The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railway shops at West Burlington resumed operations after several months layoff. The button factory at Columbus Junction, forty miles north of here, has resumed operations and added twenty new machines employing a hundred.

East Liverpool, O., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Taylor, Smith & Taylor Pottery company at Chester, W. Va., today announced a 20 per cent increase in production, providing additional work for 750 employés on a part time basis. The reason given was stimulation of the trade by the recent wage agreement between operators and unions.

Unit sales of the General Tire and Rubber company for the first six months of 1932 were greater than for any previous similar period in the history of the company, according to W. O'Neil, president of the company. Today, the General Tire factories are working full time and sales are steadily increasing.

Orders approximating $2,000,000 for merchandise and supplies for the new Wanamaker Men's Store, now being completed in Philadelphia, have been placed with manufacturers. The orders cover clothing fabrics, ready to wear clothing, sports and athletic equipment, men's furnishings, luggage, boots and shoes and store equipment. Preparations are being hurried for an opening in early October, in order to take advantage of the expected fall upturn in retail buying.

A slight advance in cocoa futures last week was partly in response to some demand from consumers, the weekly review of the New York cocoa exchange reports.

Five hundred employés of the Gonic Manufacturing company textile mills at Rochester, N. H., were notified of a 10 per cent wage increase, effective immediately.

1932 INTERNAL REVENUE REPORT PICTURES LOSSES

$1,557,729,042 from Fiscal Year Sources.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Total collections of internal revenue from all sources were $1,557,729,042 for the fiscal year 1932, which ended last June 30, compared with $3,428,228,754 for the fiscal year 1931, according to the report of collections made public today by Commissioner of Internal Revenue David Burnet.

DAVID BURNET.

During the last fiscal year, it was shown, tax refunds totaling $80,583,504 were made, of which $72,726,680 represented erroneous collections of income tax. There was, on the other hand, a total of $332,363,707 collected in additional assessments, $309,275,000 of this amount being in income taxes.

Out of the total internal revenue collected during the fiscal year 1932 corporation and individual income taxes brought in $1,056,756,697, or $803,283,799 less than the $1,860,040,497 collected in income taxes in 1931.

Decrease in Miscellaneous List.

Collections from miscellaneous taxes, which include all sources of internal revenue except income tax, were $500,972,345 in 1932 and $568,188,256 in 1931, representing a decrease of $67,215,911.

Miscellaneous tax receipts were made up as follows: Tobacco taxes—cigars, $14,434,188; cigarets, $317,564,739; manufactured tobacco and snuff, $65,876,457. Stamp taxes—Capital stock and bond issues, $9,198,539; stock transfers, $17,696,129; future sales of produce, $959,319; playing cards, $4,386,830. Estate tax, $47,422,313. Admissions and dues, $11,063,193. Pistols and revolvers, $87,358. Narcotics, $521,162. Distilled spirits, $8,703,963. Miscellaneous, $2,354,916.

In estate taxes, Illinois ranked fourth with $2,297,446, being surpassed by New York with collections of $15,738,017; New Jersey, with $3,900,136, and Pennsylvania, with $3,359,989.

The cost of administering the internal revenue laws in 1932 was $33,870,903, or $2.17 for each $100 collected, as compared with $1.40 during 1931 when, as Mr. Burnet points out, the receipts were 36 per cent greater.

Figures for Illinois.

Internal revenue receipts from Illinois were as follows: First district [collection office, Chicago]—Income tax, $87,767,063; miscellaneous taxes, $13,839,635; total, $101,606,699. Eighth district [collection office, Springfield]—Income tax, $3,693,947; miscellaneous taxes, $1,375,580; total, $5,069,528. Total for Illinois, $106,676,227, compared with $190,787,170 in 1931. Receipts in the first district dropped 45 per cent; those in the eighth district fell 33 per cent.

More Colombian Coffee Imported for Half Year

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—Imports of Colombian coffees by the United States for the six months ending June 30, 1932, were 175,680,132 pounds, compared with 166,383,891 pounds during the corresponding period last year, an increase of 9,296,241 pounds, or 5.6 per cent, according to figures just released by the United States department of commerce. This country is the leading purchaser of Colombia's coffees, consuming more than 90 per cent of that South American republic's exports.

Recipients of Federal Loans Named Today

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Loans made by the Reconstruction corporation between July 21, and Aug. 1, will be made public tomorrow by South Trimble, clerk of the house, and the effect of the publicity is awaited here with keen interest.

President Hoover has indicated that he will not interfere and is understood to feel that it could not be determined whether harm would result until after the loans are made public.

Trimble announced last Thursday his decision to make public the first monthly report on the corporation's activities under the relief act and plans to carry it out tomorrow at about 10 o'clock.

No Opposition Seen.

It is understood there were few loans made during the ten-day period after President Hoover signed the bill on July 21. Rumors that court action might be instituted to prevent the making of the loans public have died down.

Speaker Garner and the Democratic house insisted upon the adoption of the so-called publicity provision on the ground that the people should know where the $3,500,000,000 set-up for economic rehabilitation goes. President Hoover and administration leaders fought the provision, contending it would damage borrowing banks and corporations.

President Waits Effect.

Should some harm follow the publication, it is understood the administration will point out that the records were opened to public inspection over the President's protest.

Leading Democrats and others, however, have held that an institution would be helped rather than hurt by publication of the fact that it was backed by the powerful government agency.

Meanwhile, the corporation announced yesterday that it loaned $3,000,000 to Wisconsin for relief purposes, and the interstate commerce commission authorized the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to borrow $31,625,000 more from the relief agency to meet obligations.

RAILS, UTILITY BONDS LEADERS IN WEEK'S MART

Low Priced Issues Make Steady Gains.

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Speculative rails gave the bond market a buoyant tone during the last week. The averages for all categories moved into new high territory since last March.

Low priced issues pushed ahead daily, with gains of 1@3 points, with a more restrained movement. The strength of the carriers was shown by the fact that the average for sixty selected rail bonds advanced more than 5 points.

Rails, Utilities Gain.

The transportation group made it a runaway race, although the utility averages were up around 3 points and those of the industrials more than a point.

The principal spur to the railroads was the apparently growing belief that the Reconstruction Finance corporation would use its funds to tide the weaker ones over their times of travail. Traffic returns of some of the lines also began to show signs of life, and the leading rail executives of the country met in Chicago to map out further drastic economies and possible wage cuts.

B. & O. Loan Factor.

The governmental attitude toward the carriers was exemplified Saturday when the interstate commerce commission approved a loan of $31,625,000 to the Baltimore and Ohio to aid it in refunding a maturity of double that amount due next March. This road's bonds soared and issues of St. Louis-San Francisco were heavily traded on reports that the Frisco stock and bond holders would approve its reorganization proposal.

Loans of the communication companies, especially those of International Telephone, Postal Telegraph, and Western Union, were among the leaders of the utilities. Amusement company bonds were in unusual demand on reports that the moving picture theater business was improving. Oil company issues firmed, and a number of industrial specialties advanced substantially.

The foreign section was comparatively quiet and irregular. The ordinarily active Germans slowed down somewhat and displayed sagging tendencies. The Japanese eased in sympathy with the falling yen, and the Argentines rallied as wheat and meat prices advanced.

There was little change in the United States government department.

Pay Taxes and Operate It and This Railroad Is Yours

Denver, Colo., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad has notified the state public utilities commission it will give its 39 mile branch between Saperino and Lake City, Colo., to any one who will operate it and pay the taxes. Or the road will lease the branch for $480 a year and throw in free use of a locomotive and coach. In the '90s the branch was one of the thriving feeder lines of the Rio Grande system.

POWER, GAS AND WATER SECURITIES CORPORATION

Collateral Trust 5% Gold Bonds, Due November 1, 1948

To the Holders of the above entitled Bonds:

The undersigned has formulated a plan for submission to holders of the above bonds which, if consummated in accordance with its terms, will permit the payment of $400 in cash per $1000 principal amount of bonds accompanied by the November 1, 1932 and all subsequent coupons to the holders of not exceeding $2,700,000 of the outstanding bonds of Power, Gas and Water Securities Corporation. Certain shares of stock will also be delivered to bondholders upon consummation of the plan. Bonds with respect to which such payment shall be made will be cancelled.

Unless this plan is put into effect, it is not anticipated that Power, Gas and Water Securities Corporation will, on November 1, 1932, be in a position to pay its obligations then due, including interest upon the above bonds. The board of directors of the Corporation has worked out a plan, which, if consummated, will save the bondholders the expenses and losses incident to default, receivership, foreclosure and forced sale of the pledged collateral. As a result of such endeavors the Corporation has obtained an offer to purchase certain securities owned by it for the sum of $1,100,000 plus certain accrued interest, providing delivery thereof can be made not later than September 10, 1932.

Holders of the above bonds are invited to deposit the same, accompanied by the November 1, 1932 and all subsequent coupons, with Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company as Depositary, at its principal office, 70 Broadway, New York City, under a Deposit Agreement dated August 20, 1932. Bonds must be deposited in negotiable form on or before September 10, 1932, but after $2,700,000 principal amount of bonds has been deposited no further deposits will be received. The Depositary will issue its Certificates of Deposit in bearer form against the deposit of bonds.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit will have the unqualified right on and after September 22, 1932, to surrender the same and to receive, if the contemplated sale has been consummated, cash as aforesaid and, when ready for delivery, the shares of stock mentioned above or, if such sale has not been consummated, bonds and appurtenant coupons to the amount specified in their Certificates of Deposit, in either case without being required to pay any expenses, charges or taxes as a condition of such payment or delivery.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement and of the circular letter dated August 20, 1932, addressed to bondholders and containing full information with respect to this plan may be obtained from the Depositary, Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company, at its office, 70 Broadway, New York City, or from the undersigned at 1 Exchange Place, Jersey City, N. J.

Definite Gains in Employment Shown in July

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—A definite upturn in business in July was reported today by the labor department. It noted furthermore, "strong indications that this upward trend in employment was not entirely of a temporary character."

"Reports of the United States employment service reveal that July witnessed the first really noticeable expansion in industrial activity that has occurred so far this year," said the department's industrial employment information bulletin.

"Conditions in the boot and shoe industry generally improved. Quite a number of these factories increased operations to a full time basis, recalling many workers who had been idle for some time past.

Textiles Gain.

"A decided upward trend occurred in the textile industry, especially noticeable in the mills manufacturing woolen and worsted goods, rayon and silk products, and hosiery where thousands of men and women were reemployed.

"Very little change occurred in the volume of employment in the iron and steel mills and operating schedules remained far below normal; however, slight increases were noted in a few districts.

"Part time schedules were reported as general in the automobile factories. The upturn in coal mining in a number of the anthracite fields resulted in the return to work of several thousand miners, but this improvement was not reflected in the bituminous areas where large surpluses of these miners were noted.

"Metalliferous mining remained far below normal, except that of gold which showed some increase in production and employment.

Road Work Gains.

"Work was started on many new highway contracts, which with the projects already under way provided employment for large numbers of men. This expansion in road construction resulted in increased activities in the stone quarries and cement mills where additional workers were also engaged.

"Harvesting in the agricultural areas was in full swing and thousands of men and women were engaged during the month.

"While seasonal influences were partly responsible for the increase of forces reported in several of the major manufactories of the country, there were also strong indications that this upward trend in employment was not entirely of a temporary character. A more optimistic feeling prevailed with the outlook for August considered encouraging."

San Diego Gas, Electric Asks Permit for Bonds

San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric company, subsidiary of Standard Gas and Electric Company, has applied to the California railroad commission for authority to issue and sell $2,000,000 par value of first and refunding mortgage 5½ per cent bonds, series D, at a price to net the company not less than 88 and accrued interest.

DRUG, INC., COVERS ITS DIVIDEND IN 6 MONTHS; KEEPS UP ADVERTISING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 21.—Dividend requirements of Drug, Inc., for the six months ended on June 30 were more than covered, according to the semi-annual report issued today, which showed for the period, after all charges, a net income of $7,584,021, compared with $10,656,053 for the first six months of 1931. After the payment of dividends on the outstanding stock of a subsidiary company the earnings for the six months were equivalent to $2.19 a share on the 3,501,499 shares of Drug stock outstanding at the end of the period. This compares with $3.04 a share on the same number of shares in the first half of last year.

W. C. Watt, treasurer, in his report to stockholders said the company's stability, as shown in its continuation of the $1 quarterly dividend on the common stock, was accounted for largely "by its policy of maintaining a consistent expenditure in national advertising for its products."

"We are convinced," Mr. Watt said, "that advertising has been of great importance in maintaining a satisfactory sales volume."

The company's current assets on June 30 were $58,830,145, including cash of $14,687,704, and marketable securities of $11,842,145 at cost, against current liabilities of $3,350,523. Marketable securities were stated at cost, but provision has been made for a reserve to bring them to market value as of June 30. Of the total of marketable securities approximately $9,000,000 is in government securities, municipal bonds, call loans and certificates of deposit.

CHICAGO TRADE GROUP REPORTS BETTER BUSINESS

A renewal of confidence and increased activity, together with a decidedly improved sentiment, was evident in many lines of trade during the last week in Chicago. Business was backed up with larger and more general buying than has been seen for some time, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

At wholesale and retail there were several indications of increased employment and prospects for more activity among merchandisers. The volume of business as a whole was in excess of the same time last year. Shipping departments of several jobbers were reported still crowded with orders taken at the recent meeting of the interstate merchants council, necessitating working nights as buyers were anxious to get their new stocks on hand.

In the steel industry there was a noticeable revival in buying. The orders already placed plus those being figured on aggregated over 30,000 tons of structural and steel tank work, to be used in connection with the Chicago World's Fair buildings. Orders are also anticipated for steel and iron to be used in car repair work on a number of large eastern and western railroads.

WHAT'S AHEAD? WALL STREET IS BUSY GUESSING

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 21.—Tired out by its prolonged phenomenal exertions in the name of enforced prosperity, the share market appears to have entered at last what the professionals are fond of referring to as a trading range. Price fluctuations as measured by the average indexes have held for the last week within an arc of 5 or 6 points with declines following advances in monotonous sequence.

Some of those who watch the wheels go round at short range are crying out that the situation is ripe for a "decisive movement" in one direction or the other but predictions as to the direction the expected swing may take are strangely scarce. The truth is that nobody has any idea what is going to happen now. Many, having marveled wide-eyed at the advance as it drove forward day by day setting all precedent aside and belying all rules of the game are convinced beyond persuasion that a day of disillusionment is at hand. There has been too much unfulfilled ballyhoo, they contend, too many "plans" for reviving prosperity by main strength and awkwardness still in the nebulous state, and too much hope staked on an autumn upturn that as yet has shown no sign of rounding the corner.

Fear Reaction Is Near.

Proponents of this sobering viewpoint are fearful, naturally, that the market must come off its high perch and establish itself on more modest ground before it can hope to attract enough of a following to carry on its advance.

Certain dyed in the wool optimists on the other hand can see nothing but sweetness and light ahead and think the market has not anything like realized its visible possibilities in the shape of current inflation, improved railroad carloadings figures, gold inflow and reopening factories here and there about the country. Having gone beyond the widest bounds of imagination in its 2½ year reaction, the market they say is now entitled to set the doubters and pessimists to shame with a comeback of really substantial proportions.

The backroom boys—the "great unwashed public"—frankly perplexed beyond its measure has retired once more to the side lines to await "signs following"—taking care the meanwhile to keep a stout rubber band on the old purse. This was testified to in striking fashion by the sharp decrease in volume last week, the total falling from the 4 and 5 million share days of awhile back to a meager two million or less.

Business Pains Absent.

It is not to be denied that statistics coming to hand are doing nothing to nourish the hope of improving business. The country's foreign trade touched a new bottom in July and imports being the smallest since 1904 and exports the poorest since 1908. Cotton consumption sagged afresh, motor activity has decreased sharply and steel operations show no sign of improving beyond the present 15 per cent capacity. Wheat, cotton and the principal commodity markets have halted abruptly in their uptrend.

One bullish development of the last week was the declaration of the American Telephone and Telegraph company's regular quarterly dividend, but since it is common knowledge that the rate is not being currently earned the announcement proved something of a dud so far as its influence on the stock market was concerned.

Market Factors Ahead.

One of the market's chief worries as it enters the new week is the effect to be produced by the threatened disclosure of the list of borrowers—and the list of their borrowings—from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Brokers are inclined to rate the move as bearish and several of their weekend letters bristle with criticism of the move which they brand as a bit of untimely politics, designed to serve no good purpose. President Hoover's conference with business leaders on Friday is another potential market factor in the immediate foreground. A dozen or so doubtful dividends will be up for action but none of them are of prime importance—even if the market were paying any attention to dividends which it most emphatically is not.

National Power and Light Issues Midyear Report

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—The National Power and Light company, which is a member of the Electric Bond and Share group of companies, had total current assets of $19,672,973 on June 30, against current liabilities of $812,313, it was disclosed today when the company released its midyear statement. Cash on hand amounted to $9,776,314 and surplus was $9,811,096. Earnings for the twelve months ended June 30 showed a balance applicable to interest of $11,522,680, and after fixed charges and dividends on the preferred there was a balance applicable to the common stock equivalent to $1.56 a share. This compared with $1.71 a share for the twelve months ended June 30, 1931, and $1.67 for the calendar year 1931.

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance.

I have a small policy in the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company and I am thinking of taking out more. Is the Northwestern company safe? In times like these I cannot afford to take any chances.—H. B.

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company (Milwaukee, Wis.) was incorporated in Wisconsin in 1857. It writes participating life insurance on the annual dividend plan.

The company is controlled by its policyholders. It has had a consistent, conservative growth. Insurance in force at the close of 1931 was four billion 96 million dollars, against three billion 701 million dollars on Dec. 31, 1923, and one billion 681 million dollars on Dec. 31, 1918.

Expenses are low and the mortality rate is favorable. The company has no earmarked surplus, but reserves for contingencies are ample. Reserve basis is strong.

Income in 1931 was $191,461,000 and disbursements, including $44,009,000 dividends to policyholders, were $152,554,000.

Total admitted assets on Dec. 31, 1931, were $977,266,000. Of these, one per cent was real estate, 42 per cent mortagage loans, 22 per cent policy loans, 31 per cent bonds (carried on amortized basis) and one per cent cash.

The company's reputation is excellent.

Evans-Wallower Lead.

Will you please give me your report on Evans-Wallower Lead company? I have some of this stock and am anxious to know how it stands.—Mrs. M. A.

Evans-Wallower Lead company produces lead and zinc. Its finished products are used to manufacture paints, linoleum, rubber, etc.

The company operated at a loss in each of the last three years. In 1931 and 1930 losses before depreciation and depletion were reported. Total net loss for 1931 was $319,000, against loss of $580,000 for 1930 and loss of $233,000 for 1929. Net income in 1928 was $185,000, or 13 cents per common share.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $234,000 and current liabilities were $33,000. Working capital was $200,000, against $413,000 the year before. Profit and loss deficit was $82,000.

There are outstanding 25,000 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred ($100) and 615,000 no par common shares. Unpaid accumulated dividends on the preferred totaled $17.50 per share on July 1, 1932.

On April 1, 1932, the preferred was in arrears on dividends for two years. It thus became the sole voting stock. Both the preferred and common are highly speculative.

FINNISH EDITOR VISITS CHICAGO; TELLS OF TRADE

Urges Reciprocity in Business Deals.

BY URHO TOIVOLA.

[Editor of the Turun Sanomat, Turku, Finland, who visited Chicago last week on his way back from the Olympic games at Los Angeles.]

There are few places in Europe where the American prestige stands higher than in Finland, largely due to American relief work and athletic achievements and automobiles.

The auto has brought the remote countryside in closer touch with the leading cities.

Finns were unanimous that the Olympic team to be sent to the United States had to be as representative as possible, no matter what the expenses.

There is a special and to some extent utilitarian reason for that attitude. The Finnish people and their trading community are eager to develop stronger commercial relations between Finland and the United States.

America Needs Export Trade.

From the American point of view it may seem of no vital importance what the future of the Finnish-American trade will be. The American export trade, however, is in need of all possible outlets.

The manufacturers and merchants of great nations can overlook, without loss, the markets to be found in small countries. The American exports to Russia are carried on, at the present time, at the rate of $11,500,000 a year. The American exports to Finland amounted in 1928 to $30,000,000, almost three times the exports to Russia. In ten last years the total of American exports to Finland were close to 7 billion 500 million Finnish marks, while the Finnish exports to the United States were only 3 billion 700 million Finnish marks. It will be seen from these figures that Finland has provided America with a highly profitable market.

Sees Signs of Reciprocity.

The world is turning to reciprocity in its trade activities. This trend has been noticeable in the last two or three years. Finnish imports from America have dropped to the level of American imports from Finland. Last year the Finnish exports to America slightly exceeded our imports from America. That change was due to the reduced purchasing power of the Finnish farmers. There is no doubt, however, that the American industrial products again will in increasing quantities find their way to Finland as soon as the world trade in general recuperates from its present illness.

On the other hand Finland must, in order to be able to buy American merchandise, seek new outlets for its products on this side of the Atlantic.

Finland is now exporting to America paper, cheese, some agricultural machinery as world famous milk separators, raw leather and granite in different forms. There are others, porcelain and glass products, especially the cut glass and crystal products, of high grade and artistic value, that well might sell in the United States.

The Finns also are producing different kinds of furniture for export, etc. Trade follows the flag. Hitherto there has not been any direct maritime connection between Finland and America. This summer, however, an American company saw the advantages of establishing a regular steamship line to Helsinki, the Finnish capital. It will carry both cargo and passengers. At the inauguration festivities in June the leading Finnish business men expressed their great satisfaction and saw in this American enterprise a sign of growing trade.
